

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE unrivalled reputation of Kühner as a grammarian in both the Greek and Latin languages, renders it unnecessary that any apology should be made for presenting to the American public the following translation of his Elementary Latin Grammar. His merits, before known to a few of our riper scholars, have lately been made familiar to all through the excellent translation of his Greek School Grammar by Messrs. Edwards and Taylor. It is understood also, that the same gentlemen have in preparation his Elementary Greek Grammar.

It seemed but proper, therefore, that a beginning should be made towards bringing before the public some of the results of his grammatical labors (equally profound and ingenious) in the Latin language. And no one, it is to be presumed, who duly considers the state of Latin learning among us, will deem it improper that a beginning has been made with an elementary treatise. The publication, within a few years past, of a translation of Krebs' Guide for Writing Latin and a new and enlarged edition of Beck's Latin Syntax, has done much towards supplying American students with the grammatical helps for studying the language critically. But with the exception of the Ciceronian by Dr. Sears, which, admirably adapted as it is to its purpose, is not designed to supply the place of a grammar, nothing of importance has been published during this period to supply the deficiencies for elementary instruction.

There is needed then, more especially, an elementary work on Latin Grammar, which shall give a right start to our scholars and put them in possession of the essential principles of the language in the shortest and most effectual way. Such a grammar, it is believed, the present will be found to be. No one can take a class over it, without being impressed with its admirable order, precision and adaptedness to the purposes of elementary instruction. The pupil will here find the most happy arrangement of parts, each preparing the way for the following, the simplest and most philosophical statement of principles, and every expedient resorted to, which genius and skill could invent, to aid the understanding and the memory. While it does not profess to embrace every minute principle of the language, it presents a selection of principles so judiciously made, so comprehensively stated and so extended withal, that it is believed, that it will be found to contain quite as many principles, applicable in reading the strictly classical writers of Latin, as many much more extended grammars; certainly enough to meet the demands of ordinary students in the usual course of preparation for college.

The plan of the work, as given by the author, is briefly as follows. Every grammatical form or principle of syntax, as soon as learned, is to be rendered practical and fixed in the mind, by translations first from the Latin into the English, and then from the English into the Latin. To prepare the pupil for these exercises in translation, such forms of the verb as are requisite for constructing the simplest sentences are given at the outset, and a few simple rules of syntax as they are required, while on almost every page, lists of Latin words with their definitions are given to be committed to memory, most of which, also, are collected and arranged in alphabetical Vocabularies at the end of the book. As many of the examples for translation as possible, were selected unaltered from the classics, others were slightly altered to suit the cases for which they were employed, and the remainder composed by the author, yet always so as to embody classical ideas and turns of thought. The examples in English may be translated into Latin, either viva voce or by writing, at the discretion of the teacher.

The translation here presented is from the second edition of the original work, published in 1844. Previously to receiving this edition, the translator had completed, within a few pages, the entire translation of the first; but on comparing the two editions, the alterations were found to be so great as to make the last almost a new work. He abandoned, therefore, his first translation, and commenced with the second edition de novo. Although this has delayed the publication of the work a few months, no one, it is presumed, will regret it, when he reflects, that he is thereby put in possession of a vastly better book, and probably of a somewhat better translation. During the interval between the publication of the first and second editions, the author had prepared a larger Latin Grammar and been daily employed in teaching his elementary work, all which prepared him for making very important changes in a second edition. By this process, the book has been brought to the high state of perfection in which it here appears. Besides its general office as a grammar, it is designed to contain all that the pupil will need during the first year or more of his study of the language, serving as grammar, reading-book and lexicon. The adaptedness of such a book to the wants of beginners, the experienced teacher will not fail to perceive.

It should be stated, however, that while the translation has been made from the second edition throughout, the translator has taken the liberty to introduce a few remarks and paragraphs (in one or two instances with slight modifications) from the first edition, which had been omitted in the second, apparently, because they were considered more appropriate to the author's larger grammar to which this was to serve exclusively as an introduction. The different position which the book will occupy in this country rendered it proper that these should be retained in the translation, even though, in one or two instances, they may appear a little inconsistent with the general plan of the work. For the same reason, the translator has added three short Appendices, chiefly from Kühner's larger Latin Grammar, of which that on Prosody, as it will be perceived, is designed only for the scanning of Hexameter verse.

With regard to the mode of using the book, the intelligent teacher will be the best judge. The author, however, suggests that, after completing the Etymology, the pupil should commence the more simple of the Latin reading lessons in connection with the study of the Syntax. And it may be added, that in some cases it will probably be found best, to take the pupil over the first and perhaps the second Course, omitting the English exercises at first, and then return and take them up in connection with a thorough review of the whole. Perhaps also, a judicious teacher, following out the general plan of the author, of diminishing difficulties by division and distribution, will think best, with very young pupils in particular, to omit some other things the first time over and take them up at subsequent reviews. But whatever course is pursued in teaching the book, a complete mastery of all that it contains should be aimed at from the beginning, and should be actually attained before it is left.

In conclusion, the translator would express his obligations to the Rev. Dr. Sears, of the Newton Theological Institution, who very kindly listened to the reading of the greater part of the manuscript and suggested such corrections as his superior knowledge of German enabled him to do, and to Mr. James H. Hanson, Principal of the Waterville Academy, who has given very important assistance in correcting the sheets as they passed through the press.

ETYMOLOGY.

FIRST COURSE.

CHAPTER I

Of the Sounds and Letters of the Language.

§ 1. Division of the Letters.

1. The Latin Language has as signs of its sounds, twenty-five letters, viz. six vowels and nineteen consonants.

a	b	c	d	e	f	g	h	i	j	k	l	m
n	o	p	q	r	s	t	u	v	x	y	z
A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I	J	K	L	M
N	O	P	Q	R	S	T	U	V	X	Y	Z

REMARK 1. The capital letters are used only: a) at the beginning of a sentence, after a period, an interrogation or exclamation point and after a colon (:), where the words of another are quoted;—b) in proper names, as: Romulus.—The letter k is used in but very few words.

2. The vowels are either short or long. The short vowels are distinguished by \cup , the long ones by — , as: ā , ā , perplācēs . The sign u signifies, that the vowel over which it stands can be used either as short or long, as: ā .

3. The Latin Language has the following diphthongs: ae. oe. au. eu. ei, e. g. aequitas, equity, foedus, league, aurum, gold, Eurus, the east wind, hei, alas.

REM. 2. When ae and oe are to be pronounced separately, this is indicated by two points (puncta diaerësis, points of separation) placed over the second vowel (e), as: aër, the air, poëta, a poet. The diphthong eu is found in only a few Latin, but in many Greek words, as: Eurōtas; in general, therefore, eu should be separated in pronunciation, as: deus (pronounced, dēūs) God. In like manner, also, must ei be almost invariably pronounced separately, as: dei (pronounced, dēi) of God, for ei as a diphthong occurs in but a very few words, as: hei, alas.

4. The consonants, according to the greater or less influence of the organs of speech in their pronunciation, are divided into:

- a) Liquids: l, m, n, r;
- b) Spirants:* h, s, v, j;
- c) Mutes: b, c, d, f, g, k, p, q, t, x, z.

§ 2. Pronunciation of the Letters.

C before e, i, y, ae, oe, eu, is pronounced like s, but in other cases like k, as: celsus (selsus) cicer, cymba, caecus, ceu, coelum; but, caro (karo), collum, custos, clamor;

Ch is pronounced like k;

Gu before a vowel in the same syllable like gw, as: lingua;

Ph like our f, as: pharëtra;

Rh as a simple r, as: Rhea;

Sch like sk, as: schola (skola);

Qu is pronounced like kw, as: aqua;

Su before a vowel in the same syllable like sw, as: suasor;

Ti before a vowel is pronounced like shi, as: actio (acshio). But if the i is long, the hissing sound disappears, as: totius. Besides, ti (with the i short) is pronounced without the hissing sound: a) if there is immediately before the t another t, an s, or an x, as: Attius, ostium, mixtio; b) in Greek words as: Miltiädes, tiära.

CHAPTER II

Of Syllables.

§ 3. Of the Measure or Quantity of Syllables.

1. A syllable is short by nature, when its vowel is short and this short vowel is followed either by another vowel or a single consonant, as: dëus, God, pätër, father.

2. A syllable is long by nature, when its vowel is long, as: mätër, a mother, mürs, a wall. Particularly, all syllables are long in which there is a diphthong, as: pläusüs, applause, and in which two vowels are contracted into one, as: lăcūs, of a lake, (contracted from lacūis, the original form of the genitive of lăcūs, a lake).

* Spirants, i. e. letters formed principally by the breath.—TR.

3. A syllable, which ends with a long vowel, is short by position, i. e. by the position of the vowel, when the following syllable begins with a vowel, as: dē in dēamlūlo, I take a walk, prō in prōavu, a great-grand-father, prae in praeacūtus, very sharp.

4. A syllable with a short vowel is long by position, when this short vowel is followed by two or more consonants, or by j, or x, or z, as: pēr in pērdo; alicūjus; but in the compounds of jugum, the vowel before j remains short, as: bījūgus. H with a consonant, forms no position, as: stomăchus, the stomach.

REMARK. The position before a mute with a liquid (§ 1, 4), for the most part, does not make the short vowel long, as: cerēbrum, the brain, arbitror, I think, locūples, rich. But in two cases the position of a mute with a liquid makes the preceding short vowel long: a) in compounds, as: ăbrumpo, from ăb; b) when one of the three liquids: l, m, n, follows one of the three mutes: b, d, g, as: hīblus, ăgmen, a march (from ăgo), măgnus, great.

§ 4. Of Accent.*

1. Monosyllables with a vowel short by nature, are pronounced with the acute accent (´), monosyllables with a vowel long by nature, with the circumflex accent (ˆ), as: ét, vír (vīri), út, dúx (dūcis); môs (mōris), jūs (jūris), lêx (lēgis), mōns.

2. Dissyllables have the accent upon the penult, and indeed:

a) The acute accent, when the penult is short by nature, as: vīrum (ī), dūcem (ū), hómo (ō), árte; or when the ultimate is long, whether the penult is long or short, as: Músae (ū) móres (ō) bónae (ō);

b) The circumflex accent, when the penult is long by nature and the ultimate short, as: mâtěr (ā), Músă.

3. Words of three or more syllables have the accent:

* This paragraph may be passed over, provided the teacher will see that the right pronunciation of the words is given in reading.

a) Upon the antepenult, and indeed, the acute accent, when the penult is short, whether the last syllable is short or long, as : hómīnĕ, hómīnĕs, hominĭbus, mediŏcris, tĕnĕbrae ;

b) Upon the penult, and indeed, the acute accent, when both the penult and ultimate are long, as : acútō (ū), amárĕs (ā) ; or when the penult is long only by position, in which case the ultimate may be either long or short, as : amántŭr, amántĕs ;—but the circumflex accent, if the penult is long by nature and the ultimate short, as : acútŭs, amârĕ.*

REMARK. The short monosyllabic enclitics (i. e. particles which always stand annexed to other words, and therefore lose their accent): que, ve, ne, ce, mel, etc. draw the accent of the word to which they are attached from the antepenult to the ultimate, as : scĕlera sceleráque, hómīnes hominĕsque, hominĭbus hominĭbŭsque. But if the accent is upon the penult, the drawing back of the accent to the last syllable, takes place only when this is already long, or by its union with the enclitic becomes long by position ; but if the last syllable is short and remains so, the accent does not change syllables, as : sceléstus scelestŭsque, scelĕsta scelĕstáque, plerique pleraéque plĕráque, útráque utráque.

§ 5. Of the Division of Syllables.†

1. GENERAL RULE. Syllables end with a vowel, and begin with a consonant. When, therefore, a consonant stands between two vowels, it belongs to the following syllable, as : pa-ter, a-ma-mus.

2. SUBORDINATE RULE. When two or three consonants, with which a Latin word can begin, stand between the vowels of two syllables, they are to be joined to the second syllable. The most common combinations of consonants are : a mute with a liquid, and s with a mute or with a mute and a liquid, as : ma-gnus, great, a-gri, fields, pe-stis, plague, a-stra, the stars. In all other cases, the consonants

* That is to say, in general, if the penult is long it has the accent, but if not, the antepenult.—TR.

† These rules for the division of syllables are drawn from the ancient grammarians and are generally observed in Europe. In this country, it is more common (and perhaps better, especially for beginners) to follow the analogies of our own language in dividing a Latin word into syllables. For a fuller account of the principles of division here adopted, see Appendix to Beck's Latin Syntax.—TR.

between two vowels are divided, as: an-nus, a year, am-nis, a river, mon-tes, mountains.

REMARK. A compound word must be divided according to its component parts, as: ab-āvus, a great-great-grandfather. If a letter is inserted, it is attached to the first word, as: prod-esse, to profit.

CHAPTER III.

1. The Substantive designates an object (a person or thing), as: man, woman, house.

2. The Verb expresses an action (something which an object does), as: to bloom, to dance, to sleep, to love, to praise, e. g. the rose blooms; the boy dances; the child sleeps; God loves men; the teacher praises the scholars.

3. The Adjective expresses a property or quality, as: small, great, beautiful, e. g. a small boy; a beautiful rose; a great house.

4. The Adverb expresses the way and manner in which an action takes place, as; beautifully, sweetly, e. g. the rose blooms beautifully; the child sleeps sweetly.

REM. 1. There are adverbs also, which express the place where, and the time when the action takes place, as: here, there, yesterday, to-day.

5. The Pronoun points to an object, as: I, thou, he, this that.

6. The Numeral expresses number or multitude, as: one, two, three, many, few.

7. The Preposition is a word which stands before a noun, and expresses the relations of place, of time and other relations which an object sustains to an action, as: the boy stands before the house; the child laughs for joy.

8. The Conjunction is a word which serves to connect words and sentences, as: and, but, because.

REM. 2. Besides, there are other words which are barely signs of emotion, and are called Interjections.

9. By inflection we understand the variation or modification of a word in order to express a particular relation, as: thou lovest, he loves, the child's clothes, the man's hat. The inflection of the substantive, adjective, pronoun and numeral, is called declension, that of verbs, conjugation. The remaining parts of speech do not admit of inflection.

§ 7. Partial Treatment of the Verb.

All the verbs of the Latin Language are divided into four classes or conjugations, which are distinguished by the termination of the infinitive as follows:

First Conjugation:	—āre	as:	amāre,	to love,
Second	"	—ēre	"	monēre, to admonish,
Third	"	—ere	"	regēre, to govern,
Fourth	"	—ire	"	audire, to hear.

§ 8. First Conjugation: amāre, to love.

PRESENT ACTIVE. Indicative.		PRESENT PASSIVE. Indicative.
1.	amo, I love	amor, I am loved
2.	amās, thou lovest	amāris, thou art loved
3.	amāt, he, she, it loves	amātur, he, she, it is loved
1.	amāmus, we love	amāmur, we are loved
2.	amātis, you love	amāmini, you are loved
3.	amant, they love.	amantur, they are loved.
Imperative.
2.	amā, love thou
2.	amāte, love ye.

They are well brought up, they are greatly frightened, they are greatly esteemed, they are well instructed.

CHAPTER IV.

Of the Substantive and Adjective.

§ 12. Classification of Substantives.

1. The substantive (§ 6, 1.) is called concrete, when it designates a person or thing which has an actual and independent existence, as: man, lion, flower, army; it is called abstract, on the contrary, when it signifies an action or quality conceived of as independent of a subject, as: virtue, wisdom.

2. The Concretes are:

a) Appellative nouns, when they indicate a whole species, or an individual of a class, as: man, woman, flower, lion;

b) Proper nouns, when they designate only single persons as things which do not belong to a class, as: Marius, Rome;

c) Material nouns, when they indicate the simple material, as: milk, dust, water, gold;

d) Collective nouns, when they designate a number of single persons or things as one whole, as: army, cavalry, fleet, herd.

The Gender of Substantives, which is three-fold, as in English, is determined partly by their meaning and partly by their endings. The rules of gender founded upon the endings will be treated of under the particular declensions. With reference to the meaning the following general rules obtain :

1. Of the masculine gender, are the names and designations of males, nations, winds, months, most rivers and mountains.

2. Of the feminine gender, are the names and designations of females, of most countries, islands, towns and trees, shrubs and small plants.

Of the neuter gender, are the names of the letters of the alphabet, the infinitive, all indeclinable words (excepting, however, the names of persons from foreign languages) and every word used as the mere symbol of a sound, as : man is a monosyllable.

4. Of the common gender, are the names of persons which have but one form for the masculine and feminine, as : dux, a male or female leader.

1. Nations, men, rivers, winds
These and months are masculines.
2. Women, isles, lands, trees and town'
These as feminine are found.
3. Whatever cannot be declined
This is of the neuter kind.
4. Common is whatever can Include a woman and a man.

§ 14. Number, Case and Declension.

1. The substantive and adjective have, like the verb, two numbers, the Sing., which denotes a unity, and the Plur., which denotes a plurality, and six cases in each number, viz. :

1. Nominative, answering the question who? or what?
2. Genitive, answering the question, whose?

3. Dative, answering the question, to or for whom? or what?

4. Accusative, answering the question, whom? or what?

5. Vocative, the case of direct address;

6. Ablative, answering the questions, whence? where-with? whereby? when? at what time, etc.

REMARK. The Nom. and Voc. are called casus recti; the other cases, casus obliqui. Substantives and adjectives of the neuter gender have the Nom. Acc. and Voc. alike.

2. The Latin language has five declensions.

§ 15. Gender and Declension of the Adjective.

1. The adjective, in Latin, agrees with its substantive in gender, number and case, as: filia bona, the good daughter, filia est bona, the daughter is good, filius bonus, the good son, filius est bonus, the son is good, bellum malum, the evil war, bellum est malum, the war is evil.

2. Hence, the adjective, like the substantive, has a three-fold gender. Still, not all adjectives have separate forms for the three genders, but many have only two distinct endings. viz. one for the Masc. and Fem. and the other for the Neut., some, indeed, have only one form for all genders.

3. The declension of the adjective corresponds with the first three declensions of nouns.

§ 16. First Declension.

Nouns of the first declension ending in a are all feminine. The feminine of adjectives of the second declension is declined like nouns in a, see § 17.

REM. 1. Exceptions to this rule occur only out of regard to the general rules of gender (§ 13.), thus, e. g. agricola, a husbandman, is Masc.; so also are most names of rivers of this declension, as: Matrona, the Marne, Trebia, Sequana, the Seine. But the names of mountains, as: Aetna, Ossa, remain Feminine.

Case-Endings.

Singular	Nominative	ă	Plural	Nominative	ae
	Genitive	ae		Genitive	ărŭm
	Dative	ae		Dative	is
	Accusative	ăm		Accusative	ăs
	Vocative	ă		Vocative	ae

Paradigms.

	Singular.	Plural.
Nominative	mensă, the table	mensae, the tables
Genitive	mensae, of the table	mensărŭm, of the tables
Dative	mensae, to the table	mensis, to the tables
Accusative	mensăm, the table	mensăs, the tables
Vocative	mensă, O table	mensae, O tables
Ablative	mensă, by the table.	mensis, by the tables.

REM. 2. As the Latin language has neither the definite article the nor the indefinite article a or an, mensa may signify either in a general sense table, or a table, or the table.

REM. 3. Some nouns are used only in the plural, as: nuptiae, a wedding, nuptiarum, of a wedding.

REM. 4. The dative and ablative plural have the ending ăbus (for is) in: dea, a goddess, filia, a daughter, when they are to be distinguished from corresponding masculine forms, e. g. filiis et filiăbus, to sons and daughters, diis et deăbus, to gods and goddesses.

REM. 5. Concerning Greek nouns of the first Dec. see § 35.

V. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Agricŏla , husbandman.	querĕla , complaint, a	gigno 3. I beget, produce.
aqua , water.	plaintive cry.
ciconia , a stork.	rana , a frog.	pulchre , adv. beautifully.
copia , abundance, multi- tude.	terra , the earth.	quam , how!
herba , an herb.	coaxo 1. I croak.	a, ah (with the abl.) by (a stands only before verbalis).
planta , a plant.	devoro 1. I devour.
procella , a storm.	turbo 1. I disturb.
	noceo 2. I injure.

RULE OF SYNTAX. Every sentence, e. g. the plant blooms, the meadow is green, has two parts:

a) The subject, i. e. the person or thing of which something is asserted (the plant; the meadow);

b) The predicate, i. e. that which is asserted of the subject (blooms; is green).

The subject is commonly a substantive and stands in the nominative; the predicate is commonly a verb (e. g. blooms), or an adjective in connection with the verb to be (e. g. is green).

Rana coaxat. Agricola delectatur querela ranae. Ciconia nocet ranae. Ciconia devorat ranam. O rana, coaxa! Aqua turbatur a rana. Plantae florent. Terra vestitur copia plantarum. Procellae nocent plantis. Terra gignit plantas. O plantae, quam pulchre ornatis terram! Terra vestitur plantis.

The plant blooms. The herb of the plant blooms. The storm injures the plant. I love the plant. O plant how beautifully thou bloomest. I am delighted with (abl.) the plant. The frogs croak. The plaintive cry of the frogs delights the husbandmen. The storks injure the frogs. The storks devour the frogs. O frogs, croak ye. The water is disturbed by the frogs.

§ 17. Second Declension.

Words of the second declension (substantives and adjectives) end in the Nom. in us, er, ir, and um, of which those in us, er, and ir are of the masculine and those in um of the neuter gender. For the exceptions see § 36.

V.	libēri	libērae	libērā	pulchri	pulchrae	pulchrā
A.	libēris	libēris	libēris.	pulchris	pulchris	pulchris.

In like manner decline :

Vir bonus, a good man, femina bona, a good woman, exemplum bonum, a good example, hortus pulcher, a beautiful garden, rosa pulchra, a beautiful rose, ovum pulchrum, a beautiful egg, ager fecundus, the productive field, vir liber, a free man, scriba bonus, a good scribe.

REM. 1. Most words in er reject the e in all the oblique cases except in the vocative singular, as: ager, G. agr-i; only the following retain the e: puer, G. puëri, socer, father-in-law, gener, son-in-law, vesper, evening, libëri, children, and the adjectives: asper, aspëra, aspërum, rough, lacer, torn, liber, free, miser, miserable, prosper, fortunate, tener, tender, and the compounds of fer and ger, as: frugifer, fruit bearing, corniger, horned. Dexter, right, has both forms: dexter, dextra, dextrum, G. dextri, dextrae; also, though less frequently: dexter, dextëra, dextërum, G. dextëri.

REM. 2. The Voc. Sing. of filius, (a son) is fili and that of meus (my) is mi, as: O mi fili, (but, O mea filia, O meum officium). This Voc. in i also, is found in proper names in ius, aius and eius, hence: i (for ie), ai (for aië), ei (for eië), as: Tullius Tulli, Virgilius Virgili. Mercurius Mercüri, Antónius Antóni, Gaius Gai, Pompëius Pompëi.

REM. 3. The word deus (God) is deus also in the Voc.; in the plural it is thus declined: N. dii, G. deorum, D. diis, Acc. deos, V. dii, Abl. diis.

REM. 4. The Gen. plural of some nouns has the ending um (for orum), e. g. nummum (from nummus), of money, talentum (from talentum), of talents.

REM. 5. Some Greek words, but rarely except in poetry, have the ending os (Acc. on) for the masculine and feminine, and on for the neuter gender, as: Ilios, Ilion. Greek words in eus (one syllable) are thus declined: N. Orpheus (two syllables), G. Orphëi, D. Orphëo, Acc. Orphëum, Voc. Orphëu (two syllables), Abl. Orphëo.

VI. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Equus, i, m. horse.	molestus, a, um, trouble-	committo 3. I commit frumentum, i, n. grain.	some.	to.
granum, i, n. corn.	varius, a, um, various.	curro 3. I run.
juba, ae, f. mane.	vireo 2. I flourish.	hinnio 4. I neigh.
musca, ae, f. fly.	colo 3. I attend to, cul-	celeriter, adv. swiftly.
fecundus, a, um, pro-	tivate, honor, revere.	in (with the abl.), in, ductive.		upon.

RULE OF SYNTAX. A noun in the Gen., Dat., or Acc., which is connected with the predicate and limits it, is called the object; e. g. in the sentence: the man guides the horse, "man" is the subject and "horse" the object which limits "guides." When the noun is in the Acc. it is called the suffering object (receiving the direct action).

Equus hinnit. Juba equi est pulchra. Muscae sunt molestae equo.

Vir regit equum. Eque, celeriter curre. Equo pulchro delector. Agri sunt secundi. Herbae agrorum sunt variae. Agricola committit agris grana frumenti. Agricola colit agros. Agri, quam pulchre virtutis! In agris multae herbae florent.

* The field is productive. The herbs of the field are various. The husbandman commits the corns of grain to the field. The husbandman cultivates the field. O field, how beautifully thou flourishest! Various herbs bloom in the field. The horses neigh. The mane of the horse is beautiful. Flies are troublesome to horses. Men govern horses. O horses, run swiftly. We are delighted with (abl.) beautiful horses.

VII. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Deus, see Rem. 3.	mundus, i, m. world.	magnus, a, um, great.
dea, see § 16. Rem. 4.	praesidium, i, n. protection, aid.	propitius, a, um, propitious, favorable.
filia, see § 16. Rem. 4.	templum, i, n. temple.	meus, a, um, see Rem. 2.
levir, i, m. brother-in-law.	benevolentia, ae, f. benevolence.	miser, era, erum, wretched.
socer, i, m. father-in-law.	carus, a, um, dear.	praeebo 2. I afford.
gener, i, m. son-in-law.	improbus, a, um, wicked.	exstruo 3. I build.

Dii mundum regunt. Deos propitios colite. Praebe, o deus bone, miseris praesidium. Dii improbos puniunt. Diis et deabus templa exstruuntur. Benevolentia deorum est magna. Filius leviri bene legit. Socero est hortus pulcher. Boni viri bonis viris cari sunt. Filia generi pulchre pingit.

The gods are propitious to men. Good men are dear to the gods.

* With regard to the arrangement of the words in forming a Latin sentence, the teacher must be the principal guide. The rigid laws of arrangement in the English language, allowed of but little being done in the way of imitating the Latin arrangement in the English exercises. Something, however, has been attempted in this way, which, together with a desire to preserve a strictly literal and grammatical expression of the thoughts, will account for the apparently awkward construction of many of the sentences. —It may be suggested, also, that a close study of the position of the words in the Latin exercises, will very often guide the student in translating the English exercises. As to particular rules on this subject, it would not be proper, perhaps, to state more than the following, applicable where no emphasis rests upon any word in the sentence. In this case, 1) The predicate follows the subject, as in English, 2) the adjective, or noun in the Genitive, comes after its noun, 3) the verb follows the case or cases which it governs, 4) the adverb precedes the word which it limits. But when these words are emphatic, the order in each case is reversed. For fuller directions on this subject, see Krebs' Guide for writing Latin, §§ 468—514.—Tr.

The wicked are punished by (ab) the gods. The world is governed by (ab) the gods. Afford, O good gods, protection to the wretched. The gods honor the temples. The gods love the good. O God, punish the wicked. Write, my sons. Sons-in-law are dear to fathers-in-law. God is propitious to good sons and good daughters. Write, my son, paint, my daughter.

§ 18. Third Declension.

1. The third Declension has the following case-endings :

Sing.	Nom.	—	Plur.	Nom.	ēs Neut. ä (iä)
	Gen.	is		Gen.	üm (iüm)
	Dat.	i		Dat.	ibūs
	Acc.	ēm, Neut. like Nom.		Acc.	ēs ä (iä)
	Voc.	like the Nom.		Voc.	ēs ä (iä)
	Abl.	ē (i)		Abl.	ibūs

REM. 1. In the Nom. the pure stem is often changed. It may always be found, however, by removing from the Gen. is, the ending of that case, as: rex, king, G. reg-is the stem therefore is reg. Also t, d, n and nt, are rejected from the stem in the Nom. before s, as: laus, praise, G. laud-is, stem: laud; Salamis, G. Sölamis-is, Atlas, G. Atlant-is. The r, of the stem, often passes over into s, as: mos, custom, G. mor-is. Most masculines and feminines whose stem ends in n, have rejected this letter in the Nom. as: leo, a lion, G. leon-is. Greek proper names whose stem ends in nt reject the t in the nominative, as: Xenophon, Xenophont-is.

REM. 2. Neuters, as a general thing, present the pure stem in the Nom., as: exemplar, a pattern, G. exemplar-is. Still, variations from this are introduced into many words out of regard to the laws of euphony in the Latin language, as: carmen, a poem (for carmin), G. carmin-is, ebur, ivory (for ebor), G. ebör-is, corpus, the body (instead of corpor), G. corpör-is, caput, the head (for capit), G. capit-is. When the stem of a Greek word ends in at, the t is rejected in the Nom., as: poëma (for poëmat), a poem, G. poëmat-is; so also in the neuters: cor, cord-is, the heart, lac, lact-is, milk.

REM. 3. Concerning the endings e and i, a and ia, um and ium, see § 37.

2. Concerning the gender, the following general rules obtain :

1) Of the masculine gender are the nouns in o, or, os, er, and imparisyllables, in es.

REM. 4. Parisyllables are words with the same number of syllables in the Gen. as in the Nom., as: nubes, a cloud, G. nubis; imparisylla- bles, on the contrary, are words which have more syllables in the Gen. than in the Nom., as: miles, soldier, G. militis.

2) Of the feminine gender are nouns in, as, is, aus, us (Gen. utis or udis), x, s with a consonant before it and parissyllables in es.

3) Of the neuter gender are nouns in a, e, c, l, en, ar, ur, ut and us (Gen. ōris, ēris, ūris).

REM. 4. For the exceptions to these rules see §§ 38—40.

§ 19. I. The Nominative presents the pure stem.

Orātor est disertus. Eloquentia oratōris movet animos nostros. Oratori paret popŭlus. Oratorem praedicāmus ob facundiam. O orator, quam praeclara est tua eloquentia! Ab oratore populus regitur. Dolores sunt acerbi. Numĕrus dolorum est magnus. Doloribus succumbitis. Vir patienter tolĕrat dolores. O dolores, quam graviter pungitis! Doloribus vincuntur ignāvi viri.

The pain is pungent. Bear ye the tortures of the pain. Thou sinkest under the suffering. The man endures the pain patiently. O pain, how violently thou stingest. A cowardly man is vanquished by (abl.) pain. Orators are eloquent. The eloquence of the orator moves our minds. The people obey the orators. Orators are extolled on account of their fluency of speech. O orators, how noble is your eloquence! The world is governed by (ab) the orators.

§ 22. Paradigms of Adjectives of the Third Declension.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. The following paradigms present the forms of the three classes of adjectives of the third Dec. with one, two and three endings. Adjectives of one ending terminate in l, r, s, x, and participles (Present Participles only) in ns, G. ntis, as: amans, loving, G. amantis. For the irregular adjectives of the second Dec.: unus, ullus, etc., duo and ambo, see § 33.

Lusus puĕris gratus est. Genĕra lusũs sunt varia. Puĕri libenter indulgent lusui. Vir gravis evitat lusum puerilem. O lusus, quam suaŕiter animos puerũrum delectas! Puĕri delectantur lusu. Sensũs sunt acres. Vis sensuum est magna. Vir fortis non succumbit sensibus dolõris. Bestiæ habent sensũs acres. O sensũs, quantas voluptates hominibus parãtis! Animalia sunt praedita sensibus.

The feeling of pain is bitter. The power of grief is great. The brave man does not sink under grief. The wise man endures grief patiently. O grief, how violently thou tormentest the minds of men! The wise man is not broken down by (abl.) grief. The sports of children are agreeable. There are various kinds of sport. The boys give themselves up to sports with delight. The serious man avoids childish sports. O sports, how pleasantly you delight the minds of boys! In (abl.) sports the boys are delighted.

	indico 1. I indicate.	in (with Acc. and Abl.) in, upon.

Tonitru terribile animos hominum permõvet. Fremitus tonitrũs (tonitru) est horribilis. Fulmen antecĕdit tonitru. Multi homines extimescunt tonitru. O tonitru, quam horribilis est fremitus tuus. Domus resonat tonitru. Genua virorum sunt valida. Vigor genuum indicat robur corporis. Magna vis est genibus. Supplices procumbunt in genua. O genua, ne vacillate! In genibus est magna vis.

The knee of man is strong. Power of the knee indicates strength of body. The knee has great power (= to the knee there is great power). The suppliant bends the knee. O knee, waver not! In the knee is great power. The thunder is terrible. The noise of the thunder is frightful. Lightnings precede the thunders. Fear thou not the thunder. O thunder, how terrible is thy noise. The house resounds with (abl.) frightful thunderings (= thunders).

Aestate sub quercibus et in specibus libenter sedemus. Hortus regis ornatur multis pinibus, ficis et lacibus. Puellae acibus pingunt. Oratores timidi saepe omnibus artibus contremiscunt. Venatores arcibus sagittas contorquent. Domus altitudo est insignis. Domui nostrae adjacet lacus. Frater aedificat domum. Magnus numerus est domuum (domorum) in urbe. Domibus perniciosi sunt imbres continui. Domos regis cingunt multae pinus.

Oaks and pines surround our house. The king dwells in a beautiful house. We dwell in beautiful houses. The height of the house is remarkable. In the lake are fishes. The king has many and beautiful houses. I tremble in all [my] limbs. A great lake lies by our houses. My sisters embroider. Many houses are built in the city. My brothers sit in the garden under oaks, and my sisters in grottos. Many arrows are shot by bows.

§ 24. Fifth Declension.

All nouns of the fifth declension end in the Nom. in es and are of the feminine gender.

Exceptions: Masculine are, dies, a day, and meridiēs, mid-day; yet dies in the Sing. is feminine when it signifies a definite day, a day fixed upon or appointed, as: dies dicta, dies constitūta, a day appointed, also, when it signifies length of time, as: dies perexigua, a very short space; still, in both these meanings it is sometimes used as masculine.

A. ē	ēbūs	rē	rēbūs	diē	diēbūs .

REM. 1. The e in eī, the ending of the Gen. and Dat. is short when a consonant stands before it, as: rēi, fidēi; but long when a vowel stands before it, as: diēi, faciēi.

REM. 2. Only rēs and dies form all the cases of the Sing. and Plur.; all the other nouns of the fifth declension are destitute of the Gen., Dat. and Abl. Plur., these cases being supplied by the corresponding cases of synonymous nouns of the other declensions.

incorruptus, a, um, un- corrupted.	er.	modo — modo, now — now. exspecto 1. I expect, await.

The fidelity of friends refreshes our minds in the hardships of life. Examples of true fidelity of friendship are rare. To the fidelity of our friends we owe our safety. The true friend preserves [his] fidelity also in adversity. O fidelity, thou providest for unfortunate men a safe haven! In the fidelity of friends we find satisfaction. The days are now bright, now lowery. The arrival of the bright days of spring are to all men agreeable. Lowery days follow bright days. We eagerly await the bright days of spring. O ye beautiful days of spring, how swiftly you fly away! In (abl.) the bright days of spring we are delighted. Mid-day is bright. On (abl.) a certain day, the soldiers of the city are called together.

§ 25. Comparison of Adjectives and Participles.

1. There are three degrees of quality:

- 1) The positive, as: the man is learned (vir est doctus);
- 2) The comparative, as: the father is more learned than the son (pater est doctior quam filius);

3) The superlative, as: Cicero was the most learned of all the Romans (Cicero erat doctissimus omnium Romanorum).

2. The superlative, in Latin, is also used to express in general, a very high degree of a quality, as: pater tuus est doctissimus, thy father is very learned.

3. For indicating the comparative and superlative, the Latin language has the following forms:

- a) For the comparative: ior, Masc. and Fem., ius, neuter;
- b) For the superlative: issimus, issima, issimum.

4. These endings are joined directly to the stem, which may be found, in all cases, by removing, in words of the second Declension, the Nominative-ending us, and in those of the third, the Genitive-ending is, as :

Laet-us, joyful	Comp. laet-ior, ius	Sup. laet-issimus, a, um
doct-us, learned	— doct-ior	— doct-issimus
pudic-us, bashful, modest	— pudic-ior	— pudic-issimus
imbecill-us, feeble	— imbecill-ior	— imbecill-issimus
lev-is, light	— lev-ior	— lev-issimus
fertil-is, fertile	— fertil-ior	— fertil-issimus
dives (G. divit-is), rich	— divit-ior	— divit-issimus
prudens (G. prudent-is), prudent	— prudent-ior	— prudent-issimus
amans (G. amant-is), loving	— amant-ior	— amant-issimus
felix (G. felic-is), happy	— felic-ior	— felic-issimus

5. Adjectives in er have the ending rimus, a, um in the superlative, as :

miser (G. miser-i), a, um (unhappy)	celer (G. celër-is), is, e, (swift)
miser-ior, ius	celer-ior, ius
miser-rimus, a, um ;	celer-rimus, a, um ; pulcher (G. pulchr-i), a, um (beautiful)	pauper (G. paupër-is), (poor)
pulchr-ior, ius	pauper-ior, ius
pulcher-rimus, a, um.	pauper-rimus, a, um.

So also: vetus, G. vetër-is, old (Comp. veterior, ius, is rarely used) Sup. veter-rimus; and nuper-us, a, um, recent, (Comp. wanting) Sup. nuper-rimus.

6. The six following adjectives in ilis form the superlative by adding limus to the stem, viz: facilis, easy, difficilis, difficult, similis, like, dissimilis, unlike, gracilis, slim, slender, and humilis, low, as :

facil-is, e	C. facil-ior, ius	S. facil-limus, a, um.
--------------------	--------------------------	-------------------------------

7. Compound adjectives in dicus ficus and völus, form the comparative by adding entior, ius, and the superlative by adding entissimus, a, um to the root, as :

maledicus, slanderous	C. maledic-entior	S. maledic-entissimus
magnificus, magnificent	magnific-entior	magnific-entissimus
benevölus, benevolent	benevol-entior	benevol-entissimus

But those in dicus (i long) are compared regularly, as: puḍicus, bashful, modest, puḍic-ior, puḍic-issimus.

8. Besides, the following adjectives of irregular comparison are to be observed:

bonus, good	C. mel-ior, ius, better	S. optimus, a, um, best
malus, bad	pej-or	pessimus magnus, great	maj-or	maximus parvus, small	min-or	minimus
multus, much	plus (neutr.) more	plurimus, most
	plures (m. and f.), plura	plurimi, most (n.) more nequam, wicked	C. nequ-ior,	S. nequissimus
senex, old	sen-ior,	wanting juvĕnis, young	jun-ior	wanting extĕrus, outward	extĕr-ior,	extĕrmus, outermost infĕrus, below	infĕr-ior,	infĕmus and imus, lowest
supĕrus, above	super-ior,	supĕrmus, and summus
postĕrus, hind	poster-ior,	postĕrmus, hindermost

9. Finally, there are several adjectives of which the positive is wanting, e. g.:

(citra, on this side)	citer-ior, ius	ciĕmus, nearest
(intra, within)	inter-ior, ius	intĕmus, inmost
(ultra, beyond)	ulter-ior, ius	ultĕmus, last
(prope, near)	prop-ior, ius	proxĕmus, next

REM. 1. Instead of the comparison by terminations, the Latin language often expresses the comparative by the positive with magis (more), and the superlative by the positive with maxime (most). This periphrastic form is necessary in those adjectives which want the terminational comparative and superlative.

REM. 2. Some adjectives have a superlative but not a comparative form, as: novus, new, novissimus; invictus, invincible, invictissimus. On the contrary, others have a comparative but not a superlative form, as: diuturnus, lasting, diuturnior, maxime diuturnus; proclivis, sloping, inclined, proclivior, maxime proclivis; especially, nearly all in ilis, ilis, ālis, bilis, as: agilis, nimble, agilior, maxime agilis.

REM. 3. To the adjectives which have not the terminational comparison, belong: a) those which have a vowel before the ending us, as: idonĕus, fit, magis idoneus, maxime idoneus; pĕius, pĕious, affectionate; perspicĕus, clear; egregius, excellent; necessarius, necessary;—b) nearly all in, icus, imus, inus, ivus, ōrus, undus, andus, bundus, as: lubricus, slippery; legitĕmus, lawful, matutinus, early, fugitivus, fugitive, canōrus, harmonious, venerandus, worthy of veneration, moribundus, dying;—c) several of no particular class, as: almus, nourishing, canus, hoary, cicur, tame, claudus, lame, compos, powerful, impos, impotent of, curvus, bent, ferus, wild, gnarus, acquainted with, mediocris, mediocre, memor, mindful of, mirus, wonderful, par, equal, proeditus, endowed with, rudis, rude, etc.;—finally, some, which, on account of their signification, admit of no degrees; e. g. those which denote a material; those compounded with per, prae (except praeclarus) and sub, as: permagnus, very great, praedives, very rich, subdifficilis, somewhat difficult; those having the diminutive form, as: parvulus, tiny, vetulus, oldish.

hirundo, inis, f. swallow.	garrulus, a, um, chattering, loquacious. liberalitas, atis, f. liberality.

Nihil est natūrae hominis accommodatius, quam beneficentia. Nihil est amabilius, quam virtus. Lux est velocior, quam sonitus. Nihil est melius, quam sapientia. Multi magis garruli sunt, quam hirundines. Paupères saepe sunt munificentiores, quam divites. In adversis rebus saepe sunt homines prudentiores, quam in secundis. Divitissimorum vita saepe est miserrima. Simulatio amoris pejor est, quam odium. Nihil est melius, quam ratio. Sol major est, quam terra; luna minor est, quam terra.

Lacedaemonius, i, m. a Lacedemonian		contemno 3. I despise. labor, òris, m. labor.

Omnium beatissimus est sapiens. Homérus omnium Graecorum

poëtarum est veterrimus. Adulatio est pessimum malum. Urbs Syracusae maxima et pulcherrima erat omnium Graecarum urbium. Pessimi homines sunt maledicentissimi. In amicitia plus valet similitudo morum, quam affinitas.

Nothing is better than virtue. God is the greatest, best and wisest of all. The customs of the Lacedemonians were very simple. The horse is very swift. Crows are very black. The haven is very much frequented. The father is very benevolent and very beneficent. The king is building a very magnificent palace (=house). Young women should (= must) be very modest. The ape is very much like man. The leg of the stork is very slender. Nothing is sweeter than friendship. The Lacedemonians were very brave. Light is very swift. Nothing is worse than the pretence of love. The sun is very great. The life of man is very short. The richest are often the most wretched. The poorest are often the happiest. The labor is very easy. The customs of men are very unlike. The king is very munificent. The worst men are often very happy. The best men are often despised by (ab) the worst. The health of my friend is very feeble. The garden of thy father is very beautiful. The labor is very hard. The walls of the city are very low. Most men love their native country.

CHAPTER V.

Of the Adverb.

§ 26. Classification and Formation of Adverbs.

1. The common endings of adverbs (§ 6, 4.) are e and er (iter); those derived from adjectives of the second declension, are formed by annexing ē to the root of the adjective, as: clarus, clar-ē, liber (G. libĕr-i), liber-ē, pulcher (G. pulchr-i), pulchr-ē. Only benē (well) from bonus, and malē (badly), from malus have a short e.

2. Adverbs derived from adjectives of the third declension are formed, by adding er to the stem of those in ans and ens, and iter to the stem of all others, as:

clar-us, a, um, clear, renowned liber, a, um, (G. libĕr-i), free

libĕr-e

pulcher, chra, chrum (G. pulchr-i)	pulchr-e
prudens (G. prudent-is), knowing	prudēt-er
amans (G. amant-is), loving	amant-er
fortis (G. fort-is), brave	fort-iter
Audax (G. audāc-is), bold , has audac-ter (for audac-iter).

3. Besides adverbs of the above-named endings, there are a number which have the termination of neuter adjectives in either the accusative or ablative case, as: multum, much, plurimum, most, solum and tantum, only, facile, easily, difficile (and difficulter), with difficulty, recens, recently;— tuto, safely, raro, rarely, continuo, immediately, crebro, frequently, falso, falsely, subito, suddenly, perpetuo, continually.

4. There are still other adverbial terminations, as: coel-itus, from heaven, penitus, deeply, entirely; sensim, by degrees, passim, everywhere; catervatim, by troops, gregatim, by flocks, etc.

§ 27. Comparison of Adverbs.

Adverbs derived from adjectives use for the comparative, the neuter singular of the comparative of the adjectives from which they are derived, and in the superlative change us of the superlative of their adjectives into e, as:

laet-ē, joyfully	Comp. laet-ius	Sup. laet-issime, most joyfully
doct-ē, learnedly	doct-ius	doct-issime
lev-iter, lightly	lev-ius	lev-issime
felic-iter, happily	felic-ius	felic-issime
magnific-ē, magnificently	magnific-entius	magnific-entissime simil-iter, alike	simil-ius	simil-ime
ben-ē, well	mel-ius better	optime, best
mal-ē, badly	pejus	passime.

CHAPTER VI.

Of the Pronoun (Comp. § 6, 5).

§ 28. I. *Personal Pronouns.*a. Substantive Personal Pronouns.

			Singular.
Nom.	ĕgō, I		tū, thou		wanting
Gen.	meī, of me		tui, of thee		sui, of himself, her-
Dat.	mihī, to me		tibi, to thee		self, etc.
Acc.	mē, me		tē, thee		sibi, to himself, etc.
Abl.	mē, by me		tē, by thee		sē, himself, etc.
					sē, by himself, etc. Plural.
Nom.	nōs, we		vōs, you		wanting
Gen.	nostrī, of us		vestri, of you		sui, of themselves
	nostrum, of, among		vestrum, of, among
	us		you
Dat.	nōbīs, to us		vōbīs, to you		sibi, to themselves
Acc.	nōs, us		vōs, you		sē, themselves
Abl.	nōbīs, by us.		vōbīs, by you.		sē, by themselves.

REM. 1. The Voc. of all the pronouns, if used, is like the Nom. The preposition cum (with), which governs the Abl., is joined to me, te, etc., thus: mecum, tecum, secum, nobiscum, vobiscum, with me, with thee, with one's self, with us, with you.

REM. 2. In order to give more emphasis to the personal pronouns, the syllable met is added to all the forms given in the above table, with the exception of tu and the Gen. Plur. of ego and tu, as: egōmet, temet, sibimet, nosmet, vosmet;—to tu is added tē: tutē, thou thyself—se is doubled to render it more emphatic: sese. For the difference of meaning between nostrī, vestri and nostrum, vestrum, see § 94.

b. Adjective Personal Pronouns or Possessive Pronouns.

Adjective-personal pronouns are formed from the Gen. of Substantive-personal pronouns. They are called possessive, because they represent an object as the possession of an individual of the first, second or third person.

From mei comes meus, mea, meum, my. (For the Voc. mī see § 17. Rem. 1.)

— tui	— tuus , tua , tuum , thy .
— sui	— suus , sua , suum , his , her , its .
— nostrī	— noster , nostra , nostrum , our .
— vestri	— vester , vestra , vestrum , your .

REMARK 3. For giving greater force and emphasis, the ending pte is joined to the Abl. Sing. of suus, as : suapte manu, with his (own, very) hand, suapte gladio (with his sword). For the same reason also, met (see Rem. 2) is joined to the oblique cases of suus, as : suismet capitibus.

XVII. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Magister, tri, m. teacher.	aequalis, e, equal.	labōro 1. I labor. praeceptum, i, n. precept, principle.	salutāris, e, salutary.	narro 1. I relate. praeceptor, ōris, m. teacher.	[er. canto 1. I sing.	voco 1. I call.
tractatio, ōnis, f. handling, pursuit.	clamo 1. I cry.	doleo 2. I grieve.
veritas, ātis, f. truth.	impēro 1. (with Dat.) I command, govern.	disco 3. I learn.
gratus, a, um, agreeable.	imperium, i, n. command, dominion.	ludo 3. I play.
irātus, a, um, offended, angry.		attente, adv. attentively. inter, praep. (with Acc.), between, among.

RULE OF SYNTAX. The personal pronouns in the Nom., ego, tu, etc., are used only when there is some emphasis to be placed upon them, hence especially in antitheses. The same is true of the possessive pronouns, meus, tuus, etc., e. g. meus frater diligens est, tuus piger; but: frater me amat (not: frater meus me amat).

Ego canto, tu clamas, amicus vocat. Nos narrāmus, vos saltātis, fratres labōrant. Ego fleo, tu rides, frater dolet. Nos, praeceptōres, docēmus, vos, discipūli, discitis. Ego ludo, tu discis, soror acu pingit. Nos scribīmus, vos legītis, fratres pingunt. Ego salio, tu feris, puer dormit. Nos, magistri, vos, o discipuli, erudimus; vos, boni discipuli, attente auditis praecepta nostra. Virtūtes inter se aequāles sunt. Imperāre sibi maximum imperium est. Irātus non est apud se. Tractatio litterarum nobis salutāris est. Veritas semper mihi grata est.

XVIII. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

civis, is, m. citizen.	dimico 1. I fight.	per, praep. (with acc.), through.
parentes, ium, m. parents.	discordo 1. I am at variance with.	propter, praep. (with acc.), on account of.
caput, itis, n. head.	porto 1. I bear, carry.	de, praep. (with abl.), of, concerning, over, at.
cantus, ūs, m. song.	faveo 2. I favor. reditus, ūs, m. return.	splendeo 2. I shine. expēto 3. I strive to obtain.

Vitia nobis virtūtum nomīne obrépunt. Nos favēmus vobis, vos favētis nobis. Tu me amas, ego te amo. Mihi mea vita, tibi, tua cara est. Virtus splendet per se semper. Cantus nos delectat. Parentes a nobis diliguntur. O mi fili, semper mihi pare! Frater me et te amat. Egomet mihi sum proximus. Tute tibi impëra. Virtus propter sese colitur. Suapte natūra virtus expëtur. Cives de suismet capitibus dimicant. Sapiens omnia sua secum portat. Nos vobiscum de patris reditu gaudemus. Tu tecum pugnas. Oratio tua tecum pugnat. Deus tecum est. Saepe animus secum discordat. Hostes nobiscum acriter pugnant.

I relate, thou dancest, the brother labors. We sing, you write, the friends call. I, the teacher, teach; thou, the scholar, learnest. We weep, you laugh, the brothers grieve. I write, thou readest, the brother paints. We play, you learn, the sisters embroider. I, the teacher, instruct thee, O scholar; thou, O good scholar, hearest attentively my precepts. The enemies fight spiritedly with you. Angry [men] are not in their right mind (= by themselves). God is with us. You rejoice with us at the return of [our] father.

I carry all my [secrets] with myself. O my son and my daughter, always obey me! You love us, we love you. Our life is dear to us, yours to you. Bad men are always at variance with themselves. The pursuit of literature is salutary to me. Truth is always agreeable to us. Our parents love thee and me in (abl.) like (= equal) manner. Men love themselves. Virtue is beautiful in (per) itself. I favor thee, thou favorest me. Our native country is dear to us.

XIX. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Cura, ae, f. care, concern.	industrius, a, um, industrious, diligent.	immemor, òris, unmindful of.
ira, ae, f. anger.	mirus, a, um, wonderful, extraordinary.	potens, ntis, powerful, master of.
desiderium, i. n. longing, desire.	perfidus, a, um, faithless.	impotens, ntis, not powerful, not master of.
conservatrix, icis, f. preserver.	absens, ntis, absent.	teneo 2. I hold, possess.
judex, icis, m. judge.	insipiens, ntis, unwise.	ango 3. I trouble.
benignus, a, um, kind.	memor, òris, mindful of.

Omnis natūra est conservatrix sui (preserver of herself). Mirum desiderium urbis, meorum et tui me tenet (longing after the city, etc.). Pater vehementer tuã sui memoriã delectatur (by thy remembrance of him). Ira est impotens sui. Sapiens semper potens sui est. Vestri cura me angit (concern for you). Omnes homines sunt benigni iudices sui. Vehementer grata mihi est memoria nostri tua (thy remembrance of us). Amicus mei et tui est memor. Pater absens magno desiderio tenétur mei, et tui, mi frater, et vestri, o soróres. Amici sunt nostri memóres. Multi vestrum mihi placent. Plurimi nostrum te valde diligunt.

The absent father has a great concern for us (= of us). The unwise [man] is not master of himself. The faithless friend is unmindful of me. Your remembrance of me is very agreeable. Care about thee (= of thee) troubles me. The most of you, my scholars, are diligent. The most of us love [our] native country.

‡ 29. II. Demonstrative Pronouns.

Singular.
Nom.	is, eā, id, he, she, it; the same	i-dem, eā-dem, id-dem, the very same
Gen.	ejus, of him, her, it; of the same	ejus-dem, of the very same
Dat.	ei, to him, her, it; to the same	ei-dem, to the very same
Acc.	eum, eam, id, him, her, it; the same	eun-dem, ean-dem, idem, the very same
Abl.	eō, eā, eō, by him, her, it; by the same.	eō-dem, eā-dem, eō-dem, by the very same.
Plural.
Nom.	ii, eae, eā, they; the same	ii-dem, eae-dem, eā-dem, the very same
Gen.	eórum, eārum, eórum, of them; of the same	eorun-dem, earun-dem, eorun-dem, of the very same
Dat.	iis (seldom eis), to them; to the same	iis-dem (eis-dem), to the very same
Acc.	eos, eas, eā, them; the same	eos-dem, eas-dem, eā-dem, the very same
Abl.	iis (seldom eis), by them; by the same.	iis-dem (eis-dem), by the very same.

REMARK. 1. The pronoun is, ea, id may be translated as follows: 1) the same (the one just mentioned); 2) Gen. e. g. filiius ejus, his or her son. Dat., to him, to her, to it. Acc. him, her, it; Plur. Nom. they, Gen. e. g. filiius eorum or earum, their son, Dat. to them, Acc. them;—3) in connection with a noun: this, e. g. eum regem, this king;—4) he, she, it (who). In the oblique cases, it is distinguished from sui and suis in meaning, by not referring back, as they do, to the subject of the sentence.

Singular.
Nom.	istĕ, istā, istū, this, that	illĕ, illā, illū, that
Gen.	istius, of this, of that	illius, of that
Dat.	istī, to this, to that	illī, to that
Acc.	istum, istam, istud, this, that	illum, illam, illud, that
Abl.	istō, istā, istō, by this, by that.	illō, illā, illō, by that.
Plural (after the II. Dec.)
N. isti, ae, a; G. istorum, arum, orum; D. and Abl. istis; A. istos, as, a;
N. illi, ae, a; G. illorum, arum, orum; D. and Abl. illis; A. illos, as, a.
Singular.
Nom.	hic, haec, hōc, this	ipsĕ, ipsā, ipsum, self
Gen.	hujus, of this	ipsius
Dat.	huic, to this	ipsī
Acc.	hunc, hanc, hōc, this	ipsum, ipsam, ipsum
Abl.	hōc, hāc, hōc, by this.	ipsō, ipsā, ipsō.
Plural.
N. hi, hae, haec; G. horum, harum, horum; D. and Abl. his; A. hos, has, haec;
N. ipsi, ipsae, ipsa; G. ipsorum, arum, orum; D. and Abl. ipsis; A. ipsos, as, a.

REMARK 2. The enclitic ce is joined to hic, haec, hoc in order to increase its demonstrative power: hicce, haecce, hocce, this here; the following forms occur most frequently: hujusce, hosce, hisce. From these forms connected with the interrogative particle ne we have: hicine, haecine, hocine, this? but in general only after a foregoing c. Also from the connection of this ce with iste and ille we have the following forms: Sing. N. istic, istaec, istūc; illic, illaec, illūc; Acc. istunc, istanc, istūc; illunc, illanc, illūc; Abl. istōc, istāc, istōc; illōc, illāc, illōc; Pl. N. and Acc. Neut. istaec, illaec.

The student may decline:

idem equus, the very same horse, eādem rana, the very same frog, idem vitium, the very same fault, G. ejusdem equi, ejusdem ranae, ejusdem vitii;

iste vir, this man, ista femina, this woman, istud nomen, this name, istius viri, istius feminae, istius nominis; hic puer, this boy, haec puella, this girl, hoc praeceptum, this precept, hujus pueri, hujus puellae, hujus praecepti;

ille sensus, that feeling, illa res, that thing, illud cornu, that horn, illius sensus, illius rei, illius cornus (ū).

REM. 3. Hic, haec, hoc, refers to an object in the presence of the one speaking, which pertains to the one speaking or which he calls attention to; iste, ista, istud refers to an object in the presence of the one addressed or which pertains to the one addressed; ille, illa, illud refers to an object which lies remote from the speaker and forms a contrast with hic, haec, hoc.

tarditas, atis, f. slowness, indolence.

Xenophon est elegantissimus scriptor; ejus libros libenter lego. Amicum fidum habeo; ei addictissimus sum. Fratris carmen valde mihi placet; lege id. Ignavia corpus hebetat, labor firmat; illam vitam hunc expete. Hae litterae graviter me movent. Haec carmina suavissima sunt. Isti homini mendaci ne crede. Huic duci milites libenter parent. Illi viro omnes favent. Praeclarum est istud tuum praeceptum. Haec sententia mihi placet, illa displicet. Hoc bellum est saevissimum. Hic puer industrius est, ille iners. Memoria teneo praeclarum illud praeceptum. Iste tuus amicus est vir optimus. Ista vestra auctoritas est maxima. Hujus discipuli diligentiam laudo, illius tarditatem vitupero; illi schola est gratissima, huic molestissima.

Xenophon is a very elegant writer, I read him with very great delight (libentissime). The brother and his friend are very dear to me. The teacher praises and censures the scholars according to (pro with abl.) their desert. We perceive God from his works. We honor [our] parents, because their deserts to (de with abl.) us are very great. The enemies besiege the city and strive to capture it.

This book I read with delight. This poem pleases me, that displeases. I praise the industry of this scholar. The deeds of that great Alexander are extolled by (ab) all writers. Caesar and Pompey were very renowned generals; to that, fortune was more favorable than to this; the bravery of this and that [one] was wonderful.

The king himself is leader of the army. Thou dost not always judge the very same concerning the very same thing. The father and the son pursue the very same literary studies (= literature). The virtues are of (per) themselves praiseworthy. Man loves himself [Thy] native country ought to be dearer to thee than thou thyself. Understand yourselves. Liars often distrust themselves.

Abl.	quibus, by whom, by which.	quibus, by whom? by what?

REM. 1. The preposition cum is joined to the Abl., as: quocum, for which quicum is often used.

REM. 2. In quisquis (quaequae rare), quicquid (whoever, whatever) both pronouns are declined, as: quoquo, quibusquibus, e. g. quoquo modo res se habet, in whatever way the thing has itself; quicquid id est, whatever it is; On the contrary, in quicumque, quocumque, quodcumque (whichever, whatsoever) cumque is barely annexed to the different cases of qui, quae, quod, as: G. cujuscumque, etc.

REM. 3. Quis, quid, are used substantively, as: quis scribit? quid scribitur? So also in the Acc., as: quid agis? The remaining forms do not differ from qui, quae, quod used interrogatively; but qui, quae, quod in this case, is always an adjective, e. g. quem vides? whom do you see? quem hominem vides? what man do you see? For the purpose of strengthening the interrogation, nam is annexed to the above mentioned interrogative pronouns, as: quisnam clamat? who cries out then? quidnam agis? what do you do then? quinam homo clamat? quanam mulier venit? quodnam genus est? and so through all the cases.

Felix est rex, quem omnes cives amant. O rex, qui civitatem nostram gubernas, honora bonos cives, terre maleficos, succurre miseris, exaudi probos! Acerba et immatura est mors eorum, qui immortale opus parant. Non semper est illud bonum, quod ardentem expetimus. Beati sunt ii, quorum vita virtutis praeceptis regitur. Hostis, quocum bellum geritur, terram nostram devastat.

The kings who govern the states, ought to look out for (acc.) the welfare of the citizens. The kings, whose government is mild and just, all citizens obey with delight. The kings, to whom the laws are sacred, are obeyed by all the citizens. The kings are fortunate, who are loved by all the citizens. O kings, who govern our states, honor the good citizens, frighten the evil, assist the wretched, listen to the upright! The enemies, with whom you carry on war, lay waste our land.

CHAPTER VII

Of the Numeral.

§ 33. Classification and Tabular View of the Numerals.

Numerals (§ 6, 6) according to their meaning, may be divided into the following classes :

- a) Cardinals, which answer the question, how many?
quot? as: one, two, etc.

* All these words are indeclinable and are used only in the plural, as : quot homines sunt? tot hominum numerus; aliquot hominibus; tot homines, quot video, so many men as I see; homines, quocunque or quotquot video, omnes boni sunt.

REM. 1. The first three cardinal numbers are declined (Remarks 5 and 6, pp. 56, 57); but from 4 to 100 they are indeclinable, while from 200 to 900 they are declined like the plural of adjectives of three endings in i, ae, a. For mille see Rem. 4. p. 56.

- b) Ordinals, which answer the question, which in order? which in a series? quotus? as: first, second, etc. They are all declined like adjectives of three endings in us, a, um.
- c) Distributives, which answer the question, how many at a time? how many a-piece? quotēni? as: one by one, two by two, etc.
- d) Numeral adverbs, which answer the question, how many times? quoties? as, once, twice, etc.

REM. 2. The numeral adverbs derived from the ordinals; viz.: primum (rarely primo), secundo (for which iterum is generally used; secundum is very rare), tertium, quartum, etc., answer the question, what place in order? as: in the first place, second place, etc.

- e) Multiplicatives, which answer the question, how many fold? quotūplex. They end in plex and are declined after the third Dec. as: duplex (for all genders), two fold, double, G. duplicis.
- f) Proportionals, which answer the question, how many times as great? quotūplus? They end in plus, plum, as: duplus, a, um, twice as great, (as something else taken as a unit of measure).

All these classes of numerals, except the last two, which are merely numeral adjectives and but little used in comparison with the others, are exhibited in parallel columns in the following table.

²) Singulus, a, um is not used in the Singular.

Remarks.

1. The compound numbers into which 8 and 9 enter as one of the components, are expressed in a subtractive form, as: 38, duodequadragesima, duodequadragesimus, 39 undequadragesima, undequadragesimus, 48 duodequinquagesima, duodequinquagesimus, 59 undesexagesima, undesexagesimus, etc.

2. In the other compound numbers from 13 to 17, the smaller number is placed first without et, as: Sedecim; but from 20 to 100, either the smaller number is placed first with et following it, or the larger without et, as:

23 tres et viginti or viginti tres tertius et vicesimus or vicesimus tertius.

3. In compounding smaller numbers with hundreds and thousands, the smaller number follows either with or without et, as:

103 centum et tres or centum tres, centesimus et tertius or centesimus tertius.

If, however, such a number contains a unit and a ten, the unit is placed last without et, as:

486 quadringenti et octoginta sex or quadringenti octoginta sex, quadringentesimus et octogesimus sextus or quadringentesimus octo-gesimus sextus.

4. Mille, a thousand (i. e. one thousand) is indeclinable, as: dux cum mille militibus; but the Plur. milia (always of more than one thousand), is a neuter noun of the third Dec. and is followed by a noun in the Gen. case, as: tria milia hominum, cum tribus milibus militum.

5. The nine following numeral adjectives in us, a, um, and er, a, um form their Gen. Sing. in all three genders in *ius and their Dat. Sing. in i:

unus, ullus, nullus, solus, totus, alius,
üter, alter, neuter,

and the compounds of üter, as: üterque, alterüter;

E. g. solus, a, um, G. solius, D. soli.—Alius has aliud in the neuter and in the Gen. alius (for altilus), in Dat. aliti. In the compounds: uterque, utervis, utercunque, uterlibet, uter is declined and que, cunque, etc. are joined to the different cases, as: utriusque, utrivis, utrumcunque utralibet. In alterüter (one of the two), commonly only uter is declined and alter is placed before it without change; but sometimes both alter and uter are declined, thus:

commonly: alterüter, alterütra, alterütrum, G. alterüterius, occasionally: alter üter, alterä ütra, altërum ütrum, G. alterius utrius.

* So also altertus, not (as is inferred from the poets) altertus.

Alius, alia, aliud, another	tôtus, a, um, the whole.	uterlibet, utralibet, alter, ãra, ãrum, the one or the other of two.	ullus, a, um, any one.	utrumlibet, whoever, whichever (you please of the two.

Nom. and V.	duo, two	duae, duo	tres, three	N. tria
Gen.	duõrum, duarum, duõrum			trium
D. and Abl.	duõbus, duãbus, duõbus			tribus
Acc.	duo and duos, duas, duo		tres,	tria
	So: ambo, ae, o, both.		Like tria is declined the Pl. of mille: milia.

Jam responsio est in promptu. Sunt tria et septuaginta mala; unum et septuaginta pruna; septem et septuaginta pira; novem et septuaginta cerāsa. P. Recte, mi Carōle! Jam sepōne codcillos et memorīter mihi responde: Quot menses habet unus annus? C. Duodēcim. P. Quot hebdomādes habet unus mensis? C. Quattuor. P. Quot dies habet unus annus? C. Trecentos sexaginta quinque. P. Quot horas habet unus dies? C. Quattuor et viginti. P. Quot dies habent tres anni? C. Mille nonaginta quinque. P. Quot horas habet unus annus? C. Octo milia septingentas sexaginta. P. Si tres nuces quater ponis, quanta summa existit? C. Duodecim. P. Si quinque calcūlos ter millies sexcenties quinquagies septies ponis? C. Duodeviginti milia ducenti octoginta quinque. P. Si septingenta quadraginta tria milia trecentos quinquaginta duo thalēros bis ponis? C. Decies centum milia quadringenta octoginta sex milia septingenti quattuor.

Father. Give attention, my son! write upon your writing-tablet the following (= this) example: If thou hast 20 apples, 6 plums, 2 pears, 12 cherries, and to these are added 4 apples, 8 plums, 14 pears, 16 cherries; then 10 apples, 18 plums, 32 pears, 22 cherries; then 24 apples, 30 plums, 26 pears, 28 cherries; besides, 40 apples, 38 plums, 36 pears, 34 cherries; finally, 48 apples, 42 plums, 44 pears, 46 cherries: how many apples are [there]? how many plums? how many pears? how many cherries?—Charles. Wait a little, my father! already is the answer in readiness. There are 146 apples, 142 plums, 154 pears, 158 cherries.—Father. Correctly, my Charles!

Quota hora est? Decima. Annus, quo nunc vivimus, est millesimus octingentesimus quadragesimus tertius post Christum natum. Pater meus agit annum quartum et sexagesimum (or sexagesimum quartum); mater octavum et quinquagesimum (or quinquagesimum octavum); frater major natu tertium et tricesimum (or tricesimum tertium); frater minor natu alterum et tricesimum (or tricesimum alterum); soror major duodetricesimum; soror minor vicesimum. In urbe sunt mille milites. Duo milia hostium urbem obsident.

The enemy makes an irruption into our country (= land), with 10,000 soldiers. A thousand soldiers defend the city. 28,000 footmen and 13,000 horsemen defend the country.

My father is in [his] seventy-fifth year (= is passing his seventy-fifth year); my mother in her sixty-second; my older brother in his forty-first; my younger brother in his thirty-ninth; my older sister in her thirty-fourth and my younger sister in her twenty-sixth. What hour is it? the eleventh hour. How old art thou? (= what year art thou passing?), fifty-eight years old (= I am passing the fifty-eighth year).

Aliud alii placet (one thing pleases one and another another), aliud alii displicet. Milites utriusque exercitus sunt fortissimi. Utrumque est vitium: et omnibus credere, et nulli. Perfidus homo vix ulli fidem habet. Unius fidi hominis amicitia habet plus pretii (has more value), quam multorum infidorum societas. Soli sapienti vera vis virtutis est cognita. Incolae totius urbis de victoria exercitus laeti erant. Nullius hominis vita ex (in) omni parte beata est. Habeo duo amicos; ambo valde diligo. Amicus meus habet duo filios et duas filias.

We trust to neither of the two, neither to the wicked [man] nor the flatterer. The life of no man is more peaceful than the life of the wise [man]. God is the governor of the whole world. The father goes to walk with [his] two sons and [his] two daughters. Two faithful friends are as it were (quasi) one soul in two bodies. Two thousand soldiers (gen.) defend the city.

CHAPTER VIII.

§ 34. Table of the Prepositions.

1. Prepositions governing the Accusative.

Ad, to, unto, according to, for, at.	propter, near by, on account of.	ante, before.
apud, at, by.	penes, with (in the power of some one).	post, behind, after.
juxta, next to, by.		secundum, after, along, according to.
prope, near by.	ob, before, on account of.	versus, towards.

adversus and adver- sum, against.	cis, citra, on this side.	extra, beyond, without.
contra, contrary to, on the contrary, against.	trans, over, on that side.	infra, beneath, below.
erga, towards. [around.	ultra, beyond, on that side.	supra, over, above.
circa, circum, about.	inter, between, among.	per, through.
	intra, within.	praeter, hard by, besides.

REM. 1. Versus generally stands in connection with the prepositions ad or in; the Acc. is placed between ad (in) and versus, as: in Italian versus, ad Oceanum versus, towards Italy, towards the Ocean. But with names of cities ad and in are omitted, as: Romam versus, towards Rome.

2. Prepositions governing the Ablative.

A, ab, abs, from, by.	prae, before, by reason of.	sine, without.
de, down from, away from, of, concerning, over.	pro, before, for.	clam, without the know- ledge of.
e, ex, out of, from.	coram, before, in the presence of.	tenus, up to.
	cum, with.

REM. 2. A and e never stand before a vowel or h; abs is rarely used, most frequently before t.—Tenus is placed after the Abl. For the forms mecum, tecum, quocum, etc., see § 28. Rem. 1. and § 30. Rem. 1.

3. Prepositions governing the Abl. (in answer to the question where?) and the Acc. (in answer to the question, whither?)

In, c. abl. in, at, by, upon; into, upon, against, towards.	c. acc. super, over, concerning with acc. in answer to both ques- tions).
sub, under.	subter, beneath, (generally with acc. in answer to both questions).

XXVIII Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Ripa, ae, f. bank.	libertas, atis, f. freedom.	effundo 3. I pour out, via, ae, f. way.	altus, a, um, high, deep.	discharge.
castra, orum, n. camp.	video 2. I see.	fugio 3. I flee.
agger, eris, m. mound.	duco 3. I lead.	pello 3. I drive, repel.
pes, edis, m. foot.		munio 4. I fortify.

Promiscuous examples from all the Declensions.

Frogs live in the water and upon (in) the land. The soldiers fight spiritedly against (in) the enemy. The enemies make an irruption into our borders. In the fields, bloom various herbs. In (abl.) summer we sit with delight under oaks. The enemies flee within (= among) the walls. Parents are loved by (ab) good sons and daughters. Orators we extol on account of (ab) fluency of speech. The earth moves (= is moved) around the sun. Repel cares from [your] minds. Suppliants fall down upon the knees. Eloquence adorns those with (penes) whom it is. Live thou according to nature. The soldiers fight before (pro) the camp. The river is discharged over the banks. Virtue has all [things] beneath (subter) itself. Who is peaceful without virtue? Above the city is a very high oak. Below our garden a very magnificent house is built.

The army marches (iter facit) towards Rome. The general leads the soldiers against the city. Near by the walls of the city, the enemies fortify the camp. The enemies build a high mound around the city. Our soldiers fight with the enemies very spiritedly. The citizens fight spiritedly for the freedom of their native country. The enemies flee over the river. On account of virtue men are esteemed. The enemies within the walls of the city fortify a camp. The love of parents towards [their] children is very great. Many men act contrary to (contra) the precepts of virtue. On this side of the city a camp is fortified by (ab) the enemies. † Frogs live within and without the water. All the citizens were joyful concerning (de) the victory of our soldiers. The way, which leads from the city up to our garden, is very beautiful. Avoid the man, who by reason of (prae) anger is not in his right mind (= with himself). Before (ante) our house are many pines, behind the same, is a very beautiful garden. Often we do not see that which is before (ante) our feet. Between the city and our garden are very beautiful fields. The enemies flee through the city. Who is peaceful besides the wise [man]?

SECOND COURSE.

§ 35. Greek Nouns of the First Declension.

Several nouns adopted from the Greek, have in the Nom. the ending, ē Fem., ās and ēs Masc. The declension of these differs from the Latin first Dec., only in the Sing.; in the Plur. they are the same.

Paradigms.

Feminine.	Masculine.
Sing. N. crambē, cabbage	Aenēās, Æneas Anchisēs, Anchises
G. crambēs, of cabbage	Aenēae Anchisae
D. crambae, to cabbage	Aenēae Anchisae
A. crambēn, cabbage	Aenēam Anchisēn
V. crambē, O cabbage	Aenēā Anchisē
A. crambē, by cabbage.	Aenēā Anchisē.

historia, ae, f. history.	Latin.	antepōno 3. I prefer. stella, ae, f. star.	crinitus, a, um, with long	coquo 3. I cook.
nauta, ae, m. sailor.	hair.	pie, adv. tenderly, piously.

Alōē est amāra. Aloēs herba est amāra. Crambae est tenēra herba. Cramben coqua in culina coquit. O Circe, quanta erat astutia tua! Crambe tenērā delectāmur. Borēas vexat nautas. Boreae procellae nautis perniciosae sunt. Boream fugiunt nautae. O Borea, quam vehementer strides! A Borea vexantur nautae. Planētes est stella erratica. Comētes est stella crinita. Oresten et Pylāden ob amicitiam proedicāmus. O Epaminonda, quanta est tua gloria! Anchises pie amātur ab Aenā. Pythagōrae sapientia praedicātur. O Anchises, quam pie amāris ab Aenēā! Epaminondam et Pelopīdam omnes scriptores celēbrant.

Cabbage is tender. The herb of cabbage is tender. The aloe is a bitter herb. We prefer the tender cabbage to the bitter aloe. O Circe, how by (abl.) thy cunning thou deceivest the minds of men! We abstain from the bitter aloe. Gorgias had (erat with dat.) great eloquence. The cunning of Circe was great. Æneas loves Anchises tenderly. Pythagoras we extol on account of [his] wisdom. O Orestes and Pylades, how great was your friendship! Concerning (de) Orestes and Pylades, concerning Epaminondas and Pelopidas history relates.

§ 36. Of the Gender of the Second Declension.

RULE.

Us, er and ir are masculine,
But um is of the neuter kind.

EXCEPTIONS.

Isles, lands, towns and trees in us,
These are feminine in use.
Also alvus, colus, humus,
*Vannus, periödu*s and *carbäsu*s,
Diphthongus too and dialectus.

The neuter has but three in us :
*Virus, vulgus, pelägu*s.

Alvus, i, f. belly.	periödu s, i, f. period.	virus, i, n. juice, poison.
colus, i, f. distaff.	carbäsu s, i, f. linen.	vulgus, i, n. the common people.
humus, i, f. ground, earth.	diphthongus, i, f. diphthong.	pelägu s, i, n. (a poetic word) sea.
vannus, i, f. corn-fan.	dialectus, i, f. dialect.

REMARK. The following are masculine contrary to the general rule (§ 13.) for countries, towns and trees: Pontus, Hellespontus, Isthmus, Bospöru*s*; also plurals in i, as: Delphi, Delphoru*m*; also names of trees in er, as: oleaster, tri, wild olive tree. Besides, all names of countries, cities and mountains in um (ön), G. i, and plurals in a, *G. oru*m are neuter, as: Latium, Saguntum, Pelion, Leuctra (*öru*m).

XXX. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Lingua, ae, f. tongue, language.	pirus, i, pear-tree.	ignävu s, a, um, indolent, lazy, cowardly.
silva, ae, f. a wood.	prunus, i, plum-tree.	lignëu s, a, um, wooden, of wood.
cibus, i, m. food.	ulmu s, i, an elm.	longu s, a, um, long.
Aegyptu s, i, Egypt.	avidu s, a, um, (with gen.), greedy.	matüru s, a, um, ripe, early.
Delu s, i, Delos (island).	frugifer, ära, äru m, fruitful.	procëru s, a, um, slim.
Rhodu s, i, Rhodes (an island).	compositu s, a, um, composed.	rotundu s, a, um, round.
pöpu lu s, i, a poplar.	fecundu s, a, um, productive.	stultu s, a, um, foolish.
ceräsu s, i, cherry-tree.	humidu s, a, um, moist.	compesco 3. I check, curb.
fagu s, i, beech-tree.
mälu s, i, apple-tree.

*Vulgus est stultum. Diphthongus est longa. Periödu bene composita est. Pöpu*li sunt *procërae. Ignävi pöpu*li facile vincuntur. In silvis sunt ulmi et fagi altae. Vanni sunt lignëae. In horto nostro magnus est numerus frugiferarum cerasorum, malorum, pirorum et prunorum.

In our garden are many cherry-trees, many apple-trees, many plum-trees and many pear-trees. The foolish people (vulgus) are easily deceived. Diphthongs are long. The periods are well composed. The poplar is slim. A cowardly people (populus) is easily conquered. In our garden are many slim poplars. The corn-fan is of wood.

Matura cerasa, mala, pira, pruna sunt dulcia. Virus est perniciosum. Humus humida varias plantas gignit. Alvus est ciborum avida. Dulus est clara. Coli sunt rotundae. Dialecti sunt variae. Carbassus est tenera.

Avoid the pernicious poison. One language has many dialects. The linen is beautiful. Egypt is productive. These apples, cherries, plums and pears are beautiful. See those high elms and slim poplars. Rhodes was renowned. The distaff is round. The earth (humus) is productive. Check the greedy appetite (= belly).

§ 37. Remarks on the several Case-endings of the Third Declension.*

1. Gen. Sing. Proper names in es often have in the Gen. the termination i instead of is, as: Ulixi, also, Pericli, Aristoteli, Neocli, Carneadi, etc. Some Greek nouns in o (but only of the feminine gender) as: Argo, Sappho, echo, Io, have us in the genitive as: echus from echo, Argus from Argo (the remaining cases are like the Nom. or are formed with Latin endings, as Dido, -onis, -oni, -onem, -one.)

* Greek nouns, sometimes, but generally only in poetry, retain their peculiar terminations in Latin, viz., Gen. os for is; Acc. a for em, or in (yn), en for im, idem, em; Voc. i, y (from Nom. is, ys) for is, ys; Abl. i for ide (rare). Plur. Nom. Neut. e (from Nom. Sing. os); Gen. on for um (rare and only poetic); Dat. si, sin for dibus, tibus, ibus (rare and only poetic); Acc. as for es. Thus: Gen. Sing. Pallad-os (from Pallas), Pan-os (from Pan), Thety-os (from Thetys); Acc. Platona (from Plato), Lycorida (from Lycoris), basin (basis), Parin (Paris), Thetyin; Voc. Lycori, Coty; Abl. Daphni for ide. Plur. Nom. Neut. melē, epē (from melos, epos); Gen. Chalybōn (Chalybs); Dat. Dryasi (Dryas, adis), metamorphosei; Acc. Senōnas (Senōnes), Cyclōpas (Cyclops.) The Gen. eos, for is from Nom. is as: baseos for basis is not classical, and from Nom. -eus only poetic, as: Peleus, Pellōs (in prose, Peleus, Pelēi). Good prose rejects the Greek genitive-form in os; the Acc. in a, in, yn, en is very rare in good prose, as: Pana, aethera, Zeuzin, polsin, Sophoclen. The Acc. Plur. in as is found in prose writers of the golden period of the Latin language, only in barbarous names, as: Senōnas, Allobrōgas. Cacs.—Kühner's Larger Latin Grammar.

2. Acc. Sing. The Acc. has in the following nouns in is G. is, the ending im (for em). First, invariably in :

amussis, f. a rule.	ravis, f. hoarseness.	tussis, f. a cough.
buris, f. a plough-tail.	sināpis, f. mustard.	vis, f. force, power, abundance, multitude.
cannābis, f. hemp.	sitis, f. thirst.

Second, commonly in :

febris, f. a fever.	puppis, f. the stern of a ship.	secūris, f. an axe.
pelvis, f. a basin.	restis, f. a rope.	turris, f. a tower.

Also in the following names of rivers: Albis, the Elbe. Athēsis, the Adige, Arāris, the Saone, Liris, the Liris, Tamēsis, the Thames, Tibēris, the Tiber, Tigris, the Tiger, Visurgis, the Weser (all Masc. according to § 13); and finally, in Greek nouns in is Gen. is, as: basis, f. (a pedestal), basim, and in several words in is G. idis, as: Paris, Parim.

3. Voc. Sing. The vocative of Greek nouns in s with a vowel before it, commonly drops the s, as: O Pericle but also Pericles, O Socrāte also Socrātes, O Perseu also Perseus, O Pari also Paris. The same is true of those in as G. antis, as: Atlā; others in as, but with a different form of the Gen., have the vocative like the nominative.

4. Abl. Sing. The ablative has the ending e in most nouns; but in a few it has the ending i, and indeed invariably :

a) In neuters in e, āl, G. ālis, ār, G. āris, as mari, animāli, calcāri. But those in ār, G. āris have e, as: nectar (nectar), nectāre.

EXCEPTIONS: sal (salt), far, and the names of towns in e, as: Praneste, Caere, have e in the ablative.

b) In nouns in is which always have im in the Acc. as: vis, vim, vi.

5. The following nouns in is G. is have i oftener than e, or i and e together :

civis, m. a citizen.	ignis, m. fire.	pelvis, f. a basin.
clavis, f. a key.	navis, f. a ship.	puppis, f. the stern.
febris, f. a fever.	neptis, f. a grand-daughter.	secūris, f. an axe.
fustis, m. a club.		turris, f. a tower.

REM. 1. Also the names of rivers enumerated in No. 2. have in general i.

6. In the Nom. Acc. and Voc. Plur. neuters in e, al, G. ālis, ar G. āris have ia instead of a, as: maria, animalia, calcaria.

7. In the Gen. Plur. the following have ium instead of um:

a) Neuters in e, al, G. ālis, ar, G. āris, as: marium, animalium, calcarium. Lar, lar (lār-is), a household-god, the fireplace, has Larum and Larium;

b) Parisyllables in es and is, as: navium (navis), nubium, and in er: imber, rain, linter, a boat, uter, leather bag, venter, the belly; but, canis, a dog, panis, bread, proles, an offspring, strues, a heap, vates, a prophet, juvĕnis, a youth, and commonly, apis, a bee, volucris, a bird, have um;

c) Monosyllables in s and x with a consonant preceding them, as: mons, montium, arx, arcium; (but, [ops] opes, power, has opum and lynx, f. lyncum); and the following: [faux] fauces, the throat, faucium, glis, a dormouse, glirium, lis, strife, litium, mus, a mouse, murium, nox, night, noctium. Strix, a horned owl, strigium; on the contrary, dux, (a leader) has ducum, vox, the voice has vocum, nux, a nut has nucum, and so of others with a vowel before the x;

d) Words of more than one syllable in s, or x, with an r or n preceding them, as: cohors, a cohort, cohortium, cliens, a client, clientium, quincunx, quincuncium; commonly also, parentium (parens), of parents, sapientium (sapiens), of wise men, adolescentium (adolescens), of the youth; finally, always, compedium (from compes, generally in the plural compĕdes), of fetters; on the contrary, pes, pedum;

e) For the most part gentile nouns (national denominations) in ās, ātis, is, itis, as: Arpinas, Arpinatium, Samnis, Samnitium. So also nostras, optimas penātes, as: nostratium, finally, civitas, a state, civitatium.

8. In the Dat. and Abl. Plur. Greek neuters in ma have mā-is more commonly than mat-ibus, e. g. poēmātis, instead of poēmatibus.

9. Concerning the case-endings of adjectives, the following rules may be given :

a) The Abl. Sing. of all adjectives, even when used as nouns, has the ending i, as : acri, facili, pari (from par), felici, memōri (see § 22.); natāli from natālis (viz. dies), birth-day, Aprīli from Aprīlis (viz. mensis), April, Decembri from December.

EXCEPTIONS. The Abl. has e in the following cases: 1) Juvēnis, a young man, aedilis, edile, and the adjectives in is used as proper names, as : Martialis, Martiale ;

2) The following adjectives of one ending :

caelebs, ibis, unmarried.	dives, itis, rich.	[guest.	princeps, ipis, chief.
cicur, ūris, tame.	hospes, itis, foreign,	a	pauper, ēris, poor.
compos, ōtis, powerful,	pubes, ēris, grown up.	sospes, itis, safe, secure. possessed of.	impubes, ēris, beardless.	superstes, itis, surviving.
impos, ōtis, impotent.	particeps, ipis, partaking of. dese, idis, idle.

3) Comparatives, as : major, majus (greater) majōre ;

4) Compounds of corpus, color and pes, as : bicorpor (having two bodies), bicorpore, discolor (variegated), discolore, bipes (two-footed), bipede ;

5) Adjectives of one ending used as nouns, as : sapiens, a wise man, infans, a child, Pertinax, Clemens, Felix, Abl.—e ;

6) Participles in ns have as participles e, but as adjectives, generally i, as : florente rosā, the rose blooming, in florenti rosā, in a blooming rose.

b) The Nom. Acc. and Voc. Plur. Neut., have in adjectives and participles, the ending ia, and the Gen. Plur. the ending ium, as : acria, facilia, felicia, acrium, facilium, felicium (§ 22.), hebetia, ium (from hebes).

REMARK. In the strictly classical period, all adjectives which have the Gen. Plur. in ium, had the Acc. Plur. Masc. and Fem. in is, as : omnis homines.

EXCEPTIONS. Vetus, old, has vetēra, vetērum and all comparatives, as : majora, majorum (but plus, plura has plurium) ; complures, very many, several, has complura and ia (Gen. always, complurium). Besides, the following have um in Gen. : celer, swift, consors, partaking of, degener, degenerate, dives, rich, inops, helpless, memor, immemor, supplex, suppliant, uber, rich, vigil, watching. To these may be added compounds in ceps and fer, as : anceps, two-fold, double, uncertain, G. Pl. ancipitum, artifex, skilful, artist, artificum ; finally, all which have only e in the Abl., as : pauper, paupērum.

Firm (= certain) friends are seen in an uncertain thing. There are two ways of life, of virtue and of vice; the way of the one (alter) is troublesome and difficult, but leads to a peaceful life; the way of the other (alter) is easy and agreeable, but leads to a wretched life; which way (utra via = which of the two ways) dost thou choose, [that] of virtue, or [that] of vice?

THIRD COURSE.

CHAPTER I.

Of the Verb.

a) Active verbs, or the form expressing activity, as: laudo, floreo; those active verbs which take an object in the accusative, are called transitive, as: laudo puerum; all other active verbs are called intransitive, as: floreo, dormio, pareo (alicui), gaudeo (de aliqua re).

b) Passive verbs, or the form expressing passivity or the receiving of an action.

c) Deponent verbs are such as have the passive form but the active signification.

§ 43. Tenses of the Verb.

- I. 1) Present, am-o, I love,
- 2) Perfect, am-ā-vi, I have loved ;
- II. 3) Imperfect, am-ā-bam, I loved, was loving,
- 4) Pluperfect, am-ā-vĕram, I had loved ;
- III. 5) Future (simple), am-ā-bo, I shall love,
- 6) Future Perfect, am-ā-vĕro, I shall have loved.

REMARK. The Pres., the Perf. and the two Futures are called principal tenses, the others historical or narrative tenses.—The Perf. in Latin, is used in a two-fold way ; a) like the English Perf. as : deus mundum creavit, (God has created the earth) ; b) like the English Imperf. in narrating, as : Romulus Roman condidit, (Romulus built Rome). In the first case it is called the Perf. present, and is considered as belonging to the principal tenses, in the last the Perf. historical, and belongs to the historical tenses.

- I. The Indicative, which expresses a fact, phenomenon, reality, as : the rose blooms, bloomed, will bloom ;
- II. The Subjunctive, which expresses what is imagined, supposed, conceived of, as : he may come, he might come notwithstanding ;
- III. The Imperative, which is used in direct expressions of the will, as : hear thou, teach thou.

§ 45. Infinitive, Participle, Supine, Gerund and Gerundive.

Besides the Modes, the verb has the following forms :

- a) The Infinitive, which is of an intermediate nature between the verb and the noun, as : cupio te adspicere, I desire to see thee (comp. cupio adspicere tui, I desire a sight of thee) ;
- b) The Participle, which presents the idea of the verb in the form of an adjective, as : puer scribens (the boy writing), filia amata (the daughter beloved) ;
- c) The Supine in um and u, which presents the idea of the verb in the form of a noun in either the Acc. or Abl. case, as: canes venatum duco, I take the dogs to hunt (to hunting,) or, res est jucunda auditu, the thing is pleasant to hear (in the hearing);

- d) The Gerund, which also presents the idea of the verb under the form of a noun, and indeed, in all the cases, as: Nom. scribendum est, we (one) must write, Gen. ars scribendi, the art of writing, or to write, Dat. scribendo aptus est, fit for writing, or to write, Acc. with a preposition, inter scribendum, while writing, Abl. scribendo exerceor, I am exercised by (in, etc.) writing;
- e) The Gerundive (or Part. Fut. Pass.), which presents the idea of the verb in an adjective form, precisely as the Gerund presents it in a substantive form, as: epistola scribenda est, the letter is to be written, and so through all the cases.

REMARK. The Indicative, Subjunctive and Imperative are called the finite or definite verb, because they always refer to a definite subject; the Inf. Part. Sup. Ger. and Gerundive, on the contrary, are called the indefinite verb, because these forms, on account of their meaning, do not admit of such a reference.

§ 46. Persons and Numbers of the Verb.

The verb has, like the noun, two numbers, Sing. and Plur., and three persons both in the Sing. and in the Plur., as: I, thou, he (she, it) and we, you, they, which are expressed by the endings, as: scribimus, we write.

REMARK. Those verbs which are used only in the third person Sing. are called Impersonal verbs, as: pluit, it rains, tonat, it thunders.

§ 47. Conjugation.

Conjugation is the inflection of a verb according to its Persons, Numbers, Modes, Tenses and Voice. The Latin language has four Conjugations, which are distinguished according to the ending of the Inf. as follows:

I. Conj.:	—āre, as: am-āre, to love,	Characteristic: ā
II. “	—ēre, “ mon-ēre, to admonish,	“ ē
III. “	—ēre, “ reg-ēre, to govern,	“ ě
IV. “	—īre, “ aud-īre, to hear.	“ ī.

REM. 1. In parsing a verbal form, the beginner should accustom himself to observe the following order: a) the person, b) the number, c) the mode, d) the tense, e) the voice, f) from what verb, g) the meaning. E. g. What kind of a verbal form is amātis? Amātis is Sec. Pers. Plur. of the Indic. Pres. Act. from the verb: amo, amāvi, amātum, amāre, to love.

REM. 2. Every verbal form consists of two parts, the stem, which is the ground-form of the verb, remaining unchanged through all its modifications, and the inflection-ending which varies to express the number, person, etc. The last letter of the stem is called the characteristic to which the inflection-endings are joined sometimes with and sometimes without change. In the paradigms of the verbs, the characteristic and inflection-endings are printed in italics.

§ 48. Formation of the Tenses.

In every verb there are four forms to be observed, from which, by adding different endings, all the remaining forms are derived, viz.:

1) Ind. Pres. Act.	2) Ind. Perfect Act.	3) Supine.	4) Infinitive Act.
I. amo	amāvi	amātum	amāre
II. moneo	monūi	monītum	monēre
III. rego	rexi	rectum	regere
IV. audio	audīvi	audītum	audire .

A. From the Indicative Present Active: amo; moneo; rego, capio (I take); audio, as the stem, are derived:

- a) Indicative Present Passive: amor; moneor; regor, capior; audior;
- b) Subjunctive Present Active and from this Subj. Pres. Pass.: amem; moneam; regam, capiam; audiam;—amer; monear; regar, capiar; audiar;
- c) Fut. Active and Passive: regam (es, et, etc.), capiam; audiam;—regar (eris, etc.), capiar; audiar;—amābo; monēbo;—amābor; monēbor;
- d) Indicative Imperfect Active and Passive: amābam; monēbam; regēbam, capiēbam; audiebam;—amābar; monēbar; regēbar, capiēbar; audiebar;
- e) Participle Present Active: amans; monens; regens, capiens; audiens;

f) Gerundive and Gerund: amandus, amandum; monendus; regendus, capiendus; audiendus.

B. Infinitive Active: amāre; monēre; regēre, capēre; audire, as stem, are derived:

a) Imperative Active: amā; monē; regē, capē; audi; and Imperat. Passive, which agrees in form with the Infin. Act: amāre; monēre; regēre, capēre; audire;

b) Infinitive Present Pass. of I, II. and IV. Conj.: amāri, monēri, audiri; the III. Conj. adds to the stem the ending i: regi, capi;

c) Subjunct. Imperf. Act. and Passive: amārem; monērem; regērem, capērem; audirem;—amārer; monērer; regērer; capērer; audirer.

C. From the Perfect Active: amavi; monui; rexi, cepi; audivi, as a stem, are derived:

a) Subjunctive Perfect Active: amavērim; monuērim; rexērim, cepērim; audivērim;

b) Indicative Pluperfect Active: amavēram; monuēram; rexēram, cepēram; audivēram;

c) Future Perfect: amavēro; monuēro; rexēro, cepēro; audivēro;

d) Infin. Perf. Act.: amavisse; monuisse; rexisse, cepisse; audivisse;

e) Subjunctive Pluperfect Active: amavissem; monuissem; rexissem, cepissem; audivissem.

D. From the Supine: amātum; monitum; rectum, captum; auditum, as a stem, are derived:

a) Partic. Perf. Pass.: amātus; monitus; rectus, captus; auditus;

b) Part. Fut. Act.: amaturus; moniturus; recturus; auditurus.

This verb is extensively employed in forming the tenses of the verb in Latin, both by furnishing various endings to the stem of the verb, and by being joined to the participle of the verb. Thus e. g. amav-istis, you have loved, is composed of the stem amav and estis (you are), amav-eram, of amav and eram, so: by amatus sum, I have loved, etc.

Quamdiu felix eris, multi tibi erunt amici. Tota civitas in summa laetitia fuerat, quum repente ingens terror omnium animos occupat. Pugna fuit atrocissima, propterea quod utriusque exercitus milites fortissimi fuerant. Ante belli initium in urbe fueramus. Demosthenis aetate multi oratores magni et clari fuerunt, et antea fuerant, nec postea defuerunt. Ante tres annos apud amicum fui, in cuius praedio super per duo menses fueratis. Haec res non profuit nobis, sed obfuit. Quo minus honoris apud Romanos erat poetis, eo minora studia fuerunt. Si quis virtutis compos erit, semper beatus erit. Quamdiu sorte mea contentus ero, felix ero. Qualis in alios fueris, tales hi in te erunt. Si in hac vita semper virtutis studiosi fuerimus, etiam post mortem beati erimus.

So long as you shall be fortunate, you will not want friends. The upright always benefit the upright. My enemies (immicus) have not injured me, but benefited. If men will be virtuous, they will be happy. So long as we shall be contented with our lot, we shall be happy. If men always shall have been virtuous, the reward of virtue will not fail them.

RULE OF SYNTAX. In questions, to which the asker expects an answer by yes or no, the interrogative particle ne is attached to the word upon which the emphasis of the question is placed, as: Fuistine heri in schola? wast thou in school yesterday?

Erasne in schola, quum heri domi tue eram? Eram. Miserne sapiens erit, quum pauper erit? Non erit. Laetusne, an tristis es? Unusne, an plures sunt mundi? Cur heri in schola non fuisti? Aegrotusne fuisti? Non, sed quia cum patre peregre eram. Fuerasne nuper in horto nostro? Deeritne tibi hominum laus, si semper probus fueris?

Were you in school, as* we were at your house yesterday? Yes (= we were). Will the wise be unhappy, if they shall be poor? No (= they will not be). No one of (gen.) us is the very same in old-age, which he was (perf.) [as] a young man. Pelopidas was in (perf.) all dangers. Aristides was in (perf.) the battle of Salamis (pugna Salaminica). Poets not merely delight, but also benefit us.

Yesterday I was (perf.) at thy house, but thou wast abroad. The avaricious in the abundance of all things, will be very poor. Thou, thy father and thy mother have benefited us much (multum). We, you and your sister were very joyful yesterday, as we were at your house. Were you yesterday abroad, as I was at your house? Yes (= we were). While my brother was in the garden, I was in the school. Were our soldiers in the battle? No (= they were not in it). We were (perf.) not at home yesterday, but abroad.

Our soul after death will be immortal. So long as we shall be contented with our fortune, we shall be happy. Where had you been yesterday, as I was at your house? We had been abroad. So long as thou hadst been fortunate, thou hadst had (= there were to thee) many friends. The more modest thou shalt be, so much the more agreeable thou wilt be to men. If I shall benefit others, they [also] will benefit me.

As (qualis) I shall have been to (in with acc.) others, so (talīs) they will be to me. If we shall have benefited others, they [also] will benefit us. If thou, in this life, shalt have zealously pursued virtue, thou shalt also, after death, be happy.

RULE OF SYNTAX. In questions which depend upon a foregoing sentence (indirect questions), the *subjunctive is always used, as: Narra mihi, ubi fuēris, relate to me, where thou hast been.—In indirect questions the enclitic ne is translated by whether, as: Dubito, laetusne sis, I doubt, whether thou art joyful.

Non sum nescius, qua mente tu et prius in nos fuēris, et nunc sis, et semper futurus sis. Non eram nescius, qua mente tu et prius in nos fuisses, et tum esses, et semper futurus esses. Qualis sit animus, ipse animus nescit. Deus non est nescius, qua mente quisque sit. Cogita, quantum nobis exempla bona prosint. Prae gaudio, ubi sim, nescio. Non intelligunt homines, quam magnum vectigal sit parsimonia. Non, quantum quisque prosit, sed quanti pretii quisque sit, pondera. Quo quisque animo futurus sit, nescio. Incertus eram, profuturusne tibi essem. Saepe ne utile quidem est scire, quid futurum sit. Pecunia, honores, valetudo quamdiu affutura sint, incertum est. Incertus eram, et ubi essetis, et ubi fuissetis. Narro tibi, et ubi heri fuerimus, et ubi cras futuri simus. Dubitamus, fuerintne milites nostri in pugna laude digni.

* As the subjunctive form is not so extensively used in English as in Latin, the Subj. must often be translated into English by the forms of the Indic. as will be seen in the following examples.—Tr.

Dubium erat, civesne nostri, an hostes in illa pugna victōres fuiissent.
 Dubium erat, profuissetne Alcibiādes patriae suae, an obfuiisset.

What to-day is and yesterday was (perf.), we know ; but what will be to-morrow, we know not. How long we shall be in this life, is uncertain. I knew perfectly well, both of, what state of mind towards us you then were, and had been previously, and always would be (= were about to be). I rejoice, when I think, how much you have benefited the state, both now and before, and still will benefit [it]. It was uncertain, where the enemies were and had been, and where they would be.

Adestōte omnes animis, qui adestis corporibus! Attenti este, discipūli! Homines mortis memōres sunt. Contenti estōte sorte vestrā! Parum provident multi tempōri futūro, sed plane in diem vivunt. Vir prudens non solum praesentia curat, sed etiam praeterita mente repētit et futūra ex praeteritis providet.

Scholars, not merely with (abl.) the body (plur.), but also with the mind (plur.), should be in the school. Man should be mindful of death.

In school, you should be attentive, O scholars! Thou shouldest be contented with (abl.) thy lot! Men should always be mindful of the precepts of virtue.

How many has the fear of the divine punishment reclaimed (= recalled) from crimes! The Germans have fought bravely against the French (= Frenchmen). So long as we frequented school, we pursued literature diligently. The Athenians called those sophists, who for the sake of ostentation or gain pursued philosophy. To-morrow we will celebrate the birth-day of our father. So long as you shall be fortunate, you will number many friends. The more any one (quis) shall love virtue, so much the more peaceful he will be. The more zealously thou shalt occupy thyself with literature, so much the more agreeable wilt thou be to thy teachers. When [their] native country shall be in danger, the citizens will fight spiritedly against the enemies.

As thou shalt have treated others, so will they treat thee. We have always loved our teachers. Because thou hast always kept the precepts of virtue, thou hast acquired for thyself great praise. As the hostile army were entering the city, all the citizens were full of (gen.) fear. You have fought spiritedly against the enemies. When we shall have migrated into the country, you will still be in the city. When the hostile army shall have laid waste the fields, it will assault the city itself. If you shall have adorned [your] souls with virtues, you will always be happy.

As the enemies had assaulted the city, a great part of the citizens had already moved out. While thou wast watching, me gentle sleep refreshed. While we were taking a walk in the garden, you occupied yourselves with literature. The whole day I have eagerly expected my friend. When the enemies shall have assaulted the city, the condition of the citizens will be very wretched. If I shall have carefully observed the precepts of virtue, the approbation of the good will never be wanting to me. Scarcely hadst thou read to me the letter of the friend, as he entered (perf.) my house (acc.). If thou shalt pursue literature diligently, I shall praise thee.

RULE OF SYNTAX. The conjunction quin, with the meaning that, takes the subjunctive after: non dubito, I do not doubt, nemo dubitat, nobody doubts, dubium non est, it is not doubtful, and quis dubitat? who doubts? See Syntax § 107, 3.

Non est dubium, quin cives, ubi patria in periculo futura sit, fortiter pugnaturi sint. Quis dubitat, quin e scholastica institutione pulcherrimus ad pueros redundaturus sit fructus? Dubium non est, quin bonorum animi post mortem in sedem beatorum migraturi sint. Non dubito, quin milites nostri hostes superaverint. Non dubitabam, quin vos patriam a servitute liberaturi essetis. Cui dubium erat, quin exercitus noster omnes labores et aerumnas facile toleraturus esset? Quis dubitat, quin Hannibal contra Romanos fortissime pugnaverit? Non dubitabitis, quin ego vos semper amaverim. Quis dubitat, quin bonos semper laudaverimus, malos semper vituperaverimus? Non est dubium, quin in omni vitae conditione fidem servaritis. Non dubito, quin litteris maximam operam navaris. Nemo dubitabat, quin hostes urbem expugnassent. Nemini civium dubium erat, quin pro patriae libertate acerrime pugnavissetis. Nemo dubitabat, quin omnem operam in eo collocavissimus, ut hostes superarem. Quum hostes urbem oppugnabant, non erat dubium, quin ingens terror omnium civium animos occupavisset. Nemo dubitabat, quin tu risum illum excitasses. Nemini eorum qui aderant, dubium erat, quin recte de illius libri argumento judicavissem.

It is doubtful to no one of those who are present, that concerning (de) the character of that man, thou hast judged correctly. Nobody doubts, that the enemies have taken the city. It is not doubtful, that from scholastic instruction the fairest advantages (= fruits) redound to the young. Who doubts, that we shall deliver the land from servitude? Nobody doubted, that all citizens, so soon as their native country should be in danger, would fight bravely. Who doubts, that you have raised a laugh? Nobody doubts, that our army will endure all the toils and hardships of war patiently. It is not doubtful, that the attacking of the city, has thrown all the citizens into confusion. No one of (gen.) us doubted, that our soldiers had overcome the enemies. No one of the Romans doubted, that Hannibal had fought very bravely against them (se). Who doubts, that we have bestowed all pains upon this (in eo), that we might overcome the enemy? Who doubts, that I have always loved thee? Nobody doubted, that we had always praised the good, [but] had always censured the bad. Who doubts, that I have kept my word (= fidelity)? Nobody doubted, that thou hadst occupied thyself earnestly with literature. To no one was it doubtful, that you had always kept the precepts of virtue.

Diligenter cura, mi amice, valetudinem tuam! Ne praepropere de rebus iudicâtes, o pueri! Ne dubita de animorum immortalitate! Perpetuo servato, mi fili, conscientiam rectam! Discipulus amato praepceptores. Laudatote probos homines, castigatote improbos! Omnes homines amanto deum.

Look out carefully, friends, for your health! Judge not precipitately concerning men and things, O boy! Doubt ye not concerning the immortality of the soul (plur.)! Scholars should love their teachers. Thou shouldest praise the upright, [but] reprove the wicked. You should always, my sons, preserve a good conscience.

How great is the wisdom of God who governs (= governing) the whole world! The larks sing as they fly (= flying). Man does not love God, when he does not observe (= not observing) the precepts of virtue. The power of virtue is very great, since it adorns (= adorning) the souls of men with the fairest ornaments. How great are the benefits of the sun, since it illuminates (= illuminating) the whole earth! The citizens fought spiritedly with the enemies, who were assaulting (= assaulting) the city. The hostile army came up in order to assault (= intending to assault) the city. The invincible Hannibal, his fellow-citizens (= citizens) recalled from Italy, that he might deliver (= about to deliver) his native country from the enemies.

RULE OF SYNTAX. The Gerund takes the same case as its verb. In the Nom. with est and the Dat. of the agent, it should be translated by: I (thou, he) must, ought, should, we (you, they) must, ought, should, etc.; but without the Dat. of the agent by: one (we) must, ought, should (comp. Synt. § 98.).

De animorum immortalitate nobis non est dubitandum. Obtemperandum est virtutis praeceptis. Propter belli calamitates multis civibus e patria in alienas terras migrandum est. Si beati esse studemus, diligenter nobis est elaborandum, ut in omni actione virtutis praecepta observemus. Quis dubitat, quin nobis pro patriae libertate pugnandum sit.

sollicito 1. I disturb.	impedio 4. I prevent.
sollicitus, a, um, disturbed, apprehensive.	impedimentum, i, n. hindrance; impedimento est, it is a hindrance.	divinus, a, um, divine.
expleo 2. I fulfil.		immānis, e, cruel. prohibeo 2. I prevent.		terrestris, e, earthly.
metuo 3. I apprehend, fear.	constantia, ae, f. firmness.	temēre, adv. inconsiderately, without reason.

RULE OF SYNTAX. The conjunction quominus with the Subj. stands after the verbs and phrases which signify a hindrance, and is to be translated into English by that.* (Comp. Synt. § 107, 2.)

* Or more elegantly, often, by the prepositions, of, from, to, with a corresponding modification of the words which stand in connection with it.—Tr.

Levitas animi multis puëris impedimento est, quominus eorum mores emendentur et ingenia litterarum studio conformentur. Militum ignavia obstabat, quominus hostilis exercitus superaretur. Unius ducis constantia obstabat, quominus cives ab immanibus militibus misere vexarentur. Terrestrium rerum cura saepe prohibet, quominus res divinae a nobis curentur. Infirmitas vocis et timiditas animi saepe oratori officunt, quominus laude dignus judicetur. Senectus non impedit, quominus litterarum studia studiose a nobis tractentur. Timiditas saepe impedit, quominus animus noster contra pericula, quae nobis imminet, praeparetur.

Weakness of voice stood in the way of your being accounted (= hindered you, that you should be accounted) a great orator. The firmness of the general alone prevents the citizens from being annoyed by the cruel soldiers. Already has levity been an hindrance to many boys, that their manners should be improved and their minds be formed by the study of literature. The cowardice of the soldiers hindered, that the hostile army should be overcome.

RULE OF SYNTAX. After the words and phrases which express fear or apprehension, ne with the Subj. is to be translated by that, and ut with the Subj. by that not. (Comp. Synt. § 106, 3.)

Piger discipulus semper metuit, ne a praeceptoribus castigetur. Metuo, ne a te vituperer. Timeo, ut victoria ab exercitu nostro de hostibus reportetur. Si tam fortiter contra hostem dimicare pergimus, non est periculum, ne ab iis superemur. Si officia vestra semper religiose explētis; ne metuite, ut omnibus probemini. In metu eramus, ut morbo liberaremini. Vehemens cura animos nostros sollicitabat, ne ab hostibus vexaremur. Sollicitus eram, ne in otio turbarer.

I was in apprehension that I should be censured by thee. I apprehended, that I should be disturbed in my ease. The soldiers were in apprehension that victory over the enemy would not be borne off. A violent apprehension (= care) disturbs our minds, that we may be annoyed by the enemies. Why did they apprehend, that they should not be delivered from sickness? If thou hast always fulfilled thy duties, do not fear that thou mayest not please (probor) all. If our army continues to fight so bravely against the enemies, there is no (= not) fear, that it may be overcome by them. Indolent scholars always fear, that they shall be punished by [their] teachers. We were in apprehension, that we should be accounted ungrateful by you. Not without reason so oppressive an apprehension seized you, that you would be annoyed by the enemies.

Si industrius es, laudator; sin piger, vituperator! Si leges civitatis migraveritis, multamini! Ager justo tempore arator et occator! Proditores patriae civitate spoliantor! Vos, o scelerati cives, ignominiam notamini! Leges divinae ab hominibus sancte observantor! Si quid peccaveris, aequo animo vituperare! Exoramini, o mei parentes! O mi puer, delectare litterarum studio! Precibus nostris exorare, o iudex! Ne flagitiis contaminamini!

Be prevailed upon by entreaty, my father! O my boys, delight yourselves (= be delighted) in (abl.) the study of literature. If you have committed a fault (fut. perf.) allow yourselves to be (= be ye) censured with equanimity! Thou shouldst not be contaminated with foul deeds. If you are diligent, you will be praised; but if you are indolent, you will be censured. Virtue should always be sacredly observed. The fields, at the right time, should be ploughed and harrowed. If thou transgresses (fut. perf.) the laws of the state, thou shouldst be punished. Thou, O wicked citizen, shouldst be branded with ignominy!

While Numa Pompilius reigned, the Romans were very prosperous. While the larks sing, we go to walk over (per) the plains. While Augustus reigned, the splendor of the empire was the greatest. When a just king administers the state, the laws also are just. When the swallows migrate into milder regions, winter approaches.

After the plains were laid waste, the enemies assaulted (perf.) the city. When the sacredness of the laws is violated, the foundation of the state is shaken. When the city had been taken, an immense conflagration was raised.

Dum ego pingēbam, tu scribēbas, et frater legēbat. Milites nostri castra muniēbant. Hostes aciem instruēbant.

Praeceptor gaudēbat, quod vos ejus praeceptis parebātis. Dum nos legebāmus, vos scribebātis et sorores acu pingēbant. Quum hostes urbem nostram obsidione cingēbant, cives eam custodiēbant. Tibi placēbas, aliis displicēbas. Dum tu dormiēbas, ego te custodiēbam. Omnes boni legibus divinis semper parēbunt. Quoad vives, bene vives. Dum tu dormies, ego te custodiam. Virtutis honorem nulla oblivio delēbit. Si virtutem colētis, aditus in coelum vobis patēbit.

We praise, we exercise, we lead, we instruct. You praise, you exercise, you lead, you instruct. They praise, they exercise, they lead, they instruct. We praised, we exercised, we led, we instructed. You praised, you exercised, you led, you instructed. They praised, they exercised, they led, they instructed. We will praise, we will exercise, we will lead, we will instruct. You will praise, you will exercise, you will lead, you will instruct. They will praise, they will exercise, they will lead, they will instruct. We rejoiced, that (quod) thou wast well. While we wrote, you read, and the brothers painted.

While the enemies were arranging the line-of-battle, our soldiers fortified the camp. The teachers rejoiced, that (quod) the scholars obeyed their (eorum) precepts. While I was singing, thou wast learning, and the sister embroidering. While the enemy surrounded our city with a blockade, we guarded it. You pleased yourselves, others you displeased. While you slept, we guarded you. So long as you shall live, you will live well. While you shall sleep, we will guard you.

Laudavi, exercui, duxi, erudivi, Lauda(vi)sti, exercuisti, duxisti, erudi(vi)sti. Laudavit, exercuit, duxit, erudivit. Graecia omnibus artibus floruit. Hostes aciem instruxerunt. Milites per totum diem sitiērunt et esuriērunt. Laudo vos, quod mentes vestras in litterarum studio probe exercuistis. Multas littēras hodie scripsimus. Natūra oculos tenuissimis membrānis vestivit. Duces cupiditates militum coērcuerunt. Bellum atrocissimum gessimus. Cur domūs vestrae pariētes coronis ornavistis et vestivistis? Cur tacuistis? Bellum urbis nostrae opes absumpsit. Cicēro conjurationem Catilinae detexit. Incendium totam fere urbem absumpsit.

We have praised, we have exercised, we have led, we have instructed. You have praised, you have exercised, you have led, you have instructed. They have praised, they have exercised, they have led, they have instructed. The general has arranged the line of battle before (ante) the city. The Greeks were (perf.) distinguished by (abl.) the glory of [their] arts and literature. I praise thee, that (quod) thou hast exercised thy mind properly in the study of literature. I had written the letter. The general has restrained the passions of the soldiers. We have carried on a very bloody war. Wherefore hast thou adorned and hung (= clothed) the walls of thy house with garlands? Why hast thou been silent? The wars have consumed our resources.

We had praised, we had exercised, we had led, we had instructed. You had praised, you had exercised, you had led, you had instructed. They had praised, they had exercised, they had led, they had instructed. Why hadst thou been silent? Scarcely had the enemies arranged the line of battle, as Caesar led out (perf.) the soldiers from the camp. The war had consumed the resources of our state. Thou hadst pleased thy teacher, because thou hadst always obeyed his precepts. You had injured that [man] greatly, because you had not restrained your rashness.

Quum in littëris exercëmur, animi nostri multarum rerum utilium cognitione augentur. Quum subito pericùlo terrëmur, non debemus extemplo de salute nostra desperare. Quoad littëris honos suus erit, Græci et Latini scriptores in scholis legentur. Si semper bene vixëris, ab omnibus diligère. Virtütis honos nulla oblivione delebìtur. Quum urbs ab hostibus oppugnabàtur, a civibus acriter defendebàtur.

When you are exercised in literature, your souls are enriched by (abl.) the knowledge of many useful things. When thou art frightened by (abl.) a sudden fear, thou shouldest not immediately despair of thy safety. The Greek and Latin writers are read in the schools. If you shall always have lived well, you will be esteemed by all. The city which was assaulted by the enemies, was defended spiritedly by the citizens.

The parents looked out [for this], that the manners of [their] children might be improved, [their] bodies exercised, [their] minds cultivated, [their] understandings instructed.

Quis nescit, quam praeclaris fructibus animi nostri in litterarum studiis augeantur? Timēmus, ne exercitus noster ab hostibus vincātur. Omnes cives metuebant, ne urbs ab hostibus obsidiōne cingerētur. Lacedaemoniorum leges id spectabant, ut laboribus erudirētur iuventus. Curae mihi est, ut a te diligar. Cives metuunt, ne castra ab hostibus ante urbem muniantur.

I doubt not, that the soul may be enriched with (abl.) excellent fruit in the study of literature. We feared, that our army might be conquered by the enemies. All citizens fear, that the city may be surrounded by the enemies with (abl.) a blockade. We look out [for this], that the youth may be instructed in (abl.) labors. We are anxious, that we may be esteemed by you. The citizens apprehended, that a camp might be fortified by the enemies before the city.

1) Indicative and Subjunctive Perfect, Pluperfect and Future Perfect Passive of all the Conjugations.

Milites ob fortitudinē a duce laudati sunt. Pueri in litterarum studiis gnaviter exerciti sunt. Conjuratio Catilinae a Cicerone detecta est. Oculi tenuissimis membranis a natura vestiti sunt. Cupiditates multum a duce fortissimo coercitae sunt. Tria bella atrocissima gesta sunt inter Romanos et Carthaginienses. Quum rex urbem intrabat, omnium civium domus coronis et floribus vestitae et ornatae erant. Maximo incendio tota fere urbs assumpta erat. Vix acies a Caesare instructa erat, quum hostes in unum locum convolverunt. Non eris dives, nisi divitiae a te contemptae erunt.

Non prius dormiēmus, quam negotia vestra finita erunt. Beati non eritis, nisi cupiditates vestras a vobis coercitae erunt. Simulac castra munita, erunt, milites se ad pugnam expedient. Labor voluptasque naturali quadam societate inter se juncta sunt. Multae urbes ab hostibus combustae sunt. Vix hostes conspecti erant, quum milites a duce e castris in aciem educti sunt. Metuebamus, ne urbs ab hostibus obsidione cincta esset. Dic mihi, quid tibi a sorore scriptum sit. Dic nobis, qua consolatione aeger amici animus lenitus sit. Dic, cur puer punitus sit. Metuo, ne milites subito periculo territi sint.

I have been tormented by (abl.) the most pungent pains. The enemies have been frightened by (abl.) sudden fear. The upright man has been loved and esteemed by all. The sick mind of the friend has been soothed by (abl.) our consolation. I doubt not, that the passions of the soldiers have been restrained by the bravest general. The soldiers have been led out of the camp by the general. I know not, why the boys have been (subj.) punished by you. We apprehended, that, (ne) the soldiers had been frightened by (abl.) the sudden danger.

I know not what may have been written you by the sister. We fear, that (ne) the city may be encompassed by (abl.) a blockade. The enemies were discovered (perf.) before (ante) the gates of the city. After my business (plur.) shall be concluded I will go to walk. So soon as the enemies shall be seen, we will get ready for battle. I doubt not, that riches have been despised by thee. We feared, that, by the conflagration, many houses had been consumed. We fear, that many cities have been burned up by the enemies.

m) Imperative, Infinitive and Participle Passive of all the Conjugations.

O puer, bene educâre, strenue exercêre, probe excolêre, diligenter erudire! O puer, bene educâtor, strenue exercêtor, probe excolîtor, diligenter erudîtor! Puer bene educâtor, strenue exercêtor, probe excolîtor, diligenter eruditor. Si quid peccavêris, aequo animo castigâre. Ne rerum difficultatibus a proposito deterremîni! Deus pie colîtor! Ne vincimîni cupiditatibus. Leges divinae ne contemnuntor. Imprôbi puniuntor. Temeritas ratione coërcêtor. O puer, strenue exercere in litterarum studiis! Bonus discipulus studet laudâri. Boni discipuli student exercêri in litterarum studiis. Sapientes semper ratione regi student.

Bonus discipulus litterarum cognitiône erudiri studet. Puer, bene educâtus, omnibus placet. Hostes territi in castris manent. Urbs, obsidione cincta, multis malis vexatur. Homo eruditus non solum sibi, sed etiam aliis prodest. Pueri bene educandi, strenue exercendi, probe excolendi, diligenter erudiendi sunt.

Scimus, mundum a deo gubernari. Audimus, castra ab hostibus ante urbem muniri. Constat, conjurationem Catilinae a Cicerone detectam esse. Speramus, vos rerum difficultatibus a proposito deterritum non iri.

O boys, be ye well brought up, vigorously exercised, properly cultivated, carefully instructed! O boys, you should be well brought up, vigorously exercised, properly cultivated, carefully instructed! Boys should be well brought up, vigorously exercised, properly cultivated, carefully instructed. If you shall have committed a fault in anything (quid), be reprov'd with equanimity. Be thou not frightened from thy purpose by (abl.) the difficulty of the thing. Be ye guided by (abl.) reason. Be thou not overcome by the passions. The divine law should not be despised. The impious [man] should be punished. The passions should be restrained by (abl.) reason.

O boys, exercise yourselves (= be ye exercised) vigorously in the study of literature! Good scholars seek to be praised. The good scholar seeks to exercise himself (= to be exercised) in the study of literature. The wise [man] seeks, always to be governed by (abl.) reason. Good scholars seek to be instructed in (abl.) the knowledge of literature. Well-brought-up boys please all. The frightened enemy remains in the camp. Cities encompassed by (abl.) a blockade are annoyed by (abl.) many evils. Instructed men benefit not merely themselves, but others also. The boy is to be brought up well, to be vigorously exercised, to be properly cultivated, to be carefully instructed.

We hear, that a camp is fortified by the enemies before the city. We hope, that the conspiracy will be detected. We believe that we have not been frightened from our purpose.

I rejoice, that thou hast always followed the precepts of thy teachers. I rejoiced, that thou and thy father were well. On this account (eo) he has displeased us, because he pleased himself too much. This thing has frightened me from my purpose, that thou hast wanted all courage. I rejoice, that you have maintained (tenere) well your opinion. We praise you, that you had always obeyed the precepts of your parents. We grieve, that thou hast displeased thy teacher. The father rejoices, that [his] sons have always shown themselves diligent scholars in school. I have grieved, that my counsel has displeased thee. The teacher praised me, that I had obeyed his precepts. We grieve, that we have not obeyed the precepts of our parents.

Legi divinae et humanae omnes parébunt, qui secundum naturam vivere studébunt. Si virtutis praeceptis semper parébis, in coelum tibi aditus patébit. Si ignaviâ torpebítis, praecláris rebus nunquam eminebítis. Si virtute carebímus, bonis non placebímus. Si cupiditates vestras coércueritis, in virtutis via nunquam vacillabítis. Quo quis magis mentem litterarum studio exercuérít, eo magis iis delectabítur. Quo plura beneficia parentibus nostris debuerímus, eo gratiores animos in eos habère debébimus. Si milites nostri fortes se in pugna praebruérint, victoria non erit dubia.

The more we shall have exercised our minds in the study of literature, so much the more shall we be delighted by (abl.) the same. If you shall not have obeyed the precepts of virtue, you will not please good men. If thou shalt have shown thyself an upright man, thou wilt please all the good. If I shall have afforded refuge and consolation to my enemies, they will restrain their anger against me.

Vide, ne ob pigritiam a praeceptoribus castigère! Paréte, pueri! Illud tenéte, nervos atque artus esse sapientiae, non temère credère! Impius ne audéto placare donis iram deorum! Pueri mentes littéris exercento! Ut oculus, sic animus, se non videns, alia cernit. Metus est opinio magni mali impendentis, et aegritúdo est opinio magni mali praesentis. Be silent, boys! See [to it], that, on account of [your] slothfulness, you are not censured by your teachers. Thou shouldst obey thy parents and teachers. The boy should exercise [his] mind in literature. The impious should not dare to appease the anger of God by presents. The citizens feared the threatening danger. Youth is a thing, destined (= about) ever to please, never to displease.

b) Passive of the Second Conjugation.

Quum docēmur, tacere debēmus. Quum optāmus, ne respublica misceatur, civium concordiam omnibus modis servare debēmus. Quum in schola diligens eris, dubitabisne, quin bonus discipulus a praeceptoribus habere? Quum nobiscum reputamus, quantis et quam praeclaris fructibus animi nostri in litterarum studiis augeantur, mirifice delectamur. Quum magnorum virorum laudes legimus, optamus, ut eadem gloria nos quoque digni habeamur. Quum militum crudelitas ducis consilio coercebatur, tota civitas laeta erat. Litterae, quum ob bellum diu jacuerunt, nunc, recuperata pace, eo acriore studio exercentur.

Quum hostes urbem oppugnarent, omnes cives maximo timore opplebantur. Quum acerbissimae calamitatis nuntio terrebar, omne meum perflugium ac solatium in te collocatum esse existimabam. Quum tristissimo de amici carissimi obitu nuntio graviter commovebare animo, etiam nos moerore opplebamur. Quum de culpa nostra a parentibus commonebamur, acerbis dolor animos nostros occupabat. Quum artes atque litterae in civitate nostra florēbunt, ejus splendor augebitur. Quum milites nostri de hostium adventu edocebantur, pugnandi ardore flagrabunt. Ne tum quidem ejulabo, quum acerbissimis doloribus torquēbor.

Quum milites seditionem concitassent, ducis consilio et virtute coerciti sunt. Quum hostes terribi essent et jam in fugam se darent, dux eos monuit, ut pristinae virtutis memores essent. Quum exercitus de hostium adventu edoceret, continuo summo pugnandi ardore flagruit. Ne tum quidem ejulavi, quum acerbisaimis doloribus torquerer.

When thou art taught, thou oughtest to be silent. The wise [man] is happy, even when he is tortured. When good scholars are exercised in literature, they are delighted. When I see by how great pains thou art tortured, I am deeply (= violently) moved (commoveo). When you consider by (= with) yourselves, how many (quot) and how great (quantus) toils and cares have been bestowed by your parents for your good (= welfare); you ought to be moved by (abl.) gratitude. When thou shalt see how actively I am exercised in the Latin language, thou wilt rejoice. As we were pressed by the severest (acerbus) misfortune, we placed (colloco) our whole hope in (in with abl.) our friends. As the enemy seemed to approach the city, each one (ususquisque) of the citizens was filled with fear. As you were informed of the arrival of the enemies, you were not frightened. As I read the life of Agricola, I was violently moved within (animus). As thou wast tortured with severe pains, I was filled with pity.

As the cruelty of the soldiers was restrained (subj.) by the wisdom and firmness of the general, [there] was (perf.) great joy in the city. As the city was assaulted (subj.) by the enemies, all the citizens were put in fear (perf.) As the camp of the enemies was moved (subj.), we exulted (perf.) As we were frightened from (subj.) our purpose by the difficulty of the thing, thou hast recalled us to the same. As I was moved (subj.) within (animus) by the sad news of the death of my friend, thy pity was very agreeable to me. As thou seemedst (subj.) to desert us, I was grieved (perf.) very much.

When the army shall be informed of the arrival of the enemies, it will burn with a desire to fight (gen. of Ger.). Wise men will be happy, even if tortured by the bitterest pains. When we shall be put in fear by the attack of the enemies, great danger will threaten our city. If thou shalt be famous (= partaking of virtue), thou wilt not even then complain, when thou shalt be tortured by the severest pains.

Ne rerum difficultatibus a proposito deterrere! Milites, ne hostium impetu perterremini! Puer, strenue exercetor in litterarum studiis! Milites, ne inani timore opplemor! Leges civitatis ne discordia civium miscerent! Territis hostibus, nostri milites victoriam reportaverunt.

Be ye not frightened from [your] purpose by the difficulty of the thing. Soldiers, you should not be put in fear by the attack of the enemies! The evil passions should be restrained by the reason. It is known, that all the powers of the body and of the soul are strengthened (= increased) by exercise.

While I was singing, thou wast learning, and the sister was painting. While we were writing, you were reading, and the brothers were playing. So long as Cicero lived, he occupied himself with (navo operam c. dat.) literature. So long as I live, I shall be mindful of this kindness. While the general arranged the army in order of battle, the enemies had drawn together all [their] forces. Wait, until we tell you, what the father has written. The general waited, until the enemies had placed the army in order of battle. I waited, until thou saidst to me what the father had written.

As soon as I had arisen (perf.), I went (perf.) immediately to you. After Caesar had led out (perf.) the soldiers, the enemies arranged [their] army in order of battle. Our soldiers will not betake themselves home, before that they have allured the enemies to battle. Before we trouble and torment our mind with solicitude, we ought to inquire what [it] may be, which vexes and troubles us. The enemies were repelled (perf.), before they had arranged the army in order of battle. Night overtook (perf.) us, before we had extinguished the conflagration.

Ignis urbem absumpsit. Mihi crede, nunquam vir perfectus fortunae maledixit. Nimum ne crede colōri! Fac, ut ante circumspecies, quibuscum edas et bibas, quam quid edas et bibas! Dic, quid patri scripsēris! O stulte, ne praedic futura! Ne credite mendacibus! Pueri, strenue litteras discitote! Puer in schola attendito! Principes civitatis concordiae consulunto! Difficile dictu est, quantopere conciliet animos hominum comitas affabilitasque sermonis. Mendāci homini, ne verum quidem dicenti, credere solēmus. Venio tibi dicturus, quid amicus mihi scripsērit. Deus, fabricator mundi, nulla re magis hominem separavit a ceteris animalibus, quam dicendi facultate. Ex discendo maxima ad nos redundat voluptas. Optimus est orator, qui dicendo animos nostros et docet, et delectat, et permōvet. Mores puerorum se inter ludendum simplicius detegunt. Hominis mens discendo et cogitando alitur. Tandiu discendum est, quamdiu vivas. Pulchrum est e virtute (conformably to virtue) vivere. Scisne, patrem scripsisse? Quis scit, se ad vespērum esse victurum? Speramus, nos vobis arcana elicituros esse.

Eat and drink thou, moderately. Trust ye not too much to color. Do thou well to try friends. Tell me, what the father has written thee. Boy, thou shouldst zealously learn literature. The boys should be attentive in school. It is incredible to say (Sup. in u), how bravely our soldiers have fought with the enemies. Lying men we are not even accustomed to believe, when they tell the truth (part.). We come in order to tell (= wishing to tell) thee, what our brothers have written (subj.) us. By diligently learning (gerund), scholars acquire for themselves the approbation of [their] parents and teachers.

b) Passive of the Third Conjugation.

(Concerning the conjunctions: quod, quia, quoniam, (because), see Synt. § 111.)

Quia semper e virtutis praeceptis vixisti, ab omnibus diligēris. Ci-

ves summa inopia urgebantur, quia omnes eorum facultates bello absumptae erant. Quoniam de hac re satis dictum est, jam accedamus ad novam. Cicero pater patriae appellatus est, quod ejus consilio et vigilantia conjuratio Catilinae detecta est. Omnes omnes urgebantur, quia metuébant, ne urbs ab hostibus obsidione cingeretur.

Multae fabulae a poetis fictae sunt. Gladiatores uncti decertabant. Apud Homërum omnia ita descripta sunt, ut quasi expicta videantur. Omnibus in animo quasi insculptum est, esse deum. Omnia sunt profecto laudanda, quae conjuncta cum virtute sunt, et, quae cum vitiis (sc. conjuncta sunt), vituperanda. Quoad urbs obsidione cingebatur, magno metu urgebamur. Milites cupide exspectant, dum a duce e castris contra hostes educantur. Cave, ne fallere! Timebamus, ne exercitus noster vinceretur. Nihil magis mihi curae est, quam ut a te diliger. Si ceditis, metuo, ne vincamini. Non dubito, quin fortiter a militibus defendamur. Quum milites nostri conspicerentur, hostes ingens pavor occupavit. Quoad honeste vives, omnibus diligere. Exercitus noster, quoad bonus dux ei praeerit, non vincetur. Ab omnibus contemneri, si officiis vestris deeritis. Quamdiu tu aberis, ego de te angar et cruciabor. Si tam fortiter pugnare pergemus, non vincemur. Postquam hostes conspecti erunt, nostri milites e castris educuntur. Postquam hordëum frictum erit, molis fragetur. Ubi poma decerpta erunt, a nobis edentur.

Take care (= be on thy guard), that thou art not troubled without reason. I fear that (ne) I shall be deceived. We are more anxious for nothing than that we shall be esteemed by you. If we give way, I fear that we shall be conquered. It often happens (accidit), that the good are injured by the bad. I was troubled, because I feared that I should be deceived. We feared that the city would be burnt up by the enemies. All desired (opto), that the conspirators might be discovered. We waited anxiously, until we were led against the enemies. The enemies did not doubt, that we should be conquered. Why didst thou fear, that thou shouldst be injured by us? So long as the city was surrounded by a blockade, you were oppressed with great want. So long as the enemies were seen, our [soldiers] remained in the camp. So long as the war was carried on, literature was in a low state. So long as the enemies besieged the city, we were troubled with great fear. As, lately, thou wast sick, thou wast very much troubled. If you shall continue to fight so bravely, you will not be conquered by the enemies. So long as you shall be absent, we shall be troubled concerning (de) you. Thou wilt be despised by all, if thou shalt neglect (desum) thy duties. Our soldiers will not be conquered, so long as a good general shall preside over them. Homer will always be read in the schools. As soon as the letter shall be written, we will take a walk with you. When the army shall be led out from the camp, it will fight with the enemies.

Regēre ratione! Ne angītor, amice! O cives, ne lucri cupiditate, sed virtutis studio regimīnor! Animi appetitus ratione reguntur! Juvēnis, litterarum morumque elegantia tinctus, omnibus placebit. Combustā urbe, omnes cives maximā miseriā vexantur. Romani multis rebus praeclare gestis summam sibi comparavērunt gloriam. Contemptā virtute, vita beata nulla est. Multi homines, omnibus fortunis per luxuriam consumptis et distractis, reliquam vitam miserrime agunt.

Demptā omni sollicitudine, laetitiae indulgeāmus! Isocrātes in diverso genēre dicendi nitūdus fuit et comptus. Aciem instructam dux contra hostes eduxit. Frumento ex finitūmis regionibus in urbem convecto, cives urbis obsessionem aequis animis expectavērunt. Caesar, contractis copiis in unum locum, hostium impētum expectāvit. Stricto gladio, dux milites contra hostes eduxit. Urbs, obsidione cincta, multis malis urgētur. Gloriā detractā, quid est, quod in hoc tam exiguo vitae curriculo tantis nos in laboribus exerceāmus?

Si bona existimatio divitiis praestat, et pecunia tantopēre expetitur; quanto gloria magis est expetenda! Justitia propter sese colenda est. Certum est, universum mundum divinā providentiā regi et administrāri. Quis ignōrat, innumerabiles urbes a Romanis destructas esse? Om-nes sciunt, viros bonos nunquam spe mercēdis adductum iri, ut faciūs aliq̄od perpētrent.

Be thou not conquered by the passions. Be ye governed by reason. Thou shouldst not be governed by the desire of gain, but by the pursuit of virtue. You should not be troubled, friends. The divine law should not be despised. Parents should be honored by children. I hope that all solicitude will soon be taken away from thee. The orations of Isocrates were splendid and adorned. The soldiers believed, that the troops of the enemies would be drawn together. The soldiers having been led out of the camp, fought (perf.) bravely with the enemies. In Homer, we see all things not described, but, as it were, painted out. Who does not know, that all the virtues are connected with each other (inter se). I hope, that you will be led to my views.

F) EXERCISES TO THE FOURTH CONJUGATION IN PARTICULAR.

Sic vive cum hominibus, tanquam deus videat; et videt. Cave, ne tanquam parva fastidias grammatica elementa! Philosophiae servire debemus, ut nobis contingat vera libertas. Nullus dolor est, quem non longinquitas temporis minuat ac molliat. Nihil magis mihi curae est, quam ut obediām praeceptis magistrorum meorum.

Quum milites nostri castra muniēbant, hostes aciem instruēbant. Dum urbem nostram custodiebāmus, hostis eam oppugnare non audēbat. Celeritas equitum nostrorum impediēbat, quominus hostis se ad pugnam expediret. Quum milites ducem sepelirent, ingens luctus omnium animos occupavit. Litterae tuae mihi tam gratae fuerunt, ut laetitia plane gestirem. Semper operam navavimus, ut orationem nostram verborum numerorumque jucunditate condiremus.

Nihil vos impeditimus, quominus negotia vestra finiretis. Nescivi, cur tantopere laetitia gestires. Scisne, cur hunc puerum puniverim? Nescio, unde hunc nuntium audiveritis. Dicam tibi, cur domum nostram corōnis ornaverimus et vestiverimus. Dic, cur ferieris hunc puerum.

Placebas praeceptoribus tuis, quia semper eorum praeceptis obediēras. Vix milites nostri castra muniērant, quum hostis conspectus est. Jam laetitiā gestieramus, quum repente tristissimus nuntius animos nostros summo moerore oplēvit. Quum milites totum diem siti-vissent et esurivissent, ne nocte quidem quieti indulgēre iis licuit. Quum hostis se ad pugnam expedivisset, milites nostri laetitiā gestiē-runt.

Non prius dormiam, quam negotia mea finivēro. Quum exercitus castra munivērit, se ad pugnam expediet. Si grammatica elementa fastidies, nunquam accuratam linguae Latinae cognitionem tibi comparabis. Si quid novi audiverimus, curabimus, ut brevi sciatis. Non dubitabam, quin, si semel philosophiam degustavisses, toto animo ei servitūrus esses. Ne garrī, puer! Audite, pueri: si praeceptoribus vestris obedieritis, a parentibus vestris praemiis ornabimini! Puer obedito praeceptoribus! Homo ne servito cupiditatibus! Milites urbem custodiunto!

Puer, in scholis garrīens, molestus est. Bonus discipulus semper praeceptis magistrorum obedire studet. Quis nescit, Ciceronem toto animo philosophiae servisse? Spero, vos grammatica elementa non esse fastidituros. Prohibenda est ira in puniendo. Optandum est, ut ii, qui praesunt rei publicae, legum similes sint, quae ad puniendum non iracundiā, sed aequitate ducuntur. Legendi semper occasio est, audiendi non semper.

Terra vestita est floribus, herbis, arboribus, frugibus. Urbs a militibus custoditur. Speramus, urbem a militibus custoditum iri.

To good parents, nothing is a source of greater care (est with dat.), than that they may instruct their children in (abl.) literature. Be on your guard, boy, that thou dost not chatter! I punished the boy, because he chattered. As the enemies were discovered, our soldiers were transported with (abl.) joy. So long as I was in school, I was anxious (= it was for a care to me), that I might obey the precepts of my teachers. Many with their whole soul, have given themselves up to (= served) philosophy. Often already has length of time abated the severest sufferings. We have kept in memory the precepts of our teachers.

Tell me, whence thou hast heard this news. I doubt not, that the teachers have punished the boys with (abl.) justice. The soldiers had hungered and thirsted the whole day. Scarcely had our soldiers got ready for battle, when the enemies were discovered (perf.). As the king entered into the city, all the citizens had adorned (= clothed) the houses with flowers and garlands. The soldiers did not doubt, that the enemies had already fortified [their] camp. I knew not whence thou hadst heard this news.

The good will always obey the principles of virtue. Length of time will abate thy suffering. The precepts of our teachers are always kept in (abl.) remembrance. When you shall have heard this news, you will be transported with joy. If we shall always have obeyed the principles of virtue, the approach to heaven will stand open to us.

Serve wisdom, not the passions. Do not chatter, boys. Thou shouldst not rage against (in c. acc.) the enemies, O soldier. You should obey [your] teachers and parents. The scholar should keep the principles of his teacher in remembrance. Men should not serve their passions. The boys, who chatter (part.) in school, are troublesome to the teacher. Soldiers ought (oportet) to guard the city. I hope that length of time will abate thy suffering. Hast thou heard, that the enemies have fortified the camp? We come in order to (sup. in um) guard the city. A thoughtless boy is difficult to instruct (sup. in u). We must (gerund) serve virtue.

PART FIRST.

Quis non admiratur splendorem pulchritudinemque virtutis? Dux milites hortatus est, ut hostium aciem pertubare conarentur. Jam hostes urbem oppugnare conati erant, quum repente a civibus propulsati sunt. Tum demum beatus eris, quum aspernatus eris voluptatem. Contemplamini praeclara virtutis exempla, quae in historia consignata sunt! Venio te comitatum in hortum. Somnia difficilia sunt interpretatu.

We admire the splendor and the beauty of virtue. The general exhorted the soldiers, that they should attempt to throw the line of battle of the enemies into confusion. I have accompanied the brother into the garden. The enemies have ventured to assault the city. Thou shouldst contemplate the noble examples of virtue, which are pointed out in history. The citizens apprehended, that the enemies might assault the city. I doubt not, that thou hast interpreted the dream rightly. Tell me, why thou hast not accompanied the father into the garden.

Artes se ipsae tuentur. Semper miserorum hominum miserebimur, Veremini, o pueri, senectutem! Fatetur, o puer, verum! Misere minor inopum! Discipuli verentur praeceptores. Non dubito, quin tuum praesidium mihi polliciturus sis. Cum magna voluptate intuemur praeclara virtutis exempla, quae in historia consignata sunt.

Quis nescit, quam multi eloquentiâ abutantur? Per multos annos pace fructi sumus. Omnes cives metunt, ne hostes urbem aggrediantur. Simulatque experrecti sumus, ad negotia nostra accedimus. Cives, libertatem adepti, summâ laetitiâ fruuntur. Succurre lapsis. Tam audacter cum amico loquere, quam tecum. Ne irascimur iis, quos amare debetis! Si virtutis viam semper sequemur, aditus in coelum aliquando nobis patebit. Munere tuo bene fungere. Metuo, ne amicus moriatur.

The arts themselves will always protect themselves. I doubt not, that thou wilt always pity the poor. Reverence, O boy, old age! The rich should pity the destitute. You should acknowledge the truth (=what is true,) O boys! A good scholar will always reverence his teacher. I doubt not, that thou hast promised thy protection to the destitute friend. Contemplate ye the noble examples of virtue, which are pointed out in history. Many have abused eloquence. We desire (opto), that we may enjoy peace. All the citizens apprehended, that the enemies might attack the city. You are fallen. You should speak with a friend as confidently, as with yourselves. Thou shouldst not be angry with those, whom thou oughtest to love. I doubt not, that thou wilt always follow the way of virtue. All know, how well thou hast always managed thy office.

Quum aegrôtus es, obsequi debes praeceptis medici. Stulti aliorum vitia cernunt, obliviscuntur suorum. Prima pueri commendatio proficiscitur a modestia. Concordiâ res parvae crescunt, discordiâ maximâe dilabuntur. Gloria virtutem tanquam umbra sequitur.

Ne blandire malis hominibus! Puer, ne mentitor! Natura hominibus multa bona largita est. Magnos homines virtute metimur, non fortunâ. Voluptas blanditur sensibus nostris. Postquam orator orationem finivit, omnes ejus sententiae assensi sunt. Omnia prius experiri verbis, quam armis, sapientem decet.

I doubt not, that thou wilt obey me. We shall never forget thee. Tell me, why thy father has proceeded to (in) Italy. We feared, that by (abl.) discord the resources (opes) of the citizens might go to ruin. Boys, you should not lie! Who does not know, how often the discourse of men deceives (= lies)! Measure men according to (abl.) virtue, not according to fortune. Always follow the way of virtue.

Boni viri non voluptate, sed officio consilia moderantur. Homo improbus aliquando cum dolore flagitâ sua recordabitur. Socrâtes totius mundi se incôlam et civem arbitrabatur. Disce libens: quid dulcius est, quàm discere multa? Discentem comitantur opes, comitantur honores. Ubi libido dominatur, innocentiae leve praesidium est. Eventus fallit, quum aliter accidit, atque homines arbitrati sunt. Atticus potenti Antonio non est adulatus. Nihil rite sine dei immortalis ope, consilio, honore auspicabere.

Venerāre deum, venerāre parentes. Virtutes majorum aemulamīni, vitia eorum aversamīni! In silvis, venātor venātur lepōres; in scholis, pueri, venamīni lepōres! Ubi res bona tractanda est, ne cunctātor! Discipūli bonos condiscipūlos imitantor, malos aversantor. Quotidie, puer, precātor a deo immortalī, ut servet tibi tuos parentes! Tardi ingenii est, rivūlos consecrāri, fontes rerum non videre. Nulla re tam laetāri soleo, quam meorum officiorum conscienciā. In ira moderāri animo et oratiōni, non mediōcris ingenii est. Nescisne, Socrātem in carcēre paucis diebus ante mortem jocātum esse? Quis speret, se auguratūrum esse ea, quae menti humanāe a deo sunt occultāta.

	facētus, a, um, delicate, witty.	nequicquam, adv. in vain, to no effect.

Aperte adulantem nemo non vidit, nisi qui admōdum est excors. Menti nihil est tam inimicum, quam voluptas; nec enim, libidīne dominante, temperantiae locus est. Caesar, cohortātus milites, ut acriter contra hostes dimicārent, urbem oppugnāvit. Aliorum miseriam consolātūri exempla laudare debemus vīrūm fortium, qui in acerbissimis fortunae tormentis non sunt indignāti sortem suam. Genus jocandi non profūsum, nec immodestum, sed ingenūum et facētum esse debet. A venatore insidiandum est apris. Multi legati congregāti sunt in urbem ad gratulandum nobis de recuperāta libertate. Quem neque gloria, neque pericūla excitant, nequicquam hortere: timor animi aures praeclūdit. Narra, ubi per tam longum tempus vagātus sis. Non dubitābam, quin hujus hominis consuetudinem aversātus esses. Non dubito, quin, istum adolescentem conspicātus, continūo de ejus ingenio praeclārum quiddam suspīcatūrus sis.

We rejoice at.(abl.) the joy of friends in like manner (aequae) as (ac) at our own (= ours), and grieve in like manner at [their] grief (= vexations). Be convinced that thou art dear to me, but that thou wilt be much (multo) dearer, if thou wilt rejoice in good principles. The example of the leader encouraged (perf.) the soldiers, that they might imitate him. I doubt not, that thou wilt ever assist the good, [but] wilt shun the bad. I doubted not, that he would sometime remember his foul deeds (acc.) with pain. Flatter thou not a powerful [man]! Be convinced that you will commence nothing properly without the aid, counsel [and] honor of God. I exhort thee, that thou shouldst imitate good men, [but] shun the bad. Relate to me, why thou hast been dissatisfied with thy fortune. I doubted not that the enemies had lain in wait for thee.

When thou pursuest history, O boy, thou shouldst contemplate both the examples of virtue and of vice, and emulate those, [but] shun these. In a good thing, thou shouldst not delay. The rich should lend aid to the destitute. The soldiers hasten, in order to lend aid (sup.) to us against the enemies. When evil desires reign (abl. abs.), there is no (= not) place for (dat.) virtue.

Magna est vis philosophiae, quum medetur animis, inanes sollicitudines detrahit, cupiditatibus liberat. Artes magnam nobis praebent praesidium, quum se ipsae per se tuentur singulae. Praeclare de patria merentur praeceptores, quum juventutem bonarum litterarum studiis informant.

RULE OF SYNTAX. When the conjunction quum expresses a supposed ground and may be translated by the causal since (seeing that,) or although, it is connected with the subjunctive. (Comp. Synt. 110, 1.)

Quum philosophia animis medeatur, totos nos penitusque ei tradere debemus. Omnes miserebantur vestri, quum non propter malitiam, sed propter fortunam in miseriis essetis. Quum milites pericula vererentur, non audēbant cum hostibus cōfligere. Quum is, qui verum amicum intuetur, tanquam exemplar aliquod intueatur sui; talem amicum aequae ac nosmet ipsos amare debemus. Avārus, quum in omnium rerum affluentia sit, fatebitur, se esse satiātum? Quum, virtutem satis in se praesidii habere ad vitam beātam, fateāre; etiam confitebēre, sapientem in cruciatibus beatum esse. Id si confessus eris, non dubito, quin professūrus sis, sapientem in omni vitae conditione beatum esse.

When we freely acknowledge our guilt, we more easily obtain pardon. Since you have acknowledged, that virtue may have in itself sufficient of (gen.) protection for a happy life, you will also confess, that the wise [man] may be happy under (in) tortures; and when you shall have confessed this, I doubt not, that you will freely acknowledge, that the wise [man] is happy in every condition of life. Scarcely had I acknowledged my fault to thee, as I obtained (perf.) pardon from thee. Thou hast acquired for thyself great praise, inasmuch as (quum) thou hast pitied the destitute citizens.

Miserere nostri! Medemīnor, O cives, inopiae nostrae! Suum quisque tuetor munus. Nemo, cunctam intiens terram, de divina providentia dubitabit. Cives, hostes urbem oppugnaturos esse, rati, eos acriter propulsare studuerunt. Venio meum praesidium tibi polliciturus. Omnibus modis a vobis inopiae civium medendum est. Adollescentis officium est, majores natu vereri. Quis nescit, te praeclare de republica meritum esse? Spero, te mei miserturum esse.

Reverende, O boy, old age! Pity ye me! Thou shouldst cure the want of others. The scholar should reverence his teacher. Shall we, when we contemplate (= contemplating) the whole earth, doubt as to (de) the foresight of God? Thinking (part. perf.), that thou hast promised me thy protection, I have not hesitated to undertake (accedere) the business. Believe me, who will freely acknowledge (part. fut.) what is true! Thou must remedy (Ger.) the want of thy friend. I hope, that thou wilt promise to me thy protection. It is beautiful, to remedy the want of others. Who does not know, that Cicero deserved nobly of the Roman state?

Ne ulciscimini inimicos vestros! Romāni Numīdis polliciti sunt, si perseverarent bello urgere Carthaginienses, se adnisiuros esse, ut bene cumulātam gratiam redderent. Nemo parum diu vixit, qui virtutis perfectae perfecta functus est munere. Simulatque experrecti sumus, visa in somnio contempnimus. Aristotēles, Theophrastus, Zeno, innumera- biles alii philosophi nunquam domum revertērunt. Nulla tam detestabilis est pestis, quae non homini ab homine nascatur. Non sum uni angulo natus: patria mea totus hic est mundus. Sunt ingeniis nostris semina innata virtutum. Hannibal, quotiescunque cum Romanis congressus est in Italia, semper discessit superior.

Animo elapso, corpus nihil valet. Valet apud nos clarorum hominum memoria, etiam mortuorum. Regia res est, succurrere lapsis. Proprium est stultitiae, aliorum vitia cernere, oblivisci suorum. Ut plurimis prosimus, eniti debemus. Irasci iis nefas est, quos amare debemus. Amicitiae, consuetudines, vicinitates quid habeant voluptatis, carendo magis intelligimus, quam fruendo. All wish, that they may reach (adipisci) old age, but when they have reached (= having reached), they complain of it. The soldiers tired out by the long march, gave themselves up to rest. Boys, you should follow the example of the good. We have enjoyed a long-continued peace. Common things escape easily from the memory, remarkable and new things remain longer. Many abuse without moderation leisure and literature. Those appear to me to have lived happily, to whom it has been permitted to enjoy the praise of wisdom. We favor those, who have entered upon the very same dangers which we have passed through. All strive after joy, but many do not know, whence they may obtain permanent (stabilis, e) and great joy. Alexander pursued (perf.) the enemies eagerly. Fortune is not merely blind itself, but it generally makes those blind also, whom it embraces. Man is not born for himself alone, but for his country and for his [friends], so that (ut) a very small part is left to himself. The condition of mortals has such (is) vicisitudes, that adversity (res adversae) springs from prosperity (res secundae), and prosperity from adversity. He lives the best, who obeys the laws not on account of fear, but follows them, because he thinks that this may be most salutary. In (abl.) the very same night in which Alexander was born, the temple of the Ephesian (Ephesius, a, um) Diana burned up.

Quam multi indigni luce sunt! et tamen dies oritur. Unde tandem tam repente nobis exoreris? Milites, si feroci impetu in hostem coorimur, victoria in manibus nostris est! Dum urbem oppugnare adorimur, hostes a tergo nos aggressi sunt. Suo quisque metu pericula metitur. Sapiens et praeterita grate recordatur, et praesentibus ita potitur, ut animadvertat, quanta sint ea quamque jucunda.

+ Cave, ne honores eblandiare! Oratores, priusquam exordiantur, quaedam praeloquuntur. In omnibus negotiis, priusquam ordiamur, adhibenda nobis est praeparatio diligens. Omnes cives domos suas floribus et coronis ornaverant et vestiverant, quia regem opperiebantur. Dum exercitus hostilis urbis domos privatas publicasque demoliebatur, cives maximo moerore opplebantur. Quum hostes praedam inter se partiebantur, nos vehementissimo impetu eos adoriebamur. Dux mili-

Ridiculi sunt, qui, quod ipsi experti non sunt, id docent ceteros. Omne animal se ipsum diligit ac, simulatque ortum est, id agit, ut se conservet. Ad hominum commoditates et usus tantam rerum ubertatem natura largita est, ut ea, quae gignuntur, donata consulto nobis, non fortuito nata videantur. Herodotus, multas terras emensus, multas quidem res prodigiósas narravit, sed eas non ipse ementitus est, sed alii, ex quibus audivit. Jam per tres menses opperti eramus amicum, quum nobis ejus mors nuntiata est. Repente Romanis Sulla exortus et atrocissimum bellum civile exorsus est.

Sapiens nunquam malis hominibus blandiétur, nunquam aliquid falsi ementiétur, nunquam fortunam experiétur, nunquam aliis calamitatem moliétur. Si celeriter hostem adoriémur, non est dubium, quin brevi tempore urbe potituri simus. Simulatque sol ortus erit, proficiscémur. Ne blandire malis hominibus. Ne opperimini fortunam! Hostes advolavérunt urbe potitum. Numens aequalis facilis est paritum. Sole oriente, profecti sumus. Coorta saeva tempestate, omnes nautas ingens pavor occupavit. Solem oriturum cum maxima voluptate spectamus.

The sun does not always rise and set in the very same place. Scarcely had the enemy been discovered, as we rose (perf.) and attacked (perf.) them spiritedly. Men measure the year by (abl.) the return of the sun.

Nothing prevented you, that you should begin your business. Three days long (= through three days) have we awaited the arrival of the friend. Every living being, as soon as it is born (= sprung), loves (diligo) both itself and all its parts. Many having travelled through many countries, have stated falsely many wonderful things. History relates, that Sulla arose (perf.) suddenly against (dat.) the Romans and began (perf.) the civil war. Tell me, why thou hast not assented to my opinion. Hast thou heard that the enemies have tried all [means], in order to possess themselves of (= ad with gerund) the city?

begin We will not begin a new business, before that the previous [business] shall have been completed. When the camp shall be fortified, the soldiers will attack the enemy. If thou shalt lie, nobody will trust thee, even if (etiāmsi) thou speakest (subj.) the truth. Our soldiers did not doubt, that, if they attacked (subj.) the enemy quickly, they might in (abl.) a short time possess themselves of the city. Await thou not fortune! Flatter ye not bad men! As the sun rose (abl. abs.), the soldiers marched against the enemies. The sun, on the point of rising (= about to rise), presents a splendid sight. I hope, that thou wilt never lie. All believed, that a storm would arise.

Periphrasis
§ 54. Periphrastic Conjugation.

By joining the verb esse with the participles and with the gerund, a new conjugation is formed, called the periphrastic conjugation; under this the following forms are to be noted:

1) Amatūrus, a, um sum, I wish, intend, am about to (will) love.

INDICATIVE.	SUBJUNCTIVE.
Present. amaturus sum, I am about to (will)	amaturus sim, I may be about to (will)

FIRST CONJUGATION.

§ 55. I. The Perfect with Reduplication.

REMARK. The reduplication in do, consists in repeating the first consonant of the stem with e, but in sto, in repeating the first two consonants of the stem with e, and then the s is dropped from the stem, hence: steti for ste-sti. Comp. spōdeo, spōpondi (§ 50).

1. Do, dēdi, dātum, dare, to give. The a of the stem-syllable is short throughout, as: dābam, dābo, dārem; except dās and dā.

So its compounds of which the first part is a word of two syllables, as: circumdo, circumdēdi, circumdātum, circumdare, to surround. Its compounds with monosyllables, on the contrary, have ēdi, -didi, -ditum, -dēre, and follow the third Conj., as: addiditum, additum, addere, to add.

2. Sto, stēti, stātum, stāre, to stand; (c. abl. to be gained at the expense of, cost).

Its compounds with monosyllabic prepositions have stēti in the Perf., as: adsto (I stand by), adstēti, but those compounded with dissyllabic prepositions retain the stēti, as: circumsto (I stand around), circumstēti. The Sup. of only a few of the compounds is used and is stātum; only praesto (to stand before, bestow), has both praestitum and praestātum. The Part. Fut. on the contrary, is always stāturus, as: praestaturus, constaturus, obstaturus, etc.

 derer of Alexander. What of (gen.) time is given to each one for living, with (abl.) this he should be contented. Who does not know, that Socrates surpassed (perf.) all the philosophers of antiquity in (abl.) wisdom? I fear, that the victory will cost us much blood. The body, as a garment, has been placed by God around (dat.) the soul. You should hold [your] parents very dear, because they have given (trado) life to you. Who is more thine, than [he], to whom, contrary to expectation, thou hast restored life (= safety)? History relates, that Hannibal, so long as he may have been in Italy, surpassed (perf. subj.)
 all the Roman generals. Since the general for (ex) a long time had not paid the soldiers [their] wages, a sedition arose (perf.) among them against him. I doubt not that thou wilt make good thy word (= fidel-

I have forbidden thee to go to walk, but precisely because (ob id ipsum, quod) I have forbidden [it], thou hast striven against (in) what has been forbidden (= the forbidden). The question concerning (de) the immortality of the soul (plur.), is nobly explained by Cicero in the first book of the Tusculan Disputations. Cicero applied (perf.) himself with [his] whole soul to the study of eloquence. Three hundred soldiers kept watch before the camp. Who does not know, that many nations and peoples were subdued by the Romans. If thou shalt have curbed thy passions (libido) and restrained (teneo) thy desires, thou wilt live happily. Already we were sitting (pluperf.) at the table, when suddenly a flame gushed forth (perf. of emico) from the roof. Scarcely had we retired (discedere) to sleep (= in order to recline, sup.), when the whole city resounded (perf. of persono) with discordant cries. Thy brother related to me, that it thundered (perf.) yesterday in (abl.) clear weather. As the doors had creaked (subj.), I doubted not (perf.) that thou wast coming (subj.).

perfrīcāre, to rub thoroughly.	atingo, tigi, tactum 3. to touch.	garrulitas, ātis, f. loquacity.
	peto, ivi, itum 3. to seek,	purus, a, um, pure.

solūtus, a, um, unbound est; summa aqua, vivus, a, um, living, summus, a, um, high surface of the water. fresh.

Verēor, ne refricuērim meis littēris desiderium ac dolōrem tuum. Dubium non est, quin tuis sceleribus reipublicae praeterita fata refricāturus sis. Tantālus summam aquam attingens, enectus siti fingitur a poētis. Nescisne, quantopēre garrūlus iste homo me garriendo enecuērit? Caius Marius quum secarētur, principio vetuit se alligari, nec quisquam ante Marium solūtus dicitur esse sectus. Agricōlae frumenta desecta in horrēa congērunt. Nisi libidines resecuēris, frustra studēbis beāte vivēre. Quis nescit, quantopēre Cicero patriam suam iuvērit? Non solum fortuna, sed etiam tua industria te in negotio tuo adjuvit. Si quid fortuna milites nostros adjuvērit, non dubitāmus, quin splendīdam de hostibus reportaturi simus victoriam. Exercitus maximis itineribus profectus est, cives obsidione cinctos adjuvum. Ne prius coena, quam manus lavēris. Corpus lavatūrus aquam puram e vivo flumine pete.

Boys, rise right early (bene mane), wash yourselves, and, when you have washed (fut. perf.), proceed immediately to your business. This (iste) man has vexed me to death by his loquacity. After the soldiers had marched (perf.) the whole day, they were (perf.) entirely exhausted by hunger and thirst. It is known, that the gladiators of the Romans and Greeks, rubbed (perf.) their bodies thoroughly with oil. If we shall be assisted (fut. perf.) by fortune, we shall bear off a splendid victory over (de) the enemy. It is known, that Cicero assisted (perf.) his native country very much (permultum). By (abl.) the war carried on between Caesar and Pompey, the recollection of the horrid (foedus, a, um) war of Marius and Sulla was (perf.) renewed. The farmers have already cut the grain. Unless the passions and desires are removed, we strive in vain to live happily.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

§ 58. I. Perfect:—ūi; Supine:—tum.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. Many verbs of the second Conj. have no Sup., viz. those from which adjectives in use, chiefly in īdus, are formed, as: horreo, ui, to shudder, horridus, hideous, paveo, pavi, to dread, pavidus, timid.

1. Arceo, arcui, (Sup. wanting), arcēre, to keep from.

The Part. artus, (strait), is used as an adjective. The compounds, in which a of the stem passes into e, follow monco, as: coērcēo, ui, itum, ēre, to keep together.

2. Dōcĕo, dōcui, doctum, dōcĕre (with two acc.), to teach.
3. Miscĕo, miscui, mixtum and mistum, miscĕre, to mix.
4. Tĕnĕo, tĕnui, tentum, tĕnĕre, to hold.
5. Torrĕo, torrui, tostum, torrĕre, to dry, bake.

II. Perfect:—ŭi; Supine:—um, only:

Censĕo, censui, censum, censĕre, to rate, judge.

So its compounds, but with the associate form of the Sup. in itum, as: recensĕo, recensui, recensum and recensitum, to examine; except succensĕre, (to be displeased), percensĕre (to examine accurately, go through), which have no Sup.

REMARK. Taedet (it disgusts), has together with taeduit, also taesum est, but this is not used in the classical language; the compound pertaedet, has in the Perf. only pertaesum est, e. g. pertaesum est (me) levitatis, whence by later writers pertaesus, a, um (c. gen. or acc.), disgusted.

III. Perfect:—ĕvi; Supinum:—ĕtum.

1. Delĕo, ĕvi, ĕtum, ĕre, to destroy.
2. Flĕre, to weep.
3. Nĕre, to spin.
4. The compounds of the obsolete plĕre (to fill), as: complĕre. Here belongs the compound of the obsolete ōleo (I grow):
5. Abōleo, abolĕvi, abolĭtum, abolere, to abolish; still this verb does not occur till after the Augustan period.

Finally we have in this class:

6. Cĭĕo, cĭvi, cĭtum, cĭere, to stir, raise.

So also the compounds, as: conciĕo, ĭvi, ĭtum, ĭere, or regular, according to the fourth Conj.: conciĕo, ĭvi, ĭtum, ĭere, to excite, excĭĕo, ĭvi, ĭtum, ĭere or excĭo, ĭvi, ĭtum, ĭere, to arouse, perciĕo, ĭvi, ĭtum, ĭere or perciĕo, ĭvi, ĭtum, ĭere, to stir up, raise; but, accĭo, accĭvi, accĭtum, accĭre, to send for, desire to come, is of the fourth Conj. alone.

IV. Perfect:—i; Supine:—tum.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. The short vowel of the stem is lengthened in the Perf.

1. Cāveo, cāvi, cautum, cāvĕre, to be on one's guard

(ab aliquo, against some one); to give security, provide.

2. Fāveo, fāvi, (fautum rare) fāvère (c. dat.), to be favorable, to favor.
3. Fōveo, fōvi, fōtum, fōvère, to warm, nurse, cherish.
4. Mōveo, mōvi, mōtum, mōvère, to move.
5. Vōveo, vōvi, vōtum, vōvère, to vow, offer.

Also the following without a Supine :

6. Ferveo, fervi and ferbui, fervère, to boil.
7. Pāveo, pāvi, pavere, to dread (commonly expavescere).
8. Connīveo, (-nīvi and -nixi, neither of them used in good prose), connīvère, to close (the eyes), wink.

sedo 1. I quiet.
amplexor 1. I embrace.

Cicerōnem Minerva omnes artes edocuit. Gravitas modestiae mista maxime admirabilis est. Tot tantisque negotiis distentus sum, ut mihi non liceat libere respirare. Nescisne, quot labores, quot pericula, quot miseras milites in itinere sustinuerint? Si virtus te a malis cupiditatibus arcuerit, vita tua beata erit. Cicero, per legatos cuncta edoctus, praetoribus imperat, ut in ponte Allobroges deprehendant. Quo minus animi se admiscuerint atque implicaverint hominum vitiiis atque erroribus, eo facilius illis ascensus in coelum erit. Simplex animi natura est, nec habet in se quicquam admixtum. Vescimur uvis sole tostis. Horno multas uvas torruimus. Cato, Carthaginem delendam esse, censuit. Quinto quoque anno tota Sicilia censa est.

Duae urbes potentissimae, Carthago et Numantia, a Scipione sunt delatae. Graecorum Romanorumque gloriam nulla unquam oblivio delavit, nec unquam delabit. Deus bonis omnibus mundum implevit, mali nihil admiscuit. Dum abest dux, milites seditionem civerunt.

Nuntiata clades majorem, quam res erat, terrorem in urbe excivit. Catilina neque vigiliis, neque quietibus sedabatur: ita conscientia mentem excitam vastabat.

Cautum est legibus, ut mortui post tertium diem sepelirentur. Non dubito, quin semper ab hominum impurorum consuetudine cavēris. Non ignoro, te mihi meisque semper fuisse. Pulli a matribus exclusi foteque anxie custodiuntur. Dubitabisne, quin summum semper in te fovērim amorem? Me sic amplexati estis, sic in manibus habuistis, sic fovistis, ut nunquam illius diei obliviscērer. Brutus et Cassius, interfectores Caesaris, ingens bellum movērunt. Ingratus est, qui, remōtis testibus, agit gratias. Multi Romanorum imperatores pro salute patriae sua capita vovērunt. Eodem anno tria templa sunt publice vota et dedicata.

Cicero was instructed (perf.) by Minerva in (acc.) all literature. Tell me, who has taught thee (acc.) grammar. If thou shalt have joined (= mixed) dignity with modesty, thou wilt please all. If thou hadst abstained from the intercourse of bad men, thou wouldst now be contented with thy lot. If virtue had restrained thee from bad passions, thou wouldst now be happy. By the war all [things] have been confounded (= mixed). Knowest thou not, that we have dried many grapes this year? Under the reign of Augustus (abl. abs.) the Roman empire was rated (perf.).

All the senators judged (perf.), that they should (Gerund) lend aid to the citizens of the city destroyed by the enemies. It is known, that Scipio destroyed (perf.) two very powerful cities, Carthage and Numantia. Tell me, why thou hast wept. The death of the good king has been lamented (= wept) by all the citizens. When I shall have spun two hours, I will take a walk. The world is filled (complere) by God with all good [things], nothing of evil is intermixed. When thou hast filled thy body with food and drink, thou wilt not use thy mind well. Hast thou heard that the soldiers have raised a conspiracy against the general? It is not [possible] to quiet a mind stirred up by an evil conscience.

: When I shall have sent for (accio) you, you will not delay to come. My brother, sent for by a letter, will come to-morrow. Philip, king of the Macedonians (Macēdo, ōnis), sent for (perf.) Aristotle [as] teacher for his son Alexander. The laws have established, that (ut) the dead should be buried after the third day. I know, that thou hast always been on thy guard against the intercourse of bad men. It was established (perf.)*by the will of the king, that grain should be distributed to the destitute citizens on his birth-day. I rejoice, that (quod) thou hast always favored me and my studies. I know that thou hast always cherished great love for (in c. acc) me. The hen anxiously guards the chickens which she has hatched and nursed. An immense war was raised (perf. of moveo) by Brutus and Cassius, the murderers of Caesar. I doubt not, that thou hast been greatly moved (commovere) by the news. History relates, that many generals of the Romans, offered (perf.) their heads for the welfare of their country. Livy relates, that in the same year three temples were vowed and dedicated at the expense of the state.

§ 59. V. Perfect—i; Supine—sum.

(Comp. Prelim. Rem. to § 58. IV.)

1. Prandeo, prandi, pransum, prandere, to breakfast.
2. Sēdeo, sēdi, sessum, sēdere, to sit.

So the compounds with dissyllabic prepositions, as: circum-sēdeo, ēdi, essum, ēre, to sit around, to beset; but those with monosyllabic prepositions change the ē of the stem-syllable into ī, as: assīdeo assēdi, assessum, assidēre, to sit by.

3. Strīdeo, strīdi, (Sup. wanting), strīdere, to whiz.
4. Vīdeo, vīdi, vīsum, vīdere, to see.

Also the following, of which the Perf. takes the Reduplication.

5. Mordeo, momordi, morsum, mordere, to bite, afflict.
6. Pendeo, pependi, (Sup. uncertain), pendere, to hang.
7. Spondeo, sponondi, sponsum, spondere, to promise, to become responsible for.
8. Tondeo, totondi, tonsum, tondere, to shear, cut.

The reduplication in these verbs, consists in a repetition of the first consonant of the stem with the first vowel of the stem. Concerning sponondi, see § 55. Rem.—The compounds of these verbs follow the simples, but are without the reduplication, as: admordeo, admordi, admorsum, to bite into; praependeo, pendi, to hang before, respondeo, respondi, responsum, to answer; detondeo, detondi, detonsum, to shave off.

VI. Perfect:—si; Supine:—tum.

1. Augeo, auxi, auctum, augere, to increase.

2. Indulgeo, indulsi, (indultum rare), indulgēre, to be indulgent, to give one's self up to.
3. Lūgeo, luxi (without Sup.) lūgēre, to mourn, lament.
4. Torqueo, torsi, tortum, torquēre, to twist, torture.

ficos in suos amicos visum iri, si locuplētent eos quacunq̄e ratione.
Ne prius de re aliqua judica, quam eam diligenter pervidēris. Epistōlae tuae valde me momorderunt. Si quis a cane rabiōso morsus est, rabies eum occūpat. Quoad tu locutus es, puer ab ore tuo pependit.
Spondistīne pro amico? Spondi. Multa a Laelio et in senatu et in foro vel provisā prudenter, vel acute responsa sunt. Cicero narravit, Dionysium, ne tonsōri collum committēret, tondere filias suas diligāmus.

Callisthēnem Alexander non tantum necāvit, sed etiam torsi. Romaxime luxerunt.

Come to me to day, in order to breakfast (sup.). When we shall have breakfasted, we will take a walk. Our city has already been beset three months by the enemies. The enemies have beset the whole city. Hast thou already seen the friend? no, but I hope that I shall see him to-morrow. I grieve, that my letter has afflicted thee. I fear that the dog will bite me. So long as thou hast been absent, we have felt anxiety for thee (pendere animis de te). My friend has not yet indeed become responsible for me, but I hope that he will become responsible for me. I have heard with great pleasure, that your friend has answered your letter quickly. The captives have cut (= sheared) neither the beard nor the hair for (ex) three months.

History relates, that Callisthenes was (perf.) not only killed by Alexander, but before also was tortured. The soldiers wrested (perf.) a dagger from the hands of the assassin. Catiline emboldened (= increased) [his] fierce mind and [his] consciousness of foul deeds by wicked arts. By the discourse of the generals, the courage of the soldiers was increased (perf.). I rejoice, that thou hast not been indulgent towards (dat.) the faults of thy son. Thou knowest, how very much we have lamented the death of our friend.

§ 60. VII. Perfect :—si ; Supine :—sum.

5. Rideo, risi, risum, ridere, to laugh.
6. Suadeo, suasi, suasum, suadere, to advise.
7. Maneo, mansi, mansum, manere, to remain.
8. Jubeo, jussi, jussum, juberè, to bid, command, order.
9. Haereo, haesi, haesum, haerere, to hang, stick.

The following also without a Supine :

10. Algeo, alsi, algere, to suffer from cold, freeze.
11. Fulgeo, fulsi, fulgere, to glitter, lighten.
12. Turgeo, tursi, turgere, to swell.
13. Urgeo, ursi, urgere, to press, oppress.
14. Frigeo, (frixi rare) frigere, to freeze.

Dux mitibus verbis excitos militum animos permulsit. Legendo Virgilit carmina animus meus mirifice oblectatus et permulsus est. Ita jucunda mihi hujus libri confectio fuit, ut omnes absterserit senectutis molestias. Non prius ad te veniam, quam luctum omnem abstersero. Detersane jam est tabula? Quadraginta milia librorum Alexandriae¹ arserunt. Non dubito, quin brevi tota Germania bello arstrata sit. Quis est, cui semper arriserit fortuna? Nescio, cur a te derisus sim. Sic mihi persuasi, sic sentio, non esse animos nostros mortales. Quis credat, cives pacem dissuasuros esse? Quis confidit, semper sibi illud stabile et firmum permansurum esse, quod fragile et caducum sit? Romanorum gloria usque ad nostram memoriam remansit. Lycurgus convivari omnes cives publice jussit. Non qui jussus aliquid facit, miser est, sed qui invitus facit. Persuasum mihi est, memoriam hujus atrocissimi belli non modo in hoc populo, sed etiam in omnium gentium sermonibus semper haesuram esse.

Milites in itineribus multos labores perpassi sunt, sudaverunt et alserunt. Superatis hostibus, nova spes salutis civitati affulsit. Pater litteris me ursit, ut primo quoque tempore litteras ad se darem. Quomodo in viro latebit scintilla ingenii, quae jam in puero eluxit! Tu me tantis beneficiis auxisti, quanta nunquam ausus sum optare. De amici tui comitate valde gavisus sum. Athenis² optimo cuique accidere solitum est, ut in exsilium pelleretur.

The poems of Virgil have delighted and charmed my mind wonderfully. The orator hoped, that he should soothe the excited minds of the citizens by mild words. Hast thou wiped off the table? it has already been wiped off. I give (ago) thee very great thanks, that thou hast removed from me all pain by thy consolation. Under the reign (imperare, abl. abs.) of Napoleon (Napoléo, onis) nearly all Europe burned (perf.) with war. I hope, that all citizens, will burn with a desire, to fight (gen. of gerund) for the safety of [their] country. Who knows, whether fortune will always smile upon him (sibine). I know not, why you have derided me. I have not dissuaded the peace, and have been convinced, that neither will you dissuade it. We hope, that our souls will remain after death. Tell me, why thou hast persisted in thy opinion. The general ordered the soldiers to attack the city. The soldiers, having been commanded (part. perf. pass. of jubeo) to assault the city, forthwith executed the command (= what had been commanded). I fear, that this pain will ever stick in my mind. The remembrance of (gen.) this bloody war, has remained (= stuck) in the minds of all.

The hunters have sweated and frozen. After it has lightened, it thunders. The soldiers have pressed the enemies very much. From the countenance of the man, shone (perf.) dignity and moderation. I have rejoiced, that (quod) thou hast dared to speak thy opinion freely. The Carthaginians were accustomed (perf.) formerly to use elephants in war.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

§ 61. I. Perfect :—si; Supine :—sum;

a) The stem ends in d or t:

1. Claudo, clausi, clausum, claudere, to close.

In the compounds au passes into û, as: inclûdo, ûsi, ûsum, ûdère, to include.

2. Divido, divisi, divisum, dividere, to divide.

3. Laedo, laesi, laesum, laedere, to hurt.

In the compounds ae passes into i, as: illido, isi, isum, idere, to strike against.

4. Lûdo, lûsi, lûsum, ludere, to play.

5. Plaudo, plausi, plausum, plaudere, to clap.

So also applaudo (I applaud); in the remaining compounds au passes into ô, as: explôdo, ôsi, ôsum, ôdère, to clap off, drive off.

6. Râdo, râsi, râsum, radere, to shave, shear.

7. Rôdo, rôsi, rôsum, rodere, to gnaw, slander.

8. Trûdo, trûsi, trûsum, trudere, to thrust.

9. Vâdo, vâdere, to go; without Perf. and Sup.

But the compounds have both, as: evâdo, evâsi, evâsum, evâdere, to come out, escape.

To these succeed the following:

10. Cedo, cessi, cessum, cedere, to give way.

- 11. Mitto, misi, missum, mittere, to send.

12. Quätio, (Perf. wanting,) qu a s s u m, quättere, to shake.
The compounds change qua into cü and form the Perf., as:
decütio, decussi, decussum, decüttere, to shake down.
- b) The stem ends in g, e, or ct :
13. Mergo, mersi, mersum, mergère, to plunge.
14. Spargo, sparsi, sparsum, spargère, to scatter (sow).
In the compounds a of the stem passes into e, as: conspargo, ersi, ersum, ergère, to besprinkle.
15. Tergo, tersi, tersum, tergère, to wipe, (kindred form of tergere § 60. VII 3).
16. Figö, fixi, fixum, figère, to fix.
17. Flecto, flexi, flexum, fectère, to bend.
18. Necto, nexui, nexum, nectère, to unite, plait.
19. Pecto, pexi, pexum, pectère, to comb.
20. Plecto, (plexi), plexum, plectère, to plait.

c) Finally, the two following belong here.

21. Præmo, pressi, pressum, præmere, to press.
In the compounds ë of the stem before m passes into i, as:
comprimo, essi, essum, imère, to press together.
22. Fluo (for fluvo), fluxi, fluxum, fluère, to flow.

The Romans closed (perf.) the temple of Janus twice after the reign of Numa. If it is conceded to me by thee, that there is a God, thou must confess that the world is managed by his counsel. What thou hast promised, thou must hold to (tenere, gerundive). The idea (= notion) of God, is impressed upon (abl.) the souls of all men by nature herself. Men, by whom crimes have been committed, are disquieted by the goads of conscience. God has connected all parts of the world together (inter se). Hast thou heard, that grain has been distributed to (dat.) the poor by the king? A virtuous (= partaking of virtue) man will be happy, even when he shall have lost all the gifts of fortune. Plato believes, that anger and passion are separated from the reason and understanding. The general has divided all the troops into four parts. It is not doubtful, that a soft and effeminate life will, in a short time, enfeeble all the powers (= nerves) of virtue. Knowest thou not, that the faithless friend has deceived me? Hast (= yesterday) evening, the actors were (perf.) applauded by all. Hast thou heard, that lately all the actors have been hissed and clapped off? Many think, that, if they have scraped together (subj.) much gold, they may be happy. The heads of the captives were sheared (perf.) by the soldiers. What misery has brought thee (= thrust thee down) into so great grief? That (iste) man hast justly been thrust from the house.

I hope, that we shall escape the danger. When once (quando) a (aliquod) dream has turned out (evadere) true, many men believe, that this has not happened by chance. The sun has driven away the mists. All dangers which threatened the state, are dispelled by the wisdom and bravery of the general. I hope, that thou wilt soon emerge from the misfortune into which fortune has plunged thee. Immortal souls have been placed (= sown) by God, in mortal bodies. Our soldiers attacked (perf.) the enemies dispersed and put them to flight. All the cares and thoughts of Cicero were turned upon the welfare of the republic. I know, that thou wilt never deviate from the path of virtue through wickedness. For (dat.) whom is this crown plaited? I believe there is a great multitude of men assembled in the city, in order to behold (sup.) the public games. It is known, that the Romans of later (posterior) times, ran into (diffuere) luxury.

§ 62. II. Perfect:—ŭi; Supine:—tum,—itum,—sum.

1. Cōlo, colūi, cultum, cōlère, to attend to, cultivate, honor.
2. Consūlo, consūlūi, cōnsultum, consūlère, to deliberate; c. acc., to consult some one; c. dat., to consult for some one.
3. Occūlo, occūlūi, occultum, occūlère, to conceal.
4. Rāpio, rapūi, raptum, rāpère, to snatch, plunder, carry off.
Compounds:—rīpio,—rīpui,—reptum,—rīpère, as: arripio, I seize, appropriate to myself.
5. Sēro, sērūi, sertum, sērère, to join together.
6. Tezo, texūi, textum, texère, to weave.

7. Alō, alūi, altum, ālère, to nourish.

8. Cumbo, cūbūi, cūbitum, cumbère, to lie.

The simple verb is not used, but its compounds, as: discumbère, to lie down.

9. Depso, depsūi, depstum, depsère, to knead.

10. Frēmo, frēmūi, frēmītum, frēmère, to murmur, grumble.

11. Gēmo, gēmūi, gēmītum, gēmère, to groan, deplore.

12. Gigno, genui, genitum, gignère, to beget, produce.

13. Mōlo, mōlūi, mōlitum, mōlère, to grind.

14. Pinso, pinsūi, pinsītum (and pinsum, pistum), pinsère, to bray, pound.

15. Pōno, pōsūi, pōsītum, pōnère (in c. abl.), to place, lay.

Pōno arises from pōsino, and pōsui from pōsivi.

16. Vōmo, vōmūi, vōmītum, vōmère, to vomit.

17. Frendo, frenđui, fresum or fressum, frendère, to gnash.

18. Mēto, messūi, messum, mētère, to mow, reap.

REMARK. The following want the Sup.: sterto, stertui, stertère, to snore; strēpo, ui, ère, to rustle, sound, resound; trēmo, ui, ère, to tremble; the compounds of pesco, as: compesco, compescui, compescère, to restrain; vōlo, ui, velle, to wish; and the compounds of cello except percellère: excello, antecello, praeello I excel, Pf. cellui; excelsus and praeccelsus (lofty, distinguished) are used adjectively.

XCVII. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Arripere, to seize upon.	depugnare, to fight (for life or death).	sepulcrum, i, n. grave, burial.
diripere, to plunder.	jurare, to swear.	tegumentum, i, n. cover, covering.
conserrere, to join together, to be hand to hand.	suo, sui, satum 3. to sew.	commutatio, omnis, f. change.
demetere, to cut down.	progredior, gressus sum, gradi 3. to step forth.	migratio, omnis, f. migration.
demittere, to let down, let fall.	caerimonia, ae, f. sanctity, religious ceremony.	recordatio, omnis, f. recollection.
disserrere, to discuss, speak.	praetorium, i, n. general's tent.	mutus, a, um, dumb.
ingignere, to implant.		supremus, a, um, last.
praepondere, to place before.		maturre, adv. speedily.

In omnibus negotiis, priusquam aggrediare, *consulto opus est*¹; ubi autem consulueris, maturre rem ipsam aggrudere. Socrates supremo vitae die multa de immortalitate animorum disseruit. Manibus consertis, milites nostri fortitudine excelluerunt. Animus moderatur et movet id corpus, cui praepositus est. Zeno in una virtute beatam vitam posuit. Natura ingenitum homini cupiditatem verum inveniendi. Omnibus animalibus a natura ingenita est conservandi sui custodia. Alexander, victor tot regum atque populorum, irae succubuit. Spero, te semper maximo studio in litteras incubituum esse. *Caerimonias sepulcrorum homines, maximis ingeniis praediti, non tanta cura colissent, nisi haereret in eorum mentibus, mortem non interitum esse omnia delentem, sed quandam quasi migrationem commutationemque vitae, quae in claris viris et feminis dux in coelum soleret esse. Si ingenium tuum artibus litterisque excultum erit, et tibi et aliis utilis eris. Dux, ne milites animum demitterent, vulnera sibi inflicta occuluit. Ne crede, ullum peccatum deo occultum manere. Tegumenta corporum vel texta, vel suta sunt. Quis pulchram illam vestem texuit? Oratio tua totos nos ad se rapuit. Quaerit Socrates, unde animum arripuerimus, si nullus fuerit in mundo. Expugnata urbs ab hostibus direpta est. Scipio pugnavit cum Hannibale, prope nato in praetorio patris, fortissimi ducis, alto atque educato inter arma. Cui non locus ille mutus, ubi alius aut doctus est, cum grata recordatione in mente versetur? Agricolae frumentum non solum jam demessuerunt, sed etiam demessum in horrea congregaverunt. Ipse Hector toto pectore tremuit, quum Ajax multa cum hilaritate progredieretur depugnaturus cum illo.

The Romans sent (perf.) ambassadors, in order to consult (part. fut. act.) the oracle. I know, that thou hast cared for me and mine. The soldiers were (perf.) hand to hand with the enemies. The soldiers swore, that they would not desert [their] general. God has placed the soul before the body. Nature has produced gold, silver, brass, iron, in short (denique) all metals for the use of men. The desire to find (gen. of the gerund) the truth (= what is true), is implanted in the human race by nature. I rejoice, that thou hast applied thyself with so great zeal to literature. I doubt not, that the wise [man] will never sink under the pains of the body. If thou shalt have cultivated thy genius by arts and literature, thou wilt be useful both to thyself and to [thy] native land. I hope, that thou wilt always honor thy parents. Why hast thou concealed thy faults from me? didst thou think, that thou wouldst always conceal them from me? The enemies, after they had taken the city, (abl. abs.), killed (perf.) the citizens and plundered their goods. The wise [man] will be happy, even when all the gifts of fortune may be snatched from him. Gratefully we remember the place (acc.)-where we were nourished and brought up.

§ 63. III. Perfect :—vi; Supine :—tum.

The stem of the Pres. is strengthened by n or r :

1. Lī-n-o, levī, litum, linere, to besmear.
2. Sī-n-o, sivi, situm, sinere, to let, permit.
3. Sē-r-o, sevi, satum, serere, to sow.

In the compounds, a of the Sup. passes into ī, as: consēro, consēvi, consitum, consērere, to seed down, plant.

The following have suffered a transposition of letters in the Perf. and Sup. :

4. Cer-n-o, crevi, cretum, cernere, to sift, discern.

The Perf. and Sup. occur only in the compounds.

5. Sper-n-o, sprevi, spratum, spernere, to spurn.
6. Ster-n-o, strāvi, stratum, sternere, to spread.

Finally there belong here the following in sco :

7. Cre-sc-o, crevi, cretum, crescere, to grow.

So: accrescere, to grow to, increase, excrescere, to grow up, decrescere, to decrease, recrescere, to grow again, concrecere, to grow together; the remaining compounds want the Sup.

8. Nō-sc-o, nōvi, nōtum, noscere, to be acquainted with.

So: internoscere, to distinguish, ignoscere, to pardon, pernoscere, to become thoroughly acquainted with, praenoscere, to become acquainted with before; but, cognoscere, to become acquainted with, agnoscere, to perceive, praecognoscere, to become acquainted with previously, recognoscere, to become acquainted with again, to review, form the Sup. in itum, as: cognitum.

9. Pa-sc-o, pãvi, pastum, pascere, to pasture, feed.
10. Qui-sc-o, quiãvi, quietum, quiescere, to rest.
11. Sci-sc-o, scivi, scitum, sciscere, to decide.
12. Sue-sc-o, suevi, suetum, suescere, to be accustomed.

Multi homines, labori assidūo et quotidiāno assuēti, quum tempe-non cognitum? Populus Romanus eo magnitudinis (= ad eam magnitudinem) crevit, ut viribus suis conficerētur. Quid est tam jucundum cognitū atque auditū, quam sapientibus sententiis gravibusque verbis ornata oratio? Quo brevior, eo dilucidior et cognitū facilius Nature has implanted in us a love for (gen.) our body. Where thou hast not sown, there is not a crop. Believe not, that thou wilt put an end to (= prostrate) the detraction (plur.) and envy (plur.) of the wicked.

We feared, that the soldiers had prostrated all [things]. If thou hast (fut. perf.) spurned virtue, thou wilt not be happy. Tell me, why my advice has been spurned by thee. Boy, hast thou eaten the bread spread with butter by thy mother? I thought (= believed) that mother had not spread it. It has been determined by the general, to attack the enemy. Before thou shalt have separated thyself from the wicked, thou wilt seek in vain the intercourse of the good. It is certain, that the rivers which have decreased in winter, will increase in the spring. I am accustomed (perf. act. of consuesco), to read something from (gen.) Homer daily. Numa Pompilius was adopted (perf.) by the Roman people [as] king. It is known, that the Roman people adopted (perf.) the sacred rites of Ceres from the Greeks. Cicero, deprived of public offices, found satisfaction in the study of literature. When thou shalt have become intimately acquainted with my brother, I doubt not, that thou wilt perceive his preëminence. The sheep have eaten down the herbs of the field. The shepherd drives (agère) the sheep to pasture (= in order to pasture, sup.).

§ 64. IV, Perf.:—īvi; Supine:—ītum (like the fourth Conj.).

1. Cūpio, cūpīvi, cūpītum, cūpĕre, to desire, wish.
2. Pĕto, pĕtīvi, pĕtītum, pĕtĕre, to seek, strive after something, to attack something; ab aliquo, to request of some one.
3. Quaero, quaesīvi, quaesītum, quaerĕre, to seek.
In the compounds, ae passes into i, as: exquiro, isīvi, isītum, irĕre, to examine, trace out.
4. Rūdo, rūdīvi and rūdi, rūdītum, rūdĕre, to roar.
5. Tĕro, trīvi (for terīvi), trītum (for terītum), tĕrĕre, to rub.

The following also in esso:

6. Arcesso, arcessīvi, arcessītum, arcessĕre, to bring.
7. Capesso, īvi, ītum, ĕre, to seize.
8. Facesso, īvi, ītum, ĕre, to make (negotium facessĕre, to make trouble; to vex); to take one's self off.
9. Incesso, īvi, (Sup. wanting,) ĕre, to attack.
10. Lacesso, īvi, ītum, ĕre, to provoke.

Saepe homines res, quas vehementer cupiverunt, adepti fastidiunt. Audistine, ut leones rudiverint? Bellum ita suscipiatur, ut nihil aliud, nisi pax quaesita videatur. Quum omnem antiquitatem memoriae repetiveris, tria vix amicorum paria invenies, qui alter pro altero vitam deponere parati erant. Ne judica de re prius, quam eam accurate exquisiveris! Erechthēi filiae cupide mortem expetiverunt pro vita civium. Omnis Romanorum philosophia repetita est a Graecis. So-crâtes totam vitam atque aetatem contrivit in emendandis aliorum moribus. Praecepta virtutis, quamvis contrita sint et communia, tamen a paucis observantur. Constat, bello Punico secundo Hannibalem Italiae opes attrivisse. Importûnus iste homo multa mihi facessivit negotia. Non dubito, quin nova lege civibus negotium facessitum sit. Nisi milites propere ex urbe facessivissent fugamque capessivissent, cives eos armis incessivissent. Vix hostes milites nostros ad pugnam lacesivērunt, quum arma capessivērunt eosque incessivērunt. Legimus, Romanos saepe consules suos ab aratro arcessivisse. Multa sacra, ab exteris nationibus adscita atque arcessita, Romani religiosissime coluerunt.

Scarcely had the lion roared, when all the other (ceterae omnes) beasts took (perf.) flight. The soldiers, provoked by the enemies, wished (perf.) to fight, and asked (perf.) of the general, that he would lead them (se) forth from the camp against the enemies. We have sought peace, not war. Do not judge concerning a thing, before it shall have been sufficiently examined by thee. History relates, that death was sought by the daughters of Erectheus for the life of the citizens. We read, that the consuls were brought from the plough by the Romans. It is known that the Romans have brought many sacred rites from foreign nations. As soon as the enemies attacked (perf.) our soldiers, they seized their arms and fought. I have taken myself so hastily from the city, because troublesome men vexed (perf.) me daily. I fear, that thou hast provoked the friend by thy licentious jests. It is known, that the power (opes) of Italy was (perf.) formerly wasted by Hannibal.

§ 65. V. Perfect:—i; Supine:—tum.

a) The stem ends in b or p:

1. Cæpio, cæpi, captum, cæpere, to take, seize, receive.

Compounds:—cipio, cæpi, ceptum, cipere, as: percipio, I perceive, incipio, I begin.

mus. Nemo est tam immānis, cujus mentem non imbuērit deorum opinio. Puēri animum tenērum virtutis praeceptis imbuimus. Cogitatio, omnes res humanas fragiles et caducas esse, omnes meas molestias extenuavit et diluit. Quae observata sunt in usu ac tractatione dicendi, haec ab hominibus doctis verbis designata et partibus distributa sunt. Divitiae, quae ad extēris nationibus Romam confluerunt, morum disciplinam severitatemque dissolverunt. Stipendiis, quae dux militibus promisērat, non persolutis, seditio concitata est.

The passions ought to be subjected to the reason. If thou shalt have spent thy life according to (ex) the precepts of virtue, the entrance to heaven will stand open to thee. It is hard to retain (tenere) friendship, when thou shalt have fallen from virtue. God has set the soul over the body. Some doubt, whether the world may be made by chance (ne whether, attached to casu) or (an) by the divine reason. It was uncertain, whether the Romans had (subj.) conquered, or had been conquered. Then (tum) first (demum) will the soul enjoy a happy life, when it shall have deserted the body. The enemies have broken (rumpere) the concluded league. When anything has been done wrong by a philosopher, it is so much the more base, because he teaches (= professes) the art of life. If any one (quis) has taken (fut. perf.) from us liberty, the light of life will be taken from us. Caesar, after the line-of-battle of the enemy was broken and scattered (abl. abs.), led his soldiers back into the camp. Thou wilt not enjoy a peaceful life, before that thou shalt have subjected the passions to the reason. The defenceless citizens were (perf.) deserted by the soldiers, in the very (ipse) crisis of danger. It is known, that the Romans destroyed (perf.) Carthage.

The soldiers fled because they feared (perf. of metuo), that they should be conquered by the enemies. The metals, which nature has hid in (abl.) the earth, are dug up by man. Who is not imbued with the belief in (gen.) God? Parents, who have imbued the minds of their children with the principles of virtue and have instructed them in literature, deserve well, not only of (de) their children, but also of the state. We have weakened the wine by (abl.) water. I hope that this reflection will weaken all thy troubles. Already the powers of our soldiers were diminished, when the enemies made (perf.) an attack. By the riches, which flowed together (perf.) to (acc.) Rome after the destruction (abl.) of Corinth, the ancient discipline and severity were relaxed (perf.).

Since the general had not paid [their] wages to the soldiers for (per) two months, a sedition was excited (perf.) in the camp. Hast thou heard, that the city has concluded a league with the enemies, but that they have broken (frangere) it? After the troops were collected (abl. abs.), the general determined (perf.) to attack the camp of the enemies. I believe, that I have sufficiently disproved thy reasons.

§ 66. VI. Perfect :—i; Supine :—sum.

a) The stem ends in d or t :

1. Cando in compounds, as: accendo, accendi, accensum, accendere, to kindle, inflame.
2. Cudo, cudi, cusum, cudere, to forge.
3. Edo, edi, esum, edere, to eat.
4. Fendo in compounds as: defendo, defendi, defensum, defendere, to defend.
5. Fodio, fodi, fossum, fodere, to dig.
6. Fundo, fudi, fustum, fundere, to pour.
7. Mando, mandi, mansum, mandere, to chew.
8. Pando, pandi, passum, pandere, to spread.
9. Prehendo, prehendi, prehensum,prehendere, to grasp.
10. Scando, scandi, scansum, scandere, to mount.

In the compounds :—scendo, —scendi, —scensum, —scendere, as: adscendere, to ascend, scale, descendere, to descend.

11. Sido, sidi, (Sup. wanting), sidere, to sit.

In the compounds :—sido, —sedi, —sessum, —sidere, as: considerere, to sit down.

12. Strido, stridi, (Sup. wanting), stridere, to hiss.
13. Verto, verti, versum, vertere, to turn.

Finally, there belongs here the neuter passive :

14. Fido, fisisum, fidere, to trust.

So: confidere, to confide in, diffidere, to distrust, despair.

b) The stem ends in l or r :

15. Vello, velli, vulsum, vellere, to pluck.
16. Psallo, psalli, (Sup. wanting), psallere, to play the lyre.
17. Verro, verri, (Sup. wanting), verrere, to sweep.

REMARK. It is to be noticed, that the stem-vowel of these verbs, when short in the other parts, is long in the perf. The two following verbs form an apparent exception :

Findo, fidi, fissum, findere, to split, (so also its compounds),

Scindo, scidi, scissum, scindere, to cut (so also its compounds). But both these verbs originally took the reduplication. The same is true of the compound: percello, perculi, perculsum, percellere, to strike violently (from the obsolete cellere, to impel). See § 62, II. Rem.

offundere, to flow against, diffuse, spread over.	digerere, to dispose, digest.	velum, i, n. sail.
	inscribere (c. dat.) to inscribe, write upon.	furor, oris, m. madness.
		vetustas, atis, f. age.
		conspectus, us, m. sight.
		antiquitus, adv. anciently, formerly.

Constat, Tyrionum colonias paene toto orbe terrarum diffusas fuisse. In morte portum nobis paratum [esse] et perfugium putemus. Quo utinam velis passis perveni liceat! Hannibal patriam defensum ex Italia revocatus est. Nihil proficiunt praecepta, quamdiu menti error offusus est. Beate vivendi cupiditate incensi omnes sumus. Ingens nummorum numerus hoc anno proventus est. Aegritudo animum meum laceravit, exedit planaque confecit. Epigrammatis, monumento inscripti, litterae vetustate exesae erant. Milites urbem, ab hostibus oppugnatum, acerrime defendunt. Antiquitus magna auri argentique vis in Hispania est effossa. Milites, furore capti, ducem confoderunt. Equus repente corruit consulemque lapsum super caput effudit. Cibos mansos ac prope liquefactos demittimus, quo (= ut eo) facilius digerantur. Quo magis virtutis vim animo et cogitatione comprehenderimus, eo magis eam admirabimur. Proditores urbis deprehensi in conspectu omnium civium necati sunt. Nonne vides omnium ora atque oculos in te conversos? Multi facultatem dicendi ad hominum perniciem convertunt.

	scrupulus, i, m. anxiety.	doubtless.

Quocunque te vel oculis, vel animo convertēris, divinae bonitatis plena esse omnia, intelliges. Alexander, rex Macedōnum, Gordii nodum ense diffidit, scilicet diffusus, eum a se solūtum iri. Quam Hannibal Alpes transgredērētur, multa ingentis magnitudinis saxa diffusa sunt. Quis tibi vestem discidit? Quid? discissāne est? Pompēii terrae motu desederunt. Quis nescit, apud Romanos eloquentiam ad summum honorem ascendisse? Caesar, militum virtuti confusus, sine mora hostilem exercitum adortus est. Littērae tuae omnem scrupulum mihi ex animo evellerunt. Est boni regis officium, quum republicam labefactatam convulsamque videt, opitulari patriae.

The goodness of God is diffused through (abl.) the whole world. The sails are spread. Superstition has spread (offundere) darkness over (dat.) the souls of men. The king has coined a great quantity of money this year. My mind is torn and consumed by grief (aegritudo). When we shall have eaten, we will take a walk. The city, which was assaulted by the enemy, was (perf.) very bravely defended by the citizens. Anciently, the Spanish (Hispanus, i) dug up much gold and silver (= much of gold and silver). By thy bravery, thou hast turned all eyes and minds upon (in) thee. Never has a wise [man] trusted to the stability of the gifts of fortune, but rather, has always distrusted them. It is known, that the knot of Gordius was not loosed by Alexander, but severed by the sword. The general was stabbed by the soldiers, because he ventured to quiet their sedition.

How often has the faculty of speaking (gen. of ger.) been turned to (ad) the destruction of men! The enemies have broken down the bridges. Mountains and cities have been sunk down by earthquakes. We had already descended from the mountain, as we heard (perf.), that you were ascending (subj.) it. All anxiety has been removed (evellere) from my mind by thy letter. Who does not know, that the long war has shaken the state violently? Caesar by a few words inflamed the soldiers for the battle.

§ 67. VIII. Perfect with the Reduplication.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. The Reduplication consists here, in those verbs of which the first vowel of the stem is i, o, or u, in the repetition of the first consonant of the stem with this vowel, but with the remaining verbs, in the repetition of the first stem-consonant with e.

1. Cido, cecidi, casum, cadere, to fall, to happen.

Compounds:—cido, cidi, casum, cidere; so: occido, I go to ruin, incido, I fall upon and recido, I fall back; the others want the Supine, as: concido, idi, idère, to fall together.

2. Caedo, cecidi, caesum, caedère, to fell, kill.

Compounds:—cido,—cidi,—cisum,—cidère, as: occido, I kill.

3. Cāno, cecini, cantum, canère, to sing.

Compounds:—cīno,—cīnui,—cinère, as: conciño, ui, ère.

4. Curro, cucurri, cursum, currère, to run.

Most of its compounds are both with and without the reduplication.

5. Disco, didici, (Sup. wanting,) discère, to learn.

So also its compounds, as: perdisco, perdidici, perdiscère, to learn thoroughly.

6. Fallo, fefelli, falsum, fallère, to deceive.

Fallit me, it escapes me.—The Part. falsus is commonly used as an adjective, false. Compound: refello, refelli, (Sup. wanting), refellère, to refute.

7. Pango, pepigi, pactum, pangère, to fasten, to bargain, agree to on condition.

Compounds:—pingo,—pēgi,—pactum, pingère, as: compingo, to fasten together.

8. Parco, peperci, parsum, parcère (c. dat.), to spare.

9. Pārio, peperi, partum, pārère, to bear (ova parère, to lay eggs), to acquire. Particip. Fut. pariturus (for partūrus).

10. Pello, pepuli, pulsum, pellère, to drive, repel.

Compounds:—pello,—pūli,—pulsum,—pellère, as: expello, expūli, expulsum, expellère, to drive away.

11. Pendo, pependi, pensum, pendère, to suspend, weigh, to pay, compensate.

The compounds have no reduplication, as: appendo, appendi, appensum, appendère, to hang to, append.

12. Posco, poposci, (Sup. wanting,) poscère, to demand.

So also its compounds, as: exposco, exposcosci, exposcère, to demand of, request of.

13. Pungo, pupugi, punctum, pungère, to prick, harass.

Compounds:—pungo,—punxi,—punctum,—pungère, as: interpungo, to distinguish.

14. Tango, tetigi, tactum, tangere, to touch.

Compounds:—tingo,—tigi,—tactum, tingere, as: attingo, atigi, attactum, attingere, to touch, reach.

15. Tendo, tetendi, tentum and tensum, tendere, to stretch, spread, extend (tendere insidias, to lay snares).

The compounds are without the reduplication and generally with the Sup.:—tentum, as: contendo, contendi, contentum, contendere, to draw together, exert one's self, strive.

16. Tundo, tundi, tunsum, tundere, to beat, stun.

Compounds:—tundo,—tudi—tunsum—tundere, as: contundo, contudi, contusum, contundere, to break in pieces, crush.

REM. 1. The two following verbs have the reduplication in the Pres. and retain it in the other tenses:

bībo, bībi, bibitum, bibere, to drink (so also its compounds), sisto, sūti, stātum sistere, to place, stop (so its compounds).

REM. 2. The compounds of dare with monosyllabic words (comp § 55, II, 1.) also belong to this class, as: addo, addidi, additum, addere, to add.

populari, to lay waste.	epulae, arum, f. a meal, feast.	praesto, adv. present.

Et discas oportet, et, quod didicisti, agendo confirmes. Male parta male dilabuntur. Ut hirundines aestivo tempore praesto sunt, frigore pulsae recedunt; ita falsi amici sereno vitae tempore praesto sunt; simulatque hiemem fortunae viderint, devolant omnes. Quid casurum sit, incertum est. Quod cuique obigit, id quisque teneat. Clitum amicum senem et innoxium a se occisum esse, Alexander dolēbat. Ingenūas didicisse fideliter artes, emollit mores, nec sinit esse ferus (eos). Non tam utilitas, parta per amicum, quam amici amor ipse delectat. tiae, noctu populabatur agros, quod dierum essent pactae, non noctium indutiae. Dux, quam urbem cepisset, aedificiis omnibus, publicis et privatis, sacris et profanis, sic pepercit, quasi ad ea defendenda, non expugnanda cum exercitu, urbem intrasset. Urbe expugnata, milites, furore capti, juraverunt se non aetate confectis, non mulieribus, non infantibus parsuros esse. Ovorum inter se similitudo est in proverbio; tamen Deli* fuerunt complures, qui, permultas gallinas alentes, quum

Graeciae civitates, dum imperare singulae cupiunt, imperium omnes perdidērunt. Perditi rebus omnibus, ipsa virtus se sustentat.

The Gauls (Gallus, i,) have learned from the Greeks, to surround [their] cities with walls. If any one has acquired (fut. perf.) riches in a bad way (male), he will also lose them in a bad way. The thing has turned out otherwise than (atque) I had expected. Alexander, seized (capere) by anger, killed (perf.) [his] friend Clitus, an old man. Thy friendship has always afforded me the greatest pleasure. The faithless friend has deceived me. After my sister had sung (perf.) alone (solus), we all sang together (perf.). It is known, that Scipio demolished (perf.) Numantia. The old oak, which stood before (ante) our house, was (perf.) felled yesterday. Since Cleomenes had agreed upon a truce of thirty days with the enemy, he laid waste the fields by night, because he had agreed upon a truce of days, not of nights. We have heard, that peace has been agreed upon (= bargained) with the enemy. The ship having struck against a rock, made (perf. of facere) shipwreck.

The citizens of the city hoped, that Caesar, who had already spared other captured cities, would also spare theirs. It is not to be doubted, that our army, which under the conduct of a bad general (duce malo imperatore) has acquired for itself great praise by its bravery, under the conduct of a good general, will acquire for itself still (etiam) greater praise. A victory gained by treachery, redounds (= is) to (dat.) the conqueror not for praise but for disgrace. The rashness of Catiline was crushed by the prudence of Cicero. The dart will be discharged (emittere) so much the more violently, the more (magis) the bow has been drawn together (contendere) and drawn up (adducere). As Caesar entered (ingredi, subj.) the captured city, the inhabitants extended (perf.) [their] hands to (ad) him, and entreated (orare, perf.) him, that he would spare them. Why dost thou weep boy? because I have been struck. Who has struck thee?

The firmness of the general and the bravery of the soldiers, have weakened the attack of the forth-breaking enemies. Scarcely had I reached the house, when it was (perf.) struck (= touched) by lightning (de coelo). Our soldiers repulsed the enemies at (abl.) the first attack. The whole book has been run through by me [in] reading (abl. of gerund). The traitor has paid just punishment for his offence. As soon as the horns sounded (perf. of canere), all the soldiers ran (perf.) together. Virtue sustains itself, even if (etiamsi) it may have lost all.

§ 68. VIII. Inchoative Verbs.

All inchoative verbs (in sco), i. e. verbs which express a becoming or beginning of the idea contained in the primitive, follow the third Conj. and coincide in the Perf. and Sup. with their primitives, as :

inveterasco (from invetërare), inveterävi, inveterätum, inveterascere, to grow old ; exardesco (from ardere), exarsi, exarsum, exardescere, to become inflamed, to be kindled ; indolesco (from dolere), indolui, indolitum, indolescere, to feel pain ; revivisco (from vivere), revixi, revictum, reviviscere, to come to life again, revive ;

concupisco (from cupere), concupivi, concupitum, concupiscere, to desire (earnestly) ;

obdormisco (from dormire), obdormivi, obdormitum, obdormiscere, to fall asleep.

REMARK. The inchoative verbs from the obsolete olëo, üi, olere, to grow, (§ 58, III, 4.) vary in their formation in the following way :

adolesco, adolëvi, adultum, adolescere, to grow up.

exolesco, exolëvi, exolëtum, exolescere, to become old.

inolesco, inolëvi, (Sup. wanting), inolescere, to grow into.

Also, obsolesco, obsolëvi, obsolëtum, obsolescere, to grow old, obsolete, varies from its primitive, solere. Very many inchoative verbs want the Sup., as : incalesco, incalui, incalescere, to become warm (from caleo, üi, itum, ere, to be warm). Some want both Perf. and Sup., as : augesco, I increase (from, augeo, xi, ctum, ere). Here especially, belong the inchoatives which are derived from substantives and adjectives, as :

repuerascere, to become a boy again; only a small number of these form the Perf. which is in ui, as: maturesco, maturui, maturescere, to become mature.

Scarcely had the day dawned, when I commenced (perf. of aggrêdi) my journey. A bloody war broke out (= was kindled) between (inter) the Romans and Carthaginians. Catiline addressed (perf.) his associates with these words: Our (= to us) age is vigorous (vigere), the soul is strong (valere); on the other side, all is grown old by years and riches. As soon as Caesar ascertained (perf.), that the enemies were approaching, he led out (perf.) the soldiers from the camp. In a short time, the minds of all had coalesced into (abl.) so great (tantus) friendship, that every distinction of rank (ordo et locus) was forgotten. I have perceived with great pleasure from thy letter, that thou hast recovered from thy long continued sickness. The sedition of the soldiers, which had been quieted by the wisdom (consilium) of the general, broke out afresh (perf.) during his absence (eo absente.)

‡ 69. Fourth Conjugation.

Regis sepulcro haec verba inscripta sunt: Probe vixit, imprōbos vincit, hostes vicit. Hostes victi et catēnis vinci in servitūtem abducti sunt. Imperium justis legibus fultum esse debet. Rex, pace compositā, rempublicam labefactatam sua virtute falsit. Virtus difficilis inventu est: rectōrem ducemque desidērat. Artes innumerabiles repertae sunt, docente naturā. Vita, si undīque referta bonis est, beata dicitur. Homines urbes moenibus sepserunt. Occultae inimicitiae magis timendae sunt, quam apertae. Quis est tam miser, ut non dei munificentiam sensērit? Dii, indūti specie humanā, fabūlas poētis suppeditavērunt, hominum autem vitam superstitione omni referēserunt. Continūis bellis reipublicae opes exhaustae sunt. Quo quis affluentius voluptates undīque hausērit, eo gravius ardentiusque sitiet. Spero, te mecum consensurum esse. Cicero Archimēdis sepulcrum, septum undīque et vestitum vepribus et dumētis, indagāvit. Fama est, ludibrio fratris Remum novos urbis muros transiluisse. Lycurgus nihil lege ullā in alios sanxit, cujus non ipse primus in se documenta daret. Hippias gloriatus est, pallium, quo amictus esset, se manu sua confecisse. Spermus, pacem omnia belli damna brevi sarturam esse. Una victoria omnia prius accepta detrimenta sarsit. Caesar, ubi per exploratōres compērit, hostes adventare, protinus milites e castris eduxit. Nebūla, horā quartā sole dispulsa, aperiit diem. Plato Athēnis* in Academiā sepultus est. Eodem loco nostrā memoriā sepultus est Carōlus Odofrēdus Müllerus, professor Gottingensis, vir praestantissimus et de antiquitatis disciplina immortaliter mōritus.

The state shaken by the war, has been supported by the virtue of the king. Trajan alone of (gen.) all the citizens is buried within (intra) the city [of] Rome. Men have invented innumerable arts, nature teaching them (abl. abs.). Cicero's writings upon (de) philosophy, are filled up with the most excellent principles of virtue. The just king has supported his government by just laws. O king, thou art to be pronounced (= extolled) happy, who hast always lived uprightly, hast bound the wicked, hast conquered the enemies. The cities are surrounded (= hedged around) with walls. Many philosophers say, that the soul of man has been drawn from (ab) the divine nature. The horsemen leaped down (perf.) from (ex) their horses and fought (perf.) on foot (= footmen). I know not, what thou hast thought (sentire) concerning my plan; but I hope, that thou wilt not dissent from it. What has been sanctioned by the laws, must be observed by men. Solon (Solo, ónis) ordained (= sanctioned perf.) nothing concerning parricide, because it had not been committed before his time (= him). Peace, in a short [time], has repaired all the losses of the war. All the former (superior) losses are repaired by one victory. Whence hast thou ascertained, that my brother will come to-day? Just as physicians, when they have discovered the cause of the sickness (abl. abs.) believing that they have discovered the cure, so shall we, when the cause of sorrow is discovered, find the ability of curing (gen. of gerund) [it]. As the old man entered (subj.) the assembly, all uncovered (perf.) [their] heads; but as he left (subj.) it, all covered (perf.) [their] heads again. God has enclosed (= hedged in) and covered the eyes with (abl.) very delicate membranes.

Pergite, pueri, atque in id studium, in quo estis, incumbite, ut et vobis honori, et amicis utilitati, et reipublicae emolumento esse possitis! Nemo adeo ferus est, ut non mitescere possit. Hoc quotidie meditare, ut possis aequo animo vitam relinquere. Quidam idcirco, deum esse, non putant, quia non apparet, nec cernitur: proinde quasi nostram ipsam mentem videre possimus. Universum mundum quum cernimus, possumusne dubitare, quin ei praesit aliquis effector et moderator? Nihil tam difficile est, quin (= ut non) quaerendo investigari possit. Sic cogitandum est, tanquam aliquis in pectus intimum inspicere possit; et potest. Satis nobis persuasum esse debet, etiamsi deum hominesque celare possimus, nihil tamen injuste esse faciendum. Potestisne dubitare, quin deus universum mundum gubernet? Non possumus. Cur nobiscum ambulare non potes?

Alcibiades Athenas Lacedaemoniis servire non poterat pati. Marcus pedites primum, deinde equites, quanto maximo possent, impetu in hostem erumpere jussit. Agesilaus non destitit, quibuscunque rebus posset, patriam juvare. Caesar, quam potuit maximis itineribus, exercitum contra hostes duxit. Casus est, quum sic aliquid evenit, ut vel non evenire, vel aliter evenire potuerit. Omnes mundi partes ita constitutae sunt, ut neque ad usum meliores potuerint esse, neque ad speciem pulchriores. Ante occupatur animus ab iracundia, quam providere satis potuit, ne occuparetur. Vix Caesar milites e castris educere poterat, quum hostes impetum fecerunt. Quid enumerem artium multitudinem, sine quibus vita omnis nulla esse potuisset? Quem, ut mentiatur, inducere possumus; [eun,] ut pejeret, exorare facile poterimus. Dolorem, si non potero frangere, occultabo. Facile intelligitur, nec figuram situmque membrorum nostrorum, nec ingenii mentisque vim effici potuisse fortunam. Hoc primum sentio, nisi in bonis, amicitiam esse non posse.

If you earnestly apply (fut.) yourselves to the study of literature, you will be able to be useful, as well to yourselves as to [your] friends and the state. Socrates thought daily of this, that he might be able to die with equanimity. Canst thou tell me, why thy brother is not able to come to me to-day? No. When you contemplate the whole world, you are not able to doubt, that it is ruled by a divine mind (mens). The wise can be happy, even when they are tortured. If we cultivate (colere) virtue, we can always be happy.

Why cannot thy brothers come to me to-day? I do not know, why they cannot. But why could they not come yesterday? They could not come yesterday on account (per) of much business (plur.). What could have been (= has been able to be) given to the human race, fairer and more noble than reason? The enemies had not as yet been able to draw their troops together, as Caesar made (perf.) an attack upon (in) them. Who believes, that the world can have been (= may have been able to be) made by chance?

§ 71. 2) Edo, ēdi, ēssum, ēdēre and esse, to eat.

The whole irregularity of this verb, arises from its having forms like those beginning with es of the verb sum, which are used at the same time with the regular form; but the form es from edo is long, from sum short.

The Perf. and Sup. are from suffĕro (i. e. sursum fero, I carry aloft), from which, suffĕro (i. e. sub. and fero), sustŭli, sufferre, to bear, endure, is to be carefully distinguished.

Incumbe in eam curam et cogitationem, quae tibi summam dignitatem et gloriam affērat. Ferre labōrem consuetūdo docet. Pecuniam praeferre amicitiae sordidum est. Ut quisque maxime ad suum commōdum refert, quaecunque agit; ita minime est vir bonus. Bonum civem reipublicae dignitatem suis omnibus commōdis praeferre oportet. Hoc doctōris intelligentis est, vidēre, quo ferat natura sua quemque. Is denique honos mihi videtur, qui non propter spem futuri beneficii, sed propter magna merita claris viris defertur et datur.

Aristūdes in tanta paupertate decessit, ut, qui efferrētur, vix reliquērit. Poētae ferunt, gigantes bellum diis intulisse. Socrātes eundem vultum domum referēbat, quem domo extulērat. Quod auri, quod argenti, quod ornamentorum in urbibus Siciliae fuit, id Verres abstūlit. Multi etiam naturae vitium meditatione atque exercitatione sustulērunt. Pietate adversus deum sublātā, fides etiam et societas humani genēris tollitur. Qui, deum esse, negant, nonne omnem religionem funditus sustulērunt? Caritate benevolentiaque sublātā, omnis est e vita sublata jucunditas.

Bring thou aid to the wretched and the destitute! If we compare our longest age with eternity, it will be necessary that we acknowledge (subj.) that it is very short. What can bring to us a fairer joy, than virtue. The noble (probus) youth bore (fero) and did all, he sweated and shivered (perf. in each case). Julius Caesar took away (perf.) from king Ptolemy, almost six thousand talents (gen.). What bringest thou, my boy? I bring a present which my father presents to thee. Dost thou not know, that Epicurus has referred all [things] to (ad) pleasure? Pleasure is preferred by many to virtue. All (plur.) that we do, must be referred to virtue. The giants are said (fero) to have made war upon the gods. Cicero relates, that immense treasures were taken by Verres from the cities of Italy. A fault of nature has often been removed (= taken away) by exercise. The enemies were so cowardly, that they did not even bear an attack of our soldiers. I did not doubt, that you would (imperf.) bear the injustice offered (afféro) you with equanimity. Through cruelty we are borne [on] to the foulest crimes. We feared, that war would be preferred by you to peace. Thou wilt be borne [away] by avarice to base gain. Solitude takes away the enjoyment of all pleasures. Thou shouldst not be borne [away] by avarice to base gain. When the news was brought (subj.) that the enemy approached, Caesar led out (perf.) his soldiers from the camp. The wretched [man] asked us, that we would bring aid to him (sibi).

adstringere, to bind, to

Qui virtutem suam publicari vult, non virtuti laborat, sed gloriae. Nonne poetae post mortem nobilitari volunt? Ego non eadem volo senex, quae volui, adolescens. Si vis amari, ama. Bono mentis fruentum est, si beati esse volumus. Docilis est, qui attente vult audire. Omnia benefacta in luce se collocari volunt. Si acres ac diligentes esse vultis, magna saepe intelligetis ex parvis. Quem docilem velis facere, simul attentum facias oportet. Sic cum inferiore vivamus, quemadmodum nobiscum superiorem velimus vivere. Praeclare Socrates hanc viam ad gloriam proximam dicebat esse, si quis id ageret, ut, qualis haberi vellet, talis esset. Si quis veram gloriam adipisci vult, virtutis officii fungi debet.

Nolumus in conservandis bonis viris defatigari. Homines nolunt, eundem pluribus rebus excellere. Si quid per jocum dixi, nolito in serium convertere. Libero sum iudicio, nulla ejusmodi adstrictus necessitate, ut mihi, velim nolim, sit certa tuenda sententia. Socrates noluit ex carcere educi, quum facile posset. Ego me Phidiam esse malle, quam vel optimum fabrum lignarium. Utrum corpora, an ingenii vires tibi augeri mavis? Multi sibi malunt melius esse, quam alteri. Virtute in alia alius mavult excellere. Quibus id persuasum est, ut nihil malint se esse, quam bonos viros; iis reliqua facilis est doctrina. Amicitiae est ea vis, ut, simulatque sibi aliquid, quam alteri, maluerit, nullo sit. Vae vobis, qui divitias, quam virtutem sectari mavultis! Malumus cum virtute paucis contenti esse, quam sine virtute multa habere. Aristides, Atheniensis, bonus esse malebat, quam videri.

If we wish to bear (fero) our virtue before (prae) ourselves, we do not labor for virtue but for glory. Men [when] old, do not wish the very same which they wished (perf.) [when] young. If you wish to be loved by others, you must also love others. If thou wishest to be happy, thou must cultivate virtue. Why does not thy brother wish to take a walk with us? Thou askest why he does not wish; he does wish indeed, but he cannot on account of (per) business. If you wish to undertake a great undertaking (negotium), you must make (adhibere) diligent preparation. Wilt thou come to us to-day, or (an) wilt thou not? we wish (Sub. pra.) to know. May you (= you will subj. pres. of volo) also [when] absent, love us as you are accustomed to love. If it is not allowed to live as we wish, we live as we can. We know not, why you did not wish to come to us yesterday.

Be thou unwilling to become weary in the preservation (gerund) of good men. We are unwilling, that the very same [man] should excel in several things. They, who are bound by a certain (certus) sentiment, must defend it, [whether] they will [or] not. Wouldst thou live in the country, rather than in the city? Many would (= choose to) acquire riches, rather than virtue. Timoleon chose (perf.) to be esteemed, rather than to be feared (metuo). The wise choose to stand upon (abl.) their own judgment, rather than [upon that] of another. Who would not rather be virtuous (= partaking of virtue, compos), than rich? Would you rather live in the city, than in the country? we would rather live in the country.

transire, to pass over, through, away.	praealtus, a, um, very high, very deep.

Qui ad nos intempestive adēunt, molesti saepe sunt. Pleraque, ante oculos posita, transimus. Abēunt hirundines hibernis mensibus. Corpus mortale aliquo tempore interire necesse est. Perēunt aliquando innocentes; quis neget? nocentes tamen saepius perēunt. Omnes homines summa ope niti decet, ne vitam silentio transeant. Quis dubitet, quin ex casa vir magnus exire possit? Potius sero, quam nunquam, obviam eundum est audaciae temeritaeque. Omnes cives militibus, qui e bello domum redibant, laeti obviam ibant. Si ita naturam paratum esset, ut ea dormientes agerent, quae somniarent, alligandi omnes essent, qui cubitum irent. Illud erat insitum priscis, esse in morte sensum, neque excessu vitae sic deleri hominem, ut funditus interiret. Augustias Themistocles quaerebat, ne multitudine hostium circumiretur. Romulus ad deos transisse creditus est. Augustus obiit septuagesimo et sexto aetatis anno. Mihi nunquam persuaderi potuit, animos, dum in corporibus essent mortalibus, vivere; quum exissent ex iis, emōri. Quicquid transit temporis, perit. Quum rure rediero, statim te adibo. Pompeius multique alli clari viri foede perierunt. I, quo te fata vocant. Abiit ad deos Hercules: nunquam abisset, nisi, quum inter homines esset, eam sibi viam munivisset. Muros turresque urbis praealtum mare ambiēbat.

Be on thy guard, that thou dost not go to one untimely. Very much which is set before our eyes, is passed over by us. Our body will decay at some time; but that our soul will decay, we cannot believe. Go spiritedly against self-confidence and rashness. Who does not know, how often great men come (= go) forth from huts! As the soldiers were returning (subj.) home from the war, all the citizens went (perf.) to meet them. In the spring the swallows return to us, in the autumn they go away. As Caesar was coming out (subj.) of the woods, he was (perf.) surrounded by the enemies. When the soul shall have left the body, it will be happy. We shall go out to meet our parents, who are returning from the country to the city. Hast thou not heard, that Pompey has perished in a base way? The orators pass over all (plur.) that appears base to speak (sup. in u). The men, who pass (part. of transire) their lives in silence, die (obire) without fame.

§ 75. 6) Quōo, quīvi, quītum, quīre, to be able (can); and nequōo, nequīvi, nequītum, nequīre, not to be able (cannot).

Both these verbs are inflected throughout like ēo, ivi, itum, ire, to go. Many of their forms, however, occur but rarely and, indeed, in good prose, not at all. These forms are omitted in the following table.

Supine: quītum, quītū (of nequeo it is wanting). The remaining forms are wanting, or occur but rarely.

§ 76. 7) Fio, factus sum, fieri, to become, to happen.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. This verb forms the Pass. of facio. (See § 65, 4.)

REMARK. The compounds of facio, which are formed from verbs, retain facio in the Act. and fito in the Pass., as: calefacio, calefeci, calefactum, calefacere, to make warm (calere), calefito, calefactus sum, calfiti, to become warm; but the compounds with prepositions have in the Act.—ficio,—feci,—fectum,—ficere, and in the Pass.—ficio, —fectus sum,—feci, as: perficio, perfeci, perfectum, perficere, to accomplish, perficio, perfectus sum, perfici. Only a few compounds with prepositions form the Pass. with fito and these only in particular forms, as: confit (for conficitur), it is accomplished, confiteri; desit, it is wanting, desit.

CXIV. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Exulcerare, to irritate, make worse.	elōqui, to pronounce.	crebro, adv. frequently.
generare, to make.	adversus, a, um, opposite.	fataliter, adv. conformably to fate. [times.
retinere, to hold back, prevent.	cogitatio, adv. with meditation.	interdum, adv. sometimes. polite, adv. elegantly.

Intuēri solem adversum nequimus. Decōri vis ea est, ut ab honesto non queat separari. Risus interdum ita repente erumpit, ut eum cupientes tenere nequeamus. Dic, utrum queas, an nequeas mecum ire. Quum hostes exercitum nostrum fundere nequirent, in castra munita sese recepērunt. Quum dux precibus retinere militem nequiret, vim adhibendam censuit. Saepē imperiti medici ea, quae sanare nequeunt, exulcerant. Quum Demosthēnes “rho” dicere nequiret, exercitatione fecit, ut planissime diceret.

Ex inimico cogita posse fieri amicum. Nemo fit casu bonus. Si fato omnia fiunt; nihil nos admonere potest, ut cautioreſ fiamus. Nemo ignavia immortalis factus est. Permultum interest, utrum perturbatione aliqua animi, quae plerumque brevis est, an consulto et cogitato fiat injuria. Homo, quod crebro videt, non miratur, etiamsi, cur fiat, nesciat. Non ita generati a natura sumus, ut ad ludum et jocum facti esse videamur, sed ad severitatem potius et ad quaedam studia graviora atque majora. Prudentior fis, accedente senectute. Nego esse fortunam, et omnia, quae fiunt, quaeque futura sunt, ex omni aeternitate definita dico esse fataliter. Qua de causa dicebas, omnia, quae fierent futurae essent, fato contineri? Fieri potest, ut recte quis sentiat, et id, quod sentit, polite eloqui nequeat.

Men cannot look upon the opposite sun. The virtues are so (ita) connected and joined together (inter se), that they cannot be separated from each other. Often we cannot prevent a laugh, although (quavis with Subj.) we would. Say, whether you can go with us, or cannot. There are many diseases which cannot (subj.) be cured. Demosthenes could not (perf.) at first pronounce "rho," but by exercise he effected (= made), that he pronounced [it] very plainly.

If thou wishest to be learned, learn early. From an enemy, [one] often becomes suddenly a friend. Men do not become good by chance. If all [things] happen (subj.) by chance, all (omnis) foresight is useless. Dost thou believe, that a man may ever become immortal by cowardice? Men become wiser by age. Some philosophers were uncertain, whether all (omniāne) might happen by chance; I am convinced, that nothing happens by chance.

§ 77. Defective Verbs, i. e. verbs of which only a few forms are used.

1) Aio, I say, affirm, say yes, assent.

Pres. Ind. aio, ais, ait and aiunt. Subj. aias, aiat and aiant.

Impf. Ind. aiebam, bas, bat; bamus, batis, bant. (Subj. wholly wanting.)

Part. aiens, aientis (as adjective, affirming, affirmative).

2) Inquam, I say.

Pres. inquam, inquis, inquit; inquamus, inquamunt. [Subj. inquam].

Impf. inquamabat or inquamabat, inquamabant (Subj. wanting).

Fut. inquamet and inquamet. Perf. inquamisti and inquamisti.

- 3) { Memini, meminisse (c. gen. and acc.), to remember.
- Perfeta.* { Odi, odisse, to hate.
- { Coepi, coepisse, to have begun.
- { Novi, novisse (nosse), to be acquainted with, know.

All four Perfects and the forms derived from them are entirely regular.

Perf. Ind.	memīni, I remember	ōdi, I hate	coepi, I have begun	nōvi, I know
Subj.	meminērim	odērim	coepērim	novērim (nōrim)
Plpf. Ind.	meminēram, I remembered	odēram, I hated	coepēram, I had begun	novēram (nōram), I knew
Subj.	meminissem	odissem	coepissem	novissem (nossem)
Fut. Ind.	meminēro, I shall remember	odēro, I will hate	coepēro, I shall have begun	novēro (nōro), I shall know
Imperat.	memento, remember thou mementōte, remember ye	wanting.	wanting.	wanting.
Inf. Perf.	meminisse	odisse	coepisse	novisse (nosse)
Fut. Particip.	wanting.	osurus esse	coepturus esse	wanting.
	wanting.	osus, exōsus, perōsus, one who hates, or has hated very much.	coeptus, begun.	wanting.

REMARK. Novi is nothing else than the Perf. of nosco (I am acquainted with). Instead of coepi, coeperam, etc., coeptusum, coeptus eram, etc., must be used, when the accompanying Inf. is in the Pass., as: urbs aedificari coepta est, the city has begun to be built. The same is the case with desino.

CXV. Words to be learned and Exercises for translation.

Abominari, to execrate.	comoedia, ae, f. comedy.	credulus, a, um. credulous.

sapio, ui 3. to be wise.	consentaneus, a, um suitable.

RULE OF SYNTAX. When the words of some one are quoted precisely as he spoke them, inquam is used, and is introduced among the words quoted; but if only the sense of what one has said is quoted, sic is used.

Contraria ea sunt, quorum alterum ait quid, alterum negat. Cato mirari se aiebat, quod non rideret haruspex, haruspicem quum vidisset.

Ut quimus, aiunt, quando, ut volūmus, non licet. Sus, ut aiunt, docet Minervam. Tu ais, ego nego. Negat Epicūrus, quenquam, qui honeste non vivat, jucunde posse vivere. Quasi ego id curem, quid ille aiat, aut neget; illud quaero, quid ei, qui in voluptate summum bonum putat, consentaneum sit dicere. Sive tu hoc ais, sive negas; ego tuabor sententiam meam. Negantia contraria sunt aientibus. Ain' (for aiunt) tu? quum res occultissimas aperueris in lucemque protuleris: negabis, esse rem ullam, quae cognosci possit? Aisne? Aio. Negasne? Nego. Agricola serit arbōres, quae alteri saeculo prosint, ut ait ille in Menandri comoedia. Non credimus, inquit, vera esse, quae dicimus. Tu vero, inquisti, mihi molestus nunquam eris. Amicus meus, inquires, nonne est homo bellus? Praeclare Plato: Beatum, inquit, cui etiam in senectute contigerit, ut sapientiam verasque opiniones assequi possit.

I deny that, which thou assertest. If I say yes, he [also] says yes; if I say, no (deny), he also says no. It is said, that thou wilt leave the city. I know not, whether thou affirmist the thing, or deniest [it]. Affirmative (= affirming) opinions (sententia), are contrary to negative (= denying) [opinions]. They said, that thy father set out for (ad) Rome. It is delightful and becoming, says Horace, to die for one's country. Thou hast erred, thou wilt say perhaps. Never, says he, is a friend troublesome to me.

CHAPTER II.

§ 79. Preposition.—Conjunction.—Interjection.

1. In addition to the parts of speech which have already been treated of, there remain the conjunction and interjection. Of these, the conjunction, as it is employed in connecting sentences, will be more properly treated of in the Syntax, and the interjection needs no special treatment beyond a mere definition; for which see § 6. Rem. 2.

2. The preposition, in addition to the table of prepositions given in § 34, and the remarks upon its use in the Syntax (§ 93.), requires some additional illustration here. Most prepositions are used also as adverbs, as: ante, post, prope, juxtâ, infrâ, suprâ, citrâ, ultrâ, intrâ, extrâ, contrâ; circâ (circum). Nearly all prepositions are used in composition, as: interrogô, decêdo, compôno (com, con, co = cum in composition), etc. Inseparable prepositions are those which occur only in composition, viz: amb (am, an) around, as: amb-ire, am-plector, an-fractus;—dis (dî), asunder, from each other, as: dis-cêdo, di-spergo;—re (back, again), as: re-vertor, re-clûdo;—se (aside, apart), as: se-pôno;—sus (su), up, upon, as: sus-cipio, su-spicio; finally, the negative ne, as: ne-scire.

CHAPTER III.

§ 80. Formation of Words.

I. VERBS.

1. Frequentatives, i. e. verbs which express a repetition of the action, are formed from other verbs by adding itare to the stem of the Pres., as: ago, I drive, ag-ito, I drive hither and thither, clam-o, I cry, clam-ito, I cry continually.

2. Intensives, i. e. verbs which express a permanence or continuance in an action, are formed from the Sup. of other verbs, as: verto, verti, versum, vertere, to turn, verso, to turn hither and thither; they follow the first Conjugation.

3. Desideratives, i. e. verbs which express a desire or striving after the thing indicated by their primitives, have the ending urio, as: esu-urio, I desire to eat (from edo, edi, essum), coenaturio, I long for supper (from coeno, avi, atum); they follow the fourth Conjugation.

4. Inchoatives, i. e. verbs which express a becoming or beginning of that which their primitives express, have the endings asco, esco, isco, as; exhorr-esco, I shudder (from horreo), concup-isco, I desire (from cupio), repuer-asco, I become a boy again (from puer); they follow the third Conjugation.

5. Diminutives, i. e. verbs which express a diminution of the idea expressed by their primitives, have the ending, illo, as: (canto) cantillo, I chant.

II. SUBSTANTIVES.

1. Nouns in tor (fem. trix), are formed from the supines of verbs and designate persons in active relations (actors), as: vic-tor, victrix, a conqueror (from vinco, vici, victum).

2. Those in io, are formed from the supines of verbs, and like English substantives in ing, express the action of the verbs from which they are formed as taking place, as: laesio, an injuring (from laedo, laesi, laesum), emendatio, an emending (from emendo, avi, atum).

3. Those in o, onis, are derived either from verbs or nouns, and designate persons with an idea of contempt, as: capito (from caput), blockhead.

4. Those in us (gen. us), are derived from supines, and signify mostly a completed action, an effect, as: morsus, a bite (from mordeo, momordi, morsum).

5. Those in ulus, ulla, ulum; ulus, ulla, ulum; ellus, ella, ellum; illus, illa, illum, indicate an object as small (diminutives), as: hortulus, a little garden, vocula, a slight voice (from vox); filiolus, a little son, filiola, a little daughter, assellus, an ass colt.

REMARK. The gender of diminutives follows the gender of their primitives.

6. Those in etum, signify a place abounding in that expressed by their primitives, as: quercetum, an oak-grove, dumetum, a thorn-thicket (from dumus, a thorn bush).

7. Those in ia (itia), G. iae;—tis, G. titis; tis, G. titis; tudo, G. tudimis;—edo and ido, G. inis, express an abstract quality, as: audacia (from audax), boldness, sapientia (from sapiens), wisdom; laetitia (from laetus), joy, avaritia (from avarus), avarice;—bonitas (from bonus), goodness, celeritas (from celer), swiftness;—servitus (from servus), servitude;—fortitudo (from fortis), bravery, magnitudo (from magnus), greatness;—dulcedo (from dulcis), sweetness, cupido (from cupidus), desire.

8. Gentile Nouns, i. e. names of peoples and countries. Names of countries are mostly formed from the names of peoples, with the ending ia, as: (Macedo, ðn-is) Macedonia; (Thrax, ac-is) Thracia, etc. On the contrary, names of peoples having the adjective-endings: tus, anus, inus, enus, ensis (iensis), as (G. atis), icus, iäcus, aicus, are formed either from names of countries or cities, as: (Cyprus) Cyprius; (Roma) Romanus; (Venusia) Venusinus; (Pergämus) Pergamenus; (Athenae) Atheniensis; (Arpinum) Arpinas; (Colchis) Colchicus; (Aegyptus) Aegyptiäcus; (Thebae) Thebäicus.

9. Patronymics, i. e. personal appellations derived from one's descent. These have the endings: ides, G. idae, Fem. is (from primitives in us and or); ides, F. eis (from primitives in eus); ades or iades, F. as (ias) (from primitives in as or es of the first Dec. or in ius), as: (Priämus) Priamides; (Agänor) Agenorides; (Tantälus) F. Tantälis;—(Peleus) Pelides; (Theseus) F. Thesäis;—(Aenäs) Aenädes; (Thestius) Thestiädes; F. Thesätias.

III. ADJECTIVES.

1. Those in eus, a, um, are adjectives of material, as: ferreus, iron, ligneus, wooden, marmoreus, of marble.

2. Those in inus, a, um, and nëus, a, um, are principally derived from the names of plants and minerals, as: faginus, beechen, of beech, quernëus, of oak, crystallinus, of crystal; aburnëus, of ivory.

3. Those in nus, a, um, ernus, a, um, and inus, a, um, relate to designations of time and place, as: vernus, belonging to spring; externus, external; hodiernus, of to-day, aeternus, eternal; diutinus, of long duration.

4. Those in inus, a, um, relate, mostly, to the different kinds of animals, as : leporinus (lepus, leporis, the hare), of the hare, caro anserina, goose-meat.

5. Those in ilis and ibilis, express a capability or fitness, as : utilis, useful, docilis, teachable ; amabilis, amiable.

6. Those in bundus, express the idea of a present participle but with more intensity, as : populabundus, ravaging (stronger than popularis), mirabundus, full of wonder ; those in cundus express a permanent quality or habit, as : facundus, fluent, iracundus, passionate, verecundus, respectful.

7. Those in osus, tus, olentus or ilentus, idus express fulness, abundance or excess, as : arenosus, sandy (abounding in sand), auritus, long-eared, auratus, gilt (furnished with gold), onestus, loaded down, vetustus, ancient, violentus, impetuous, turbulentus, full of commotion, herbidus, covered with grass.

SYNTAX

OR THE PRINCIPLES OF SENTENCES.

§ 81. Sentence.—Subject.—Predicate.

1. A thought expressed in words, is called a sentence, as: the rose blooms, rosa floret; the rose is beautiful, rosa pulchra est.

2. The necessary parts of a sentence are:

a) The subject, i. e. that of which something is asserted, as: the rose, rosa;

b) The predicate, i. e. that which is asserted of the subject, as: blooms, floret; is beautiful, pulchra est.

3. The subject is a substantive, as: rose, rosa, or some other word or clause used substantively, e. g. a pronoun, an adjective, an Infin., as: I, thou, he, this, the wise. The subject stands in the nominative.

4. The predicate is a verb, or an adjective or substantive in connection with the verb esse, which in this case is called the copula (bond).

Rosa floret.—Rosa pulchra est.—Rosa flos est.

REMARK. In the Latin language each form of the finite verb may form a sentence; for it signifies at the same time, a person of whom something is said, and that which is said of him, as: amo, I love.

§ 82. Limitation of the Subject and Predicate.

1. The predicate may be limited in the following ways:

a) By a case of the substantive which is then called the object, as: virtutem amo;

b) By the preposition with a substantive, as: pro patria pugnamus;

c) By the infinitive, as: scribere cupio;

d) By an adverb, as: bene scribis.

2. The subject, or object may be limited in the following ways:

- a) By an adjective (attributive adjective), as: rosa pulchra;
- b) By the genitive of a substantive (attributive gen.), as: hortus regis;
- c) By a substantive which stands in the same case as the word which it limits, as: Alexander, rex Macedonum, Magnus appellatur. A substantive of this kind is said to be in apposition.

REMARK. The attributive adjective agrees with the noun which it limits in gender, number and case. This is so even in the adjectives: primus, ultimus, extremus, postremus, intimus, summus, medius, infimus, imus and reliquus, although they designate only particular parts of objects and are rendered into English by partitive phrases (first part, last part, etc. of a thing).

§ 83. Agreement.

1. The verb agrees with its subject in person and number; the adjective in gender, number and case (nominative).

Ego scribo; tu scribis; ille scribit. Rosa floret. Rosae florent. Amicus fidus est. Virtus pulchra est. Corpus caducum est. Puer magnus. Puella parva. Corpus caducum. Indus omnium fluminum maximus est.

REM. 1. Sometimes, however, the predicate does not agree with the grammatical form of the subject, but with a noun implied in it (Constructio ad intellectum), which is particularly the case in collective nouns, as: pars bestiis objecti sunt.—Magna multitudo convenerant.

2. The substantive, as predicate, agrees with the subject only in case; it agrees with it in gender, number and case, only when it signifies a person, and hence, either has separate forms for the masculine and feminine, or is of the common gender. The same is the case with the substantive in apposition.

Rosa flos est. Athenae fuerunt urbs. Romulus fuit rex. Tomyris fuit regina. Tomyris, regina Scytharum, Cyrum, regem Persarum, devicit. Bactra, regionis caput, sita sunt sub monte Parapamisio.

REM. 2. When the neuters of adjectives, pronouns and numerals are used as nouns, and signify a number of single things, they do not, as is generally the case in English, stand in the singular, but in the plural. Omnia humana sunt fragilia (everything human). Futura incerta sunt (the future). Haec sunt vera, illa falsa (this—that). Multa, pauca, etc.

3. When there are two or more subjects in one sentence, the verb stands in the plural. If the subjects have the same gender, the adjective as predicate, takes the same gender and stands in the plural; but if they have different genders, in designations of persons, the adjective agrees with the masculine subject in preference to the feminine, but in names of things the adjective generally stands in the neuter plural.

Pompeius, Scipio, Afranius foede perierunt. Caesar et Pompeius fortissimi fuerunt. Terra et luna sunt globosae. Pater et mater mihi cari sunt. Inter se contraria sunt beneficium et injuria.

REM. 3. When, however, the subjects are connected by aut—aut, et—et (as well—as also), nec—nec, or when it is designed to make one subject more prominent than the others, the predicate agrees with the nearest subject, which, in the last case, is always the subject to be rendered prominent.

4. When subjects of different persons are connected, the first person predominates over the second and third persons, and the second over the third, and the predicate stands in the plural.

Ego et tu scribimus. Ego et frater scribimus. Ego, tu et frater scribimus. Tu et frater scribitis. Ego et fratres scribimus. Tu et fratres scribitis. Nos et fratres scribimus. Vos et fratres scribitis.

CXVI. Exercises for translation. (§ 81—83.)

I. Our body is mortal, our soul immortal. The forehead, the eyes, the expressions often lie. God is the creator and governor of the whole world. History is a good instructress. The Scythians were a very warlike people. Alexander, king of the Macedonians, carried on (perf.) a war with Darius, king of the Persians. The divine is eternal, the human frail. We often hold the unknown for (pro) known and assent to it inconsiderately. O boy, hear much [but] speak little! Gold, silver, brass, iron, in short (denique) all metals are produced (gignere) for the use of men. The father, the mother and the sister of my friend, have all died within a year. Thy son and thy daughter are very dear to me. Labor and pleasure, by a (quidam) natural alliance, are united together (inter se). Arrogance, hatred and envy are foreign to the mind of the wise. I and my brother returned (perf.) yesterday from the journey. I and my brother learn, thou and thy brother play. We and my parents rejoice at (de) your return.

II. Life is short, art is long. The lark and the nightingale sing delightfully. Experience is the best instructress. The Carthaginians were a treacherous people. Wisdom is the governess of all things. Writers extol Solon, the law-giver of the Athenians, on account of his wisdom. Everything earthly is fleeting. The past we cannot change. The future is uncertain. Corinth and Charthage were (perf.) destroyed by the Romans. Dominion (plur.), posts of honor, riches, power (opes) are fortuitous. The walls and gates of the taken city were destroyed (perf.) by the soldiers. The king and queen are very dear to all the citizens. The father and mother have set out on a journey. Thy brother and sister are very good. I rejoice, that (quod) thou and thy brother are well. We and our parents shall set out on a journey to-morrow. Thou and thy sister remain in the city.

As there are two nominatives with the copula esse, the nominative of the subject and the nominative of the predicate, so also the following verbs take two nominatives:

- a) The verbs of becoming: fiō, evādo, existo, nascor;
- b) The verb maneo (I remain), and videor (I seem, appear);
- c) The verbs which mean: I am called, as: appellor, vocor, dicor, etc.;
- d) The verbs which signify, I am made, chosen, appointed something, as: creor, eligor, etc.;
- e) The verbs which mean: I am considered, accounted something, I am recognized, found as something, and the like, as: putor, existimor, judicor, habeor, cognoscor, invenior, etc.

Brutus Romanorum libertatis vindex exstitit. Nemo doctus nascitur. Gloria Romanorum aeterna manet. Cicero consul creatus est. Cicero pater patriae appellatus est. Virtus summum bonum judicanda est.

CXVII. Exercises for translation. (§ 84.)

I. No one has become immortal by cowardice. Cicero, in the Catilinian (Catilinarius) war, appeared (existere) [as] the defender of the state. The rich often become (evadere) beggars. No one is born rich. After Romulus, Numa Pompilius was elected (perf.) king by the Romans. Piety is justly considered the foundation of all the virtues. The renown of Roman bravery will remain forever (= eternal). Philosophy is called by Cicero, the guide (= leader) of life, the investigator (fem.) of virtue and the banisher (fem.) of vice, the inventress of laws, the instructress of customs and of discipline. Unexpected evils appear greater than [those] expected. Demosthenes is justly considered the most distinguished orator of the Greeks. Cicero and Anthony were elected consuls.

II. Quintus Fabius was chosen (perf.) general by the Romans. Men become wiser by age. The orations of Demosthenes and Cicero are considered models of eloquence. A bad poet never becomes (evadere) a good [one]. Lycurgus came forward (perf. of existere) as the law-giver of the Lacedemonians. Virtue is justly considered the highest good. Aristides was called the just by the Athenians. The renown of some will remain eternal. Cyrus was elected the first king of the Persians. The sun appears to us smaller than it is. Thou wast born good, but hast become bad.

§ 85. Classes of Verbs.

1. There are two kinds of verbs, active and passive. In an active verb, the subject appears as active, as: rosa floret;—puer epistolam scribit. Those active verbs which take an accusative are called transitive, as: puer epistolam scribit; but the rest are called intransitive, as: rosa floret;—sapiens meminit mortis;—pater tibi favet;—amicus gaudet adventu amici;—eo in urbem.

2. In the passive the subject appears as suffering (receiving the action), as: bonus discipulus laudatur a preceptoribus, malus vituperatur.

3. Deponent verbs are those which have a passive form but an active signification, as: dux hortatur milites;—morior.

§ 86. Tenses of the Verb.

1. The tenses are divided into two classes:

a) Principal Tenses: the Pres. Perf. and Future:

scribo, I write, scripsi, I have written, scribo, I shall write, scripsero, I shall have written;

- b) Historical Tenses: Imperf. Pluperf. and the narrative Perf.: scribebam, I wrote, was writing, scripseram, I had written, scripsi, I wrote.

REM. The narrative Perf. is called the Perf. historical and is translated into English by the Imperf.; the proper Perf. is called the Perf. present, and is translated into English by the Perf. The Latin historical Perf. always expresses the action as past, and so also does the Latin Imperf. but yet always as standing in relation to another past action to which it corresponds in time, as: scribebam, quum veniebas (veneras). Hence the Perf. is used in relating principal events, the Imperf. in relating accompanying circumstances. Caesar urbem intravit; omnes cives laetabantur victoriamque de hostibus reportatam ei gratulabantur.

CXVIII. Exercises for translation. (§ 86.)

I. God has made the whole world. Romulus built Rome. Hannibal vanquished the Romans in (abl.) the second Punic war. The enemies assaulted the city, which lay upon a hill. The city was captured by the enemies, but the citizens had already deserted it. So long as thou shalt be fortunate, thou wilt number many friends. In a short [time] I shall have finished this business. If we shall have fulfilled our duties, we shall be happy (beatus). Even as we shall have treated others, will they treat us.

II. The book, which you sent me, I have read through carefully. Carthage and Corinth were destroyed by the Romans. The Romans carried on many wars with the Germans, who were a very brave people. An immense number of men had come together into (in with acc.) the city. The remembrance of renowned men will be obscured by no oblivion. After a few days I shall have returned. As thou shalt have sown (sementem facere), [so] thou wilt reap (metere). The more we shall have exercised our minds by the study of literature, so much the more we shall delight in it. If thou shalt have adorned the soul with virtues, thou wilt be happy.

§ 87. Modes of the Verb.

1. The Indicative is the mode which expresses facts, realities.

Rosa floret. Pater epistolam scripsit. Ambulabo.

2. The Subjunctive is the mode which is employed in expressing what is imagined or barely conceived of.

- a) The Subjunctive of the principal tenses, especially of the Pres., is used in principal sentences to express a supposition or presumption, a doubting question, an encouragement, exhortation, a wish. We may often translate this Subjunctive into English, by the Subj. Imperf. or by the auxiliaries, ought, might, could, should, would with the Infin.

Nemo sanus de virtutis pretio dubitet. Quis de animorum immortalitate dubitet? Eamus! (let us go! or: we would go!) Utinam amicus convalescat!

- b) The Subjunctive of the historical tenses is used in principal sentences to express a supposition the opposite of what really is, or is not, as: errares, thou wouldst err; errasses, thou wouldst have erred; si hoc diceres, errares, if thou shouldst say this, thou wouldst err; sic hoc dixisses, errasses, if thou hadst said this, thou wouldst have erred; so: non errares, non errasses; hence crederes, putares, cerneres, videres (one might believe, might see); besides, the Subj. of these tenses is used to express a wish of which one knows that it will not be realized (imperfect), or has not been realized (pluperfect), as: utinam amicus convalesceret! utinam amicus convalescisset! finally, the Subj. Imperf. is used in a doubting question in reference to past time, as: quid facerem? (what should I have done?)

3. The Imperative is used to express commands, as: scribe. The two forms of the second person of the imperative are thus distinguished: the shorter forms (ama, amate) have a milder, the longer forms (amato, amatote) a stronger meaning; hence these last should be translated by should or must and are used especially in directions and injunctions.

Ferte misero atque inopi auxilium. Colito virtutem. Leges observantor. Discipulus amato praeceptores.

REMARK. The negative with the Imper. and also with the Subj. of encouraging and exhorting, is expressed by ne (not by non), as: ne scribe;

ne eamus. However, instead of ne with the Imper. noli, nolite with the Infinitive are often used, as : noli scribere, do not write ; nolite garrere, pueri!

CKIX. Exercises for translation. (§ 87.)

I. The view of Epicurus concerning the highest good, I could not approve. Why should we doubt concerning (de) the immortality of the soul (plur.)? We should love our native country! We would bear with equanimity, all which happens to us! The principles of virtue we would not neglect! The beginning (principium plur.) of all things should be taken (ducere) from the immortal gods! What has fallen to the lot (obtingere) of each one, this each one should hold fast (tenere). O that all would strive after virtue! Without thy aid, I had been the most unhappy man. O that thou hadst been silent! What should I have answered? Flatter ye not bad men. Thou shouldst obey [thy] parents and teachers. Scholars should respect (vereri) their teachers. O boys, you should be present at school not only with (abl.) your bodies, but also with your minds.

II. The betraying of his country no one should praise. Nobody should believe a lying man. Who should not admire the beauty of the world! We would not without reason expose (offerre) ourselves to dangers. We should rejoice at the prosperity of others! We should be affected in the very same way towards friends as (quo) towards ourselves. O that all men would honor virtue! Mayest thou always live happily (beate)! The sedition of the soldiers, a word of the general would have quieted. O that thou hadst been present sooner! I should not now be so unhappy. Whither should we have fled! Do not chatter, boys! We should always contemplate the heavenly and despise the human. Evil desires should always be restrained by the reason. We should contemplate the illustrious (illustis, e) examples of virtue which are pointed out in history.

OF THE CASES.

§ 88. A. The Genitive.

The genitive stands in answer to the question, whose? of whom? of what? and indeed, with the following words and expressions :

1. With misereor, I pity, and the impersonals me pudet, piget, poenitet, taedet and miseret, I am ashamed of, disgusted at, repent of, loathe, pity (something).

Infelicitum hominum misereor. Me miseret tui. Nunquam primi consilii deum poenitet. Me vitae taedet.

2. With egere and indigere, to need, want, (which also sometimes take the ablative), and the adjectives: cupidus, avidus, studiosus.

Aegrotus medicinae eget. Virtus plurimae exercitationis indiget. Vir sapiens veritatis est studiosus.

3. With the verbs: memini, reminiscor, obliviscor;—admoneo, commoneo, commonefacio aliquem;—with the adjectives: memor, immemor; conscius, nescius, inscius; gnarus, ignarus; prudens, imprudens; peritus, imperitus; consultus, rudis.

Pueri, meminérint verecundiae. Boni homines praeteriti temporis cum voluptate reminiscuntur. Verus amicus amici nunquam obliviscitur. Veteris te amicitiae commonefacio. Cono prudens rei militaris fuit. Beneficiorum memores estote.

REMARK 1. Memini, reminiscor, obliviscor are often, and recordor almost always connected with the accusative.

4. With many participles in ans and ens, when they have the meaning of adjectives, and with many verbal adjectives in ax.

Homo gloriae appetens saepe a virtutis via deflectit. Quis famulus amantior domini est, quam canis? Ciceronis aetas virtutum ferax fuit. Vir probus tenax est propositorum bonorum.

5. With verbs of accusing, criminating, condemning, convicting and acquitting, the charge or crime is put in the genitive (occasionally in Abl.).

REM. 2. The punishment when capital (caput) or when it is a fine is sometimes in the Gen. and sometimes in the Abl. Other punishments are generally put in the Acc. after ad.

Miltiades proditionis est accusatus. Cicero Verrem avaritiae coarguit. Themistocles absens proditionis est damnatus. Judex absolvit reum criminis. Athenienses Socratem capitis condemnarunt. Roscius parricidii accusatus est.

6. With the adjectives: particeps, expers, consors, exsors, proprius; similis, dissimilis, superstes (which are also found with the dative); pōlens, impōlens, compos; plenus, fertilis, inops (which are also found with the ablative).

Bestiae rationis et orationis sunt expertes. Homo rationis est particeps. Omnes virtutis compōles beati sunt. Ira impōtens sui est. Viri propria maxime fortitudo est. Terra variarum herbarum plena est.

7. The genitive with esse signifies: a) the object (person or thing) in which something is inherent, or to which something belongs (possessive genitive); b) the object to which something is peculiar, in which case, that which is peculiar to the object is commonly expressed by the infinitive; this last genitive may be translated by: It is the part, manner, custom, characteristic, duty, sign, mark of some one; it is incumbent on one, and the like.

Hic liber fratris mei est (belongs to my brother). Petulantia est adolescentium (is inherent in). Imbecilli animi est superstitio (belongs to). Virorum fortium est, toleranter dolorem pati.

REM. 3. Instead of: mei, tui, sui, nostri, vestri est, we must use here, meum, tuum, suum, nostrum, vestrum est, as: nostrum est, parentes amare.

8. The genitive or ablative of a substantive joined with an adjective stands with esse, in order to express the nature or quality of the subject (genitive or ablative of quality); this Gen. or Abl. may also, without esse, be joined to a noun as an attributive.

The Gen. denotes essential, the Abl. accidental qualities, hence, the the designations of measure by number, time and space are always expressed by the genitive (never by the ablative), these being essential qualities of an object.

Vir bonus summae pietatis (or summa pietate) erga deum est. Xerxis classis mille et ducentarum navium longarum fuit. Tarquinius fratrem habuit Aruntem, mitis ingenii (or miti ingenio) hominem. Aristotēles, vir summo ingenio (or summi ingenii), prudentiam cum eloquentia junxit.

9. The Genitive stands as an expression of the value, with verbs of valuing and esteeming, of buying and selling, as: puto, duco, aestimo,—pendo, facio, habeo,—emo, vendo,—enēo. Of this kind are the genitives: magnum, pluris, pluri- mi,—parvi, flocci, minimi,—tanti, quanti, nihili (much, more, very much, little, etc.) (Genitive of price).

Si prata et areas quasdam magni aestimamus, quanti est aestimanda virtus! Divitias minoris aestimare debemus, quam virtutem. Divitiae a sapienti viro minimi pulantur. Quanti emisti hunc librum? Discipuli praeceptores plurimi (or maximi) facere debent.

10. With the impersonal verb interest (it concerns), the person whom something concerns, stands in the genitive. Instead of the genitive of the personal pronouns: mei, tui, sui, nostri, vestri: meā, tuā, suā, nostrā, vestrā, are always used, and in this case refert can be used instead of interest in the same sense.

How much or how little one is interested in a thing is expressed: a) by adverbs, as: magnopere, multum, magis, maxime, nihil, parum, minime;—b) by the adverbial neuter: multum, plus, plurimum, minus, minimum, tantum, etc.—c) by the genitives: magni, pluris, parvi, tanti, quanti.

The thing which interests or concerns one, is not expressed by a substantive, but: a) by an infinitive; b) by the accusative with an infinitive; c) by a subsidiary sentence with ut (that), ne (that not) and the Subjunctive; d) by an indirect question (in the Subj.).—The general expressions: this, that, what one is interested in, are expressed by the accusatives: id, illud, quod, quid.

Interest omnium, recte facere. Quid nostra refert (interest,) victum esse Antonium? Praeceptoris multum interest, discipulos summo studio in literas incumbere. Magni mea interest (refert), ut te videam. Omnium magni interest feliciter vivere.

11. Finally, the genitive stands with a substantive as a nearer definition of it, as: hortus regis (= hortus regius). Comp. § 82, 2, b.)

REM. 4. Hence the genitive with the substantives: causā, gratiā, ergo which we render by on account of, for the sake of, and with instar, like. Instead of the genitives: mei, tui, sui, nostri, vestri: meā tuā, suā, nostrā, vestrā, are used with causā and gratiā, as: meā, tuā, suā, nostrā, vestrā causā or gratiā (on my account, thy account, etc.).

12. This attributive genitive signifies :

- a) the author or cause, as : conjuratio Catilinae ; desiderium patriae (longing after (excited by) one's country) ;
- b) the possessor, as : hortus regis ;
- c) the whole, from which a part is taken (partitive genitive), as : partes corporis.

The partitive Gen. stands also with other words besides nouns, when they signify a part of a whole, viz : with comparatives and superlatives, pronouns and numerals, and the neuters : multum, plus, plurium ; nihil, minus, minimum ; tantum, quantum, and the like used substantively, with adverbs of quantity, as : satis parum, and with adverbs of place in certain connections.

Duorum fratrum major nati. Cicero omnium Romanorum praestantissimus fuit orator. Romanorum unus. Multum pecuniae. Satis eloquentiae. Ubi terrarum? where in all the world? Nusquam terrarum, nowhere in the world.

REM. 5. The genitive in these cases must often be rendered into English by the prepositions : of, for, after, about, concerning, before, with, as : memoria praeteriti temporis (of), desiderium patriae (for), consuetudo amicorum (with).

CXX. Exercises for translation. (§ 88.)

I. a. We pity those who repent (= whom it repents) of their faults. A scholar, who loathes labor, will not make progress in literature. Who would not be ashamed of ignorance? Many are dissatisfied with their fortune. I pity thee my boy! We should pity those, who, by fortune not by wickedness, find themselves (esse) in adversity (miseriae, arum). The truth needs not approbation. The rich are often greedy after greater riches. A good scholar occupies himself zealously (studiosus sum) with literature. The ancient Germans were very eager for war. The people (gens) of the Gauls were very greedy for gold.

I. b. Who repent of their sins, may hope [for] pardon (venia). No one will repent of a good deed (actio). The indolent [man] will some time repent his indolence. Just as God pities thee, so thou shouldst pity others. Pity thou the destitute. Bad men are often wearied (tædet) of life. Thou wilt some time be ashamed of thy bad life. The powers of the body and the soul need exercise. Caesar and Pompey were very eager for fame. The wise [man] earnestly seeks (studiosus sum) a quiet life. We hate the men who are greedy of gold. Catiline was eager for a revolution (res novae).

II. a. Vespasian was unmindful of injuries (offensa, æ). Those men live happily who are conscious of no wickedness. The mind remembers the past, perceives (cernere) the present [and] foresees the future. The Romans were very skilful in war. Deserters (perfuga, æ) very familiar (= acquainted) with the country, had spied out (explorare) the march of the enemies. The spirit of man is ignorant of (nescius) [its] future fortune (fatum). Cinna forgot (perf.) the favors which he had received of Augustus. Remind not the wretched of his wretchedness (plur.). The soldiers, mindful of [their] former bravery, fought (perf.) spiritedly. We should forget favors conferred (conferre), [but] remember [those] received. The people of the Samnites were very skilful in war. The Scythians were unskilful in literature and the arts. The Romans always longed (appetens sum) after fame and were eager for praise. We hate the man despising divine and human laws. Camels endure (patiens sum) hunger and thirst.

II. b. The mind conscious of crimes cannot be quiet. A good man easily forgets an injury, [but] always remembers a favor. We hate those men who are unmindful of favors received. The ancient Germans were rude in the arts and literature. Already the youth should be mindful of age. Dionysius, the older, tyrant of Syracuse, was brave and acquainted with war. The wise [man] is always mindful of human frailty. Caesar and Pompey were two generals very skilful in warfare. Foolish men forget their faults, but see (cernere) the faults of others. Pursue those things dilligently in which thou art skilful, but abstain from those in which thou art unskilful. The general reminded (perf.) the soldiers of [their] former bravery. It is not necessary to remind an upright man of a favor. Cicero was versed (consultus) in justice and eloquence. The fate (fatum) of many peoples reminds us of human infirmity (infirmitas). The ancient Germans did not love (amans sum) arts and literature, but endured (patiens sum) thirst, cold, heat and labors. Man, by (abl.) nature, seeks (appetens sum) after propriety of conduct. We esteem a man loving virtue.

III. a. Many men accuse (insimulare) themselves of a sin, if they have spoken anything cheerful (= bright) in grief. Catiline was convicted (perf.) by Cicero of a conspiracy against [his] native country. Alcibiades, while absent (absens), was condemned to death. Brutus, the vindicator (vindex) of Roman freedom, condemned even (etiam) his sons to death. Phocion was accused of treason, because he had consulted (consulere) badly for (dat.) his country. The judge Coelius absolved him from injury, who had expressly (nominatim) injured (laedere) the poet Lucilius on the stage (scena). The human soul is partaking of reason. Alexander, not master of [his] anger, killed (perf.) his friend Clitus. Germany is very fruitful of grain. It is incumbent upon an orator, to speak fitly, clearly (distincte) and ornately. Wretched is he, who is destitute of friends. Fish are destitute of a voice. Greece, at the time of the Trojan war, was very productive of brave men. Human life is full of cares and troubles.

III. b. Pausanias, king of the Lacedemonians, was accused of treason. The Athenians charged (insimulare) Socrates with impiety (impietas adversus deos) and condemned him to death. Cicero charged (coarguere) Verres with the greatest avarice. Roscius was accused of parricide. Miltiades was accused of treachery and condemned to death, but afterwards was absolved from capital punishment (caput). Man alone of (ex) so many kinds of living beings is partaking of reason. The drunken [man] is not master of his understanding (mens). Alexander, king of the Macedonians, was not master of his anger. Beasts are destitute of reason and speech. Bravery is peculiar to man in the highest degree (maxime). The earth is full of various herbs, flowers and trees. The period of Augustus was productive of good poets, [but] destitute of good orators. Sicily is very productive of grain.

IV. a. Inconsiderateness is inherent in youth, providence in old age. To the Romans, in (abl.) the time of Augustus, belonged almost the whole of the then known circle of the earth. What belongs to me, belongs also to my friends. Great bravery was inherent in the Roman soldiers. It is the duty of the wise to teach the ignorant. It is a sign of inconstancy, now to trust and now to distrust the very same men. It is our duty to defend our country. It is the duty of the scholar, to apply himself with all his powers, to the study of the liberal arts and letters. It is not always a quality of the very same man, to think correctly and to express his thoughts elegantly in (abl.) discourse. A man of elevated soul despises riches. Caesar was not of large stature, but of a brave mind and a fierce spirit. The fleet of the enemies consisted of 253 ships. Cato possessed (= was of) a remarkable (singularis) wisdom in all things.

IV. b. In boys and youths waywardness is inherent, in men and old men seriousness. All Syria belonged to the Macedonians. It is the duty of the intelligent, to guide the unintelligent by counsel. In the people of the Samnites, a great knowledge of war was inherent. It is the duty of parents to bring up [their] children well. It is incumbent on you, O boys, to obey the precepts of your teachers! Every man may (by ease) err, but no one, except (nisi) the unwise, is wont (by ease) to persist in error. It is incumbent on the chiefs (princeps) in (gen.) the state, to look out for the welfare of the humble and poor. It is the duty of the wealthy, to relieve the want of the destitute. It is incumbent on young men, to honor old age. It is not the part of the wise [man], now to trust and now to distrust the very same view. It is your duty, O boys, to esteem your parents and teachers. It is incumbent on the principal men of the state (optimates), to listen to the prayers of suppliants with benevolent hearts. Agesilaus was of humble stature and small body. Boys of a quick genius and happy memory are adapted to (ad) the study of literature. The fleet of Xerxes consisted of 1200 ships. The ancient Germans possessed (= ware of, etc.) an immense size of body, incredible bravery and familiarity (= exercise) with war.

V. a. In every (omnis) service, we should value the will of the giver the highest. Alexander valued Hephaestion very high. For how much has thy father sold [his] garden? for just so much (tantundem), as (quantum) he gave for (= bought) it. We despise the men who esteem virtue [but] little. Pericles valued Anaxagoras, his teacher, very much. For how much did you buy this book? Parents are much interested, that [their] children be brought up well. I am much interested, that you apply yourselves with all zeal to the study of literature. All good men are much interested, to be loved by others. We are much interested in this, what good men judge concerning us.

V. b. We should value that (is) victory much, which is gained (parere) not by arms but by words. We value those (is) men much, who love virtue. The wise [man] esteems riches very little. Many esteem their own little, [but] desire another's. The traders sell [their] wares not so dearly (tantundem), as (quantum) they have bought them. How much has thy father bought the horse [for]? All citizens are much interested, that peace be restored. We are much interested, that we be instructed by good teachers. I am much interested, that thou mayest soon return from (ex) the journey. The state is much interested, that literature flourish (= bloom). All good citizens should be much interested, carefully to observe the laws.

VI. a. Homer is the oldest (vetus) of all the Greek poets. Socrates was the wisest of all the Greeks. No one of the Romans surpassed Cicero in (abl.) eloquence. Tarquinius Superbus was the last of the Roman kings. Virtue has in itself sufficient assistance for a peaceful life. The less honor there is to literature, so much the less studies there are. We draw much pleasure from literature. What kind (quid) of business are you pursuing? The scholar should be diligent in school, not so much (tam) on account of his teachers, as on his own account. We do much on account of friends, which we should not do on our own account. The Greeks built before Troy, a house like a mountain. Many Romans had houses like mountains. Misfortune is an occasion for virtue. We should strive to obtain intercourse with (gen.) good men. Not the fear of punishment, but the love of virtue should keep us from wrong. The memory of renowned men will be obscured by no oblivion. The passion for honor is a hard mistress.

VI. b. The city Syracuse was the greatest and fairest of all the Greek cities. Anciently the Spaniards dug up much gold and silver. Who lives in prosperity, has sufficient joy. From the reading of a good book, we draw very much (plurimum) pleasure. Hannibal was the most renowned general of the Carthaginians. Crassus had sufficient money, but too little (parum) prudence. More disadvantage lies (est) in the wrong itself, than advantage in the (is) things acquired by the wrong. These were called sophists by the Athenians, who pursued philosophy on account of gain or ostentation. The Egyptians built pyramids like mountains. Plato in his estimation of Cicero (= was to Cicero) equal to (instar) all philosophers. He is beneficent who acts (facere) kindly (benigne), not on his own, but on our account. True virtue desires (desiderare) no recompense for labors and dangers. Intercourse with true friends is agreeable. The remembrance of time happily spent (exigere) is agreeable. Hannibal burned (ardere) with (abl.) great hatred against the Romans.

§ 89. B. Accusative.

1. The accusative stands in answer to the question, whom? or what? It signifies a passive object, as: rex civitatem regit, or that which is produced by an action (effect), as: scribo epistolam. Hence it stands with all transitive verbs.

2. The following verbs take the accusative, although they might seem from their meaning to require a different case, and some of them are in fact occasionally constructed with prepositions in English: jūvo and adjūvo; deficio and fugio; aequo and aequipāro; deceat and dedēcet; sēquor, sector, aemūlor and imītor.

Atticus adolescentem Marium jūvit opibus suis. Fortes fortuna adjūvat. Tempus me deficit. Malus fugit bonum (flees before the good = flees the good.) So also: defugio, effugio, subterfugio. Pedītes equitem cursu aequabant (kept up with). So also adaequo. Verecundia deceat puerum. Gloria virtutem tanquam umbra sequitur. So also: consequor, subsequor. Equites regem sectabantur. So also consector. Quis Sullam imitetur? Virtutes majorum aemulēmur!

REM. 1. Many strictly intransitive verbs, also, govern the Acc. in Latin, when compounded with prepositions which govern the Acc.; or uncompounded when used transitively, or when the noun is from the same stem as the verb, as: vivere vitam.

3. The accusative stands in answer to the questions: how long? how far? how wide (broad)? how high? how deep? how thick? how many (much)? how great? etc.; as to what? (Greek, Acc.).

Quaedam bestiōlae unum diem vivunt. Cato annos quinque et octoginta natus (old) excessit e vita. Zama quinque dierum iter ab Carthagine abest. Turris pedes ducentos alta est. Vite caput tegitur.

4. The accusative stands in an exclamation either with or without an interjection.

Me miserum! O fallacem hominum spem!

5. A double accusative stands in the following cases:

- a) With verbs which signify to call (name); to make, choose, appoint one something; to account, consider as something; to show one's self as something; to give, take, have as something.

Julius Caesar dictatorem se fecit. Homines caecos reddit cupiditas et avaritia. Romulus urbem ex nomine suo Romam vocavit. Ciceronem universus populus consulem declaravit. Sapientem beatum habemus. Antistius se praestitit acerrimum propugnatorem communis libertatis. Athenienses Miltiadem sibi imperatorem sumpserunt. Epaminondas praepotorem habuit Lysim. Romani Ciceronem patrem patriae appellaverunt.

REM. 2. The passive of these verbs has a double nominative (§ 84.), as: pavo superbus dicitur.

b) With the verbs : celo, doceo, interrōgo ;—oro, rogo, flagito ; finally, posco, postūlo.

Ciceronem Minerva omnes artes edocuit. Ne quid turpe amicum roga ! Ego te sententiam tuam rogo. Nullam rem te celo.

REM. 3. But pelo (properly : I strive after), I request, entreat, is constructed with ab, and quaero (properly : I seek), I ask, with ab or ex, as : peto a te librum, quaero a (ex) te sententiam.

REM. 4. With most of the above verbs, in the passive construction, the personal object becomes the nominative and the accusative of the thing remains. Cicero a Minerva omnes artes edoctus est. Cato rogatus est sententiam. Still with verbs of demanding, the accusative of the thing becomes the nominative, and the accusative of the person remains and is governed by a preposition, as : pecunia a me poscitur, flagitatur.

CXXI Exercises for translation. (‡ 89.)

I. a. It is the duty of intelligent men to assist others with counsel. It is honorable (honestus) to emulate the good, [but] base to imitate the bad. No people of antiquity equalled (aequiparare) the Romans in (abl.) bravery. It becomes us to follow the example of good men. Time often fails the orator sooner (citius) than words (= the discourse). Fortune assists the bold. The soul escapes the view of the eyes. The women and children were accustomed to follow the army of the Germans. The temple of the Ephesian Diana was 400 feet long and 200 broad. No one of the Grecian orators equalled Demosthenes in power of discourse. Want and contempt follow indolence. Mithridates reigned 60 years, lived 72, [and] carried on (perf.) war 40 years with the Romans. Alcibiades died (perf.) about 40 years old (natus). Much becomes a boy, which does not become a man. Saguntum, the most powerful city of Spain, which Hannibal destroyed, was removed something like 1000 paces from the sea.

I. b. We assist him with delight who has assisted us. No one of the Thebans could equal Alcibiades in bodily powers. The enemies, whom the Romans followed swiftly, could not escape their hands. We should imitate those who love virtue. What becomes boys, often does not become men. It is our duty to assist the wretched. Flee the bad and emulate the good. The soldiers made (= drew) a trench 600 feet long, 8 feet broad, 10 feet deep. Death no one can escape. Not courage, but strength (plur.) failed our soldiers. Troy was besieged (perf.) 10 years by the Greeks. A long time the Lacedaemonians held (perf.) the supremacy of Greece. Theophrastus died (perf.) 84 years old (natus). In hatred against the Romans, no one equalled Hannibal.

II. a. Nicomedes, king of Bithynia, by his will, made the Roman people his heir. The Romans called the supreme (summus) council (= counsel) senate. The people chose Ancus Martius king. Duty demands, that (ut with Subj.) we behave (praestare) ourselves religiously and uprightly not only in great but also in small matters. We should acknowledge virtue as the greatest good to men. Children should conceal nothing from [their] parents. Jugurtha, by ambassadors, entreated Metellus for peace. The ambassadors of Darius requested (petere) help of the Carthaginians against Greece. Give me the book, which I long since (jam pridem) requested (perf.) of thee. I ask of thee thy opinion. Grain was demanded by the citizens. Reason makes man lord of the earth. Recompense for labor we consider honorable. The Parian marble the Greeks considered precious. [They] are ridiculous, who teach others what they have not themselves learned (=ascertained). Eumenes concealed from all, the journey, which he was designing to make (Subj. periphrast.). The greatest affairs were concealed from me by thee. Cicero, informed (= instructed) by the ambassadors of all [things], commanded (imperare) the pretors, that they should take (deprehendere) the Allobroges by ambuscade. The ambassadors demanded back of the enemies, all which had been taken from the citizens during (per) the truce. Socrates demanded of those, who enjoyed his instruction (ejus consuetudine utebantur), no money for his instruction. Caesar demanded of the Edui, the grain which they had promised (polliceri). Cicero was asked his opinion in the senate.

II. b. Friendship makes prosperity more splendid, and adversity lighter (levis). The resounding echo, Horace calls the image of the voice. Prosperity is not merely itself blind, but also generally makes (efficere) [those] blind, whom it has embraced. The soldiers demanded all the arms of the citizens of the captured city. All arms were demanded of the citizens. I ask thy opinion of this object. The ambassadors of the Gauls requested peace of Caesar. The Romans elected Camillus dictator. Eloquence effects, that (ut with Subj.) we may be able to teach others what we know. The Tarentines demanded of Pyrrhus, king of Epirus, aid against the Romans. The future has rightly been concealed from men, by the divine Providence. I have given thy brother the book which he had requested of me. The Athenians requested (petere) a general of the Lacedemonians. He is a true friend, who conceals nothing from us. Many youths were taught wisdom by Socrates. My friend, asked by me [as to] his opinion, concealed nothing from me. We esteem those (is) men much, who consider virtue the highest good. Cicero showed himself the most spirited defender (propugnator) of the common freedom. Catiline instructed (edocere) the youth, whom he had led away (illicere), in all bad deeds. The Tarentines, involved in (abl.) a war with the Romans, requested aid of Pyrrhus, king of Epirus.

§ 90. C. Dative.

1. The dative stands in answer to the questions: to whom? to what? for whom? for what? for whose advantage? for whose disadvantage? for what end? It generally stands with verbs and adjectives where, in English, the prepositions to or for are used to govern the case, or where the relation involved is similar to that expressed by these prepositions, as: do, placeo, prosum, noceo etc., utilis, inutilis, aptus, idoneus, gratus, similis, par, aequalis, communis, etc.

REM. 1. Hence all transitive verbs may take together with the Acc., the Dat. of the person (or thing) who shares in the action (Dat. of the remote object).

Do tibi donum. Epistolam tibi scribo. Non scholae, sed vitae discimus. Litterarum studium hominibus utilissimum est. Canis lupo similis est. Ratio omnibus hominibus communis est.

REM. 2. Similis and dissimilis are often also connected with the genitive.

2. The following verbs take the dative in Latin, while in English they take the accusative: nubo, parco, benedico,—maledico, supplico,—obtrecto, studeo,—arrideo, invideo persuadeo,—medeor and patrocīnor.

Venus nupsit Vulcano. Parce mihi. Ne infantibus quidem parcebat (not even children were spared). Benedicimus (praise) bonis, maledicimus (censure) malis. Donum tuum valde mihi arrisit. Probus invidet nemini. Mihi invidetur (I am envied). Omnibus amicis pro te libentissime supplicabo (entreat). Mali bonis obtrectare (disparage) solent. Nunquam tibi persuadebo. Mihi persuadetur (I am persuaded). Pueri litteris studere debent (study). Omnes homines libertati student (strive after). Philosophia medetur animis. Bonus bono patrocīnatur (protects).

REM. 3. Also, many verbs by composition with prepositions, especially with the following: ab, ad, ante, cum (con), de, ex, in, inter, ob, post, prae, pro, sub and super, acquire a meaning which makes them take the dative.

3. The dative stands with est and sunt to express the person or thing who has or possesses something. The thing possessed stands in the nominative as subject.

Suus cuique mos est. Semper in civitate [ii], quibus opes nullae sunt, bonis invident. Multi mihi sunt libri.

REM. 4. In nomen mihi est (I have the name, am called), the name stands either in the dative or nominative, as: nomen mihi est Carolo (Carolus).

4. The dative of the end (in answer to the question: for what end?), to which besides, a dative of the person is commonly added, stands:

- a) With sum, which, in this case, is to be rendered conduce to, serve for;
- b) With do, accipio, relinquo, deligo, mitto, venio, habeo, etc; also with do, duco, tribuo, verto in the meaning: to impute to.

Bonum non potest esse cuiquam malo. Virtutes hominibus deceri gloriaeque sunt. Virtus sola neque datur dono, neque accipitur. Pausanias venit Atticis auxilio. Vitio mihi dant, quod mortem hominis necessarii graviter fero.

CXXII. Exercises for translation. (§ 90.)

I. a. Nobody errs for himself alone, but spreads (spargere) folly (dementia) [also] among (in) those next [to him]. Pleasure flatters our senses. A good man labors for virtue, not for fame. Sleep is very much like death. Socrates, conscious of no wickedness to himself, did not supplicate the judges. Julia, daughter of Augustus Caesar, first married Marcellus, then Marcus Agrippa, finally (postremum) Tiberius. Time cures grief best. The more fortune smiles upon one (quis), so many the more friends he has. It is base, to disparage (obtreatare) the fame of a great man. The Germans from childhood (ab parvulis) earnestly pursued labor and hardness (duritia). No physician can cure all diseases. The sister of Atticus married (perf.) Cicero. Death spares no mortal. Bad men reproach the good. Neither of the two should we praise (benedicere), neither the impious nor the flatterer. The orator convinced the citizens of the advantage of his counsel. The wise [man] envies no one.

I. b. We live not merely for ourselves, but also for our country and other men. The dog is like the wolf. A good citizen obeys the laws with delight. Whoever reviles others, reviles himself [also]. It is easy to convince a good man of the value of virtue. It is base to disparage others (alter). It is a mark of an ill-disposed man, never to praise a good man. They have many friends, upon whom fortune smiles. Philosophy cures sick (aeger, gra, grum) souls. We are attached (studere) to those, who preserve (conservare) [their] fidelity. The upright [man] envies nobody, [but] is envied by many. Save time, O boys! Scarcely any one (ullus) of mortals, does fortune always smile upon. It is better (praestat), by the capital punishment of one wicked man, to restrain the wickedness of many, than on account of (propter) many wicked [men] to spare one. To the priestesses (sacerdos, ôtis) of Vesta, it was not permitted to marry a man.

II. a. Cicero possessed a remarkable eloquence. Man has many faculties of body and soul. In Sicily there is a volcanic mountain, called Aetna. Riches conduce to the destruction of (= are for destruction to, etc.) many men. Bad customs conduce to the destruction of a state. Just laws serve for safety to a state. Attalus, a king of Asia, gave his kingdom to the Romans for a present. Caesar left behind 500 soldiers for protection to the camp. Bravery is imputed to the Romans for praise. Caesar came to the city, besieged by the enemies, for aid. Poverty should be imputed to no man for a reproach. From whom hast thou received this book as a present? The father has given me the book for a present. Xerxes, king of the Persians, gave to Themistocles Myus (Myus, ûntis), a city of Asia, for a present. Industry is imputed for praise to the scholar.

II. b. Where caprice reigns (dominari), innocence has [but] little (levis) protection (praesidium). Man has a mortal body, [but] an immortal soul. My friend is called Charles. The struggle (= effort) after truth serves all men for ornament. God is not accustomed to aid (auxilio esse) those who thrust (immittère) themselves inconsiderately into danger. A victory won (parère) by treachery, does not conduce to the praise of the conqueror, but to [his] reproach. It is our duty to come for aid to the wretched. Caesar chose a fit place for the camp. Two thousand footmen and a thousand horsemen were left behind for protection to the city. The desire after dominion is imputed to Caesar for a fault. Modesty is imputed to a boy for praise, immodesty for censure. Contempt of money is imputed to men for praise. Caesar sent 3000 soldiers as aid to the besieged city.

§ 91. D. Ablative.

The ablative expresses :

1. The place in which something takes place (where?), as: terrā marique, hoc loco, also in connection with totus and omnis, as: totis campis, totā urbe, and so in many other similar expressions ; but otherwise in generally stands with ablatives of this kind.

2. The time in or within which something happens (when? and at or within what time?)

Qua nocte natus Alexander est, eādem Dianae Ephesiae templum deflagravit. Agamemno cum universa Graecia vix decem annis unam cepit urbem. Epaminondas die uno Graeciam liberavit.

3. The ground or cause (whereby? on what account? whence?); hence it stands with: gaudeo, laetor, glorior,—labōro, valeo, floreo,—excellō, praesto, sup̄ero,—fīdo, confīdo, nitor;—laetus, fretus, contentus, natus, ortus, genitus, etc.

In culpa sunt, qui officia deserunt mollitiā animi (from). Gubernatoris ars utilitate, non arte laudatur (on account of). Concordia res parvae crescunt, discordia maximae dilabuntur. Delicto dolere, correptione gaudere oportet. Salus hominum non veritate solum, sed etiam fama nititur. Nemo potest aut corporis firmitate, aut fortunae stabilitate confidere. (Fīdo and confīdo are quite as often, and diffīdo almost always joined with the Dat.) Contenti estote sorte vestra.

4. The means and instrument, also the material (where-with? wherefrom? whence?).

Oculis vidēmus, auribus audimus. Britanni lacte et carne vivunt.

REM. 1. When a person is employed as a means or instrument, the accusative is generally used with per, as: per tuum patrem miserā liberatus sum. With passive or intransitive verbs, the agent or doer is expressed by the ablative with the preposition a, as: mundus a deo creatus est. The accompanying person is expressed by the ablative with cum, as: cum fratre ambulavi.

5. Hence the ablative of the instrument or material stands more particularly :

- a) With verbs of furnishing, forming, instructing, being accustomed.

Natura oculos tenuissimis membranis vestivit et sepsit. So also with afficio, I affect (fill). Litterae tuae summo gaudio me affecerunt. Pater filium litteris erudit (or instituit, imbuat, instruit). Milites continuo labore assueti (assuefacti) erant.

- b) With expressions of fulness, plenty and want, as: abundo, affluo, and sateo,—compleo, satio, and careo,—egeo and indigeo; refertus, inops, praeditus.

Germania abundat fluminibus. Quid afferre consilii potest [is], qui ipse eget consilio? Miserum est carere consuetudine amicorum. Insula Delos referta erat divitiis.

REM. 2. Egere and indigere are oftener found with the genitive. See § 88, 2.

- c) With the impersonal opus est (there is need of), the thing stands in the ablative, the person in the dative. But when opus est is used personally, the thing stands as subject in the nominative.

Multis non duce tantum opus est, sed adiutore et coactore. Dux nobis opus est. Duces nobis opus sunt.

REM. 3. When the thing which is needed is a verb, it is generally the infinitive or the acc. with the infinitive. Nihil opus est, rem pluribus verbis commemorare. Si quid erit, quod te scire opus sit, scribam.

- d) With, utor, fruor, fungor, potior and vescor.

Multi beneficio dei perverse utuntur. Augustus Alexandria brevi potitus est. Vescimur bestiis. Cicero consulatu bene functus est.

REM. 4. Potiri rerum means, to appropriate to one's self (obtain) supreme power.

6. The ablative expresses that according to which something is measured or judged of (according to what?)

Magnos homines virtute metimur, non fortunâ. Quod rectum est, nec magnitudine aestimatur, nec numero, nec tempore.

7. Hence with the comparative, the object with which another is compared is put in the ablative instead of quam with the Nom. or Acc.

Pater filio doctior est, than the son, or pater doctior est, quam filius Patrem filio modestiorem cognovi.

8. Especially is the ablative used to express a respect or nearer definition (wherein? in what respect?).

Epaminondae nemo Thebanus par fuit eloquentiâ. Multi sunt corpore validi, mente infirmi. Magnus, major, maximus natus. Natione Medus fuit.

9. The ablative expresses the measure, and indeed:

a) In answer to the question: by how much (many)? particularly with comparatives and superlatives.

Sol multis partibus major atque amplior est, quam terra. Here belong the ablatives: multo, by much, much, parvo, parullo, by little, little, quo and quanto, the, eo and tanto, so much the.

b) In answer to the question: how long before or after? before the prepositions ante and post.

Numa Pompilius annis permultis ante fuit, quam Pythagoras. Laelius sermonem de amicitia habuit paucis diebus post mortem Africani.

REM. 5. But in the question: how long before or after the present time? the accusative is used with either ante, abhinc or post, as: ante tres annos te vidi. Post paucos dies te videbo. Tres abhinc dies amicum vidi.

c) With expressions of buying and selling, costing, hiring, exchanging, the price, and with dignus and indignus, the thing of which something is worthy or unworthy, worth or not worth stands in the ablative.

Hunc librum parvo pretio emi. Multorum sanguine et vulneribus ea Poenis stetit victoria. Excellentium hominum virtus imitatione, non invidia digna est. Veritas auro digna est.

REM. 6. Here belong also the ablatives: magno (for much, dear), parvo (for little, cheap), plurimo, minimo, tanto, quanto and the like, with verbs of buying and selling. Instead of the Abl. the Gen. is also used, as: magni, parvi, etc. (§ 88, 9).

10. The ablative signifies the way and manner in which something takes place.

Vir sapiens aequo animo injuriam fert.

11. Finally, the ablative stands with expressions of removing and separating, of freeing and depriving.

Caesar castra loco movit. Hospitem arcere tecto nefas est. Cognitio naturae nos levat superstitione, liberat mortis metu. Robustus animus et excelsus omni est liber cura et angore.

CXXIII. Exercises for translation. (§ 91.)

I. a. Xerxes brought (perf.) war upon Greece by land and by sea (mare). The enemies were discovered upon all the plains. In the second Punic war Hannibal wasted (perf.) the power (opes) of Italy. Socrates, on the last (suprēmus) day of his life, spoke (disserere, perf.) much concerning the immortality of the soul (plur.). Xerxes was conquered (perf.) more by the wisdom of Themistocles than by the arms of Greece. The minds of men are often tormented by distressing (acerbus, a, um) cares. We ought to grieve at faults, to rejoice at [their] correction (correctio). It is the part of a bad man to glory in his faults. Greece formerly flourished (= bloomed) in power (opes), dominion [and] glory. Crassus suffered from an immoderate desire for riches. Caesar, by his arrival, humbled (frangere, perf.) the Gauls trusting to (fretus) their bravery. The wise [man] does not trust to the stability of fortune. Upon the goods of the soul alone (solus, a, um) can we depend (niti). Nature is satisfied with little attention.

I. b. The Romans by sea (mare) and by land have carried on many wars. The colonies of the Syrians were spread (diffundere) over almost the whole circle of the world. The Romans awaited in a suitable place the attack of the enemies. In the spring the swallows return to us, in the autumn they go away. In the months October and November the fruits are collected from (ex) the trees. Not from fear but from choice the upright man avoids (= flees) wicked deeds. Navigation is praised on account of the advantage. Who would glory in his ignorance? Parents rejoice at the welfare of [their] children and grieve at their adversity. At nothing are we accustomed to rejoice so much (tam) as at the consciousness of our duties. The Roman state suffered from two vices, avarice and luxury. Aristides was distinguished (floreo) by the fame of [his] justice. Happy is he who trusts to virtue, unhappy [he] who rests upon riches or any other goods of fortune. The enemies, trusting to (fretus) the number of their troops, desired to fight. If we are contented with our lot, we shall be happy (beatus).

II. a. The sun illuminates the whole earth with its light. The ox defends himself with the horns, the horse with the feet, the boar with the teeth. Cicero, by his eloquence, had acquired for himself immortal fame. Cicero was expelled from Rome by Clodius. Parents, who have imbued the minds of their children with the principles of virtue, and instructed them in literature, deserve well (= deserve) not only of their children but also of the state. The earth, in the spring, is clothed with herbs and flowers. Crassus, king of Syria, abounded in gold and silver. Spain anciently abounded in lead, iron, silver [and] gold. God has filled the world with all good [things]. The sea is full of (scatere) fishes. It is a misfortune (miserum), to be deprived of (carere) the intercourse of friends. We all need (egere) the aid of others. The earth abounds in all things which men need (egere). Man is endowed with reason and speech. There is need of a wise general to even the bravest army. There is need of repose after labors, to the body and the soul. There was need of ready aid to the captured city. The Carthaginians were accustomed (perf.) formerly to use elephants in war. Pronounce (= extol) him happy who enjoys good health. Use the powers which God has given thee. Whoever (= who) wishes to obtain true renown, must perform the duties of virtue. The Numidians generally fed upon (vesci) milk and venison. Cimon, the son of Miltiades, had (uti) a very hard beginning of youth (adolescentia, ae). Alexander, king of the Macedonians, possessed himself of the whole Persian kingdom.

II. b. We see with the eyes, hear with the ears, smell with the nose (nares, ium), taste with the palate, feel with the nerves. Very high mountains are covered with perpetual (perennis) snow and ice. We often attain more by goodness than by force. The Roman state was delivered from destruction by Cicero. God has enclosed (sepire) and covered (vestire) the eyes with very delicate membranes. We ought to aid those most, who need (indigere) our aid most. They are all rich who are endowed with virtue. The fortunate abound with friends, the unfortunate are destitute (carere) of friends. The sun fills all [things] with its light. The Roman consul, Aemilius, enriched (ditare) his soldiers with great booty. Our mind is filled (afficere) with joy when we have done something good. Greece abounded in great poets. The body has need of food and drink (potio). When we act rightly, we have need of neither dissimulation (simulatio) nor deception (fallacia). Any one you please of the sailors can govern the ship in (abl.) a quiet sea, [but] when (ubi) a violent (saevus) storm has arisen, then they have need of a pilot. The Helots (Helôta, ae) with the Lacedemonians, performed the office of slaves. That (is) ship performs (conficere) the course best, which has (uti) the most skilful pilot. Many men abuse reason. Discharge scrupulously the office committed to thee. The covetous [man] does not enjoy the riches which he has. The Greeks anciently ate acorns. Alexander possessed himself of the kingdom of Darius.

III. a. Scholars in school, are judged of and estimated not according to rank (= genus), but good manners, a teachable spirit and active (acer) industry. The wise man measures men not according to fortune but according to character. There is nothing more amiable than virtue. Ireland is smaller by a half than Britain. Carthage was founded eighty-two years before Rome. Cimón, five years after he had been expelled, was recalled to [his] native country. In the sixty-second year after the founding of the city Rome (post urbem conditam), the third war against the Carthaginians was undertaken. The friend, whose arrival I had expected three days before, has come to day, and will depart again after ten days. Chrysogonus bought (perf.) a Corinthian vase for an immense price. For how much has thy father sold his horse? he has sold it for so much (tantum), as (quantum) he bought it for. The war has cost (stare) us much blood. An ungrateful mind is unworthy of favors. Virtue and wisdom are worthy of man. Receive those into friendship whom thou shalt consider worthy of thy love. The wise man endures the hardships of life with equanimity. Cicero, deprived of public offices, found satisfaction in the study of philosophy. The winds purify the air from noxious vapors. Timoleon, with incredible success (fortuna), expelled Dionysius from all Sicily.

III. b. Not according to greatness of stature, but from a brave and fierce mind we judge of a soldier. According to character, not according to property (facultates) we should estimate men. Nothing is more excellent than truth. No (nemo) Theban was equal to Epaminondas in eloquence. Pompey was only two years (biennium) older than Cicero. Carthage was founded eighty-two years after Rome and destroyed in the 700th year afterwards. Agricola died in the fifty-sixth year of his age, the tenth day before the Calends of September (ante Kalendas Septembres). My brother, who departed six days ago, will return after two years. The trader sells the wares for a greater price than he has bought them for from others. Thou canst buy neither virtue nor wisdom for gold. They are unworthy of favors who are unmindful of them. The victory over the Romans cost Pyrrhus, king of Epirus, much. The deeds of Caesar are worthy of eternal renown. They deserve praise who honor virtue. Folly is unworthy of man. Pausanias, king of the Lacedaemonians, lived, after the custom of the Persians, more luxuriously than was proper (par). Jugurtha expelled (perf.) Adherbal, an ally and friend of the Roman people, from his kingdom and all [his] possessions (fortuna). Themistocles, a general of the Athenians, delivered Greece from servitude.

1. The names of cities (towns, villages and small islands) of the first and second Dec. Sing. stand, in answer to the question where? in the genitive; but the names of cities of the third Dec. and of the Plur. of the first and second Dec., in the ablative, without in. In answer to the question, whither? they all stand in the accusative, and in answer to the question, whence? in the ablative, in each case without a preposition.

Ut Romae consules, sic Carthagine quotannis hini reges creabantur. Talis Romae Fabricius, qualis Aristides Athenis fuit. Pompeius hiemare Dyrrhachii et Apolloniae constituerat. Delphis Apollinis oraculum fuit. Cono plurimum Cypri vixit, Iphicrâtes in Thracia, Timothêus Lesbi. Curius primus Romam elephantos quattuor duxit. Pompeius Lucerid proficiscitur Canusium atque inde Brundisium. Lycurgus Cretam profectus est ibique perpetuum exsilium egit. Aechines cessit Athenis et se Rhodum contulit. Consul Româ Athenas profectus est.

REM. Domus and rus have the same construction as the names of cities: domi (at home), domi meae, tuae, suae, nostrae, vestrae, alienae, (at my house, etc.), domum (to the house), domo (from the house, home);—ruri (not rure), in the country, rus (into, to, the country), rure (from the country). Besides, humi (on the ground), domi militi-aeque or domi bellicae (at home and abroad, in peace and in war).

2. The words in apposition with the names of cities, as: urbs, oppidum, caput (chief city), in answer to the question, where? stand in the ablative generally without in; in answer to the question, whither? in the accusative without in; in answer to the question, whence? in the ablative without ab.

Archias poëta Antiochiae natus est, celebri quondam urbe et copiosa. Cicero profectus est Athenas, urbem celeberrimam. Demarâtus Corintho, urbe amplissima, Tarquinius fugit.

CXXIV. Exercises for translation. (§ 92.)

I. As long as Cicero was at Athens, he earnestly pursued philosophy. At Ephesus, a city of Asia, was a very renowned (celeber) temple of Diana. At Sparta was the most honorable (honestus) abode of old age. The arts and literature flourished (= bloomed) at Athens. Demarätus fled from Corinth, a city of Greece, to Tarquinii, a city of Etruria. Timotheus, compelled by the hatred of the ungrateful state, betook (perf.) himself to Chalcis. Marius was born and brought up (perf.) at Arpinum, a city of Latium. At Alexandria, a city of Egypt, was a renowned (eximius) library. Brutus proceeded to Ardea to the camp. Hannibal proceeded from Carthage to Spain. Dionysius, the tyrant, sent for (arcessere, perf.) Plato from Athens. Augustus died at Nola, a city of lower Italy (Italia inferior). I have lived three years at Rome, one year at Corinth, two years at Athens, two at Philippi, three at Sparta. My father will return home tomorrow from the country, and, after three days, will go again from home into the country and will pass the whole summer in the country. When I am in my house, I do not trouble myself (curare) about (acc.) what is without (alienus, plur.). When a friend is in the house of a friend, he is (versari) as it were, in his own house, not in another. The Egyptians embalmed (condire) the dead and laid them away (condere) at home. The Athenians were very renowned in peace (domus) and in war (militia). Many men would rather (malo) live in the country than in the city. By good counsels, the welfare of the state will be secured (constituere) at home and abroad. I shall remain at home, [but] my brother will go into the country.

II. In Sparta, the boys were scourged (caedere) with thongs (lorum) at the altar of Diana. Cicero, in Rhodes, attached himself (se applicare) to Molon. Artemisia, the wife of a king of Caria, built at Halicarnassus a famous (nobilis) sepulchre. In the times of Pericles, many renowned men lived at Athens. Hannibal was born at Carthage. Themistocles, presented with great presents by Artaxerxes, returned (perf.) to Asia and established (constituere) his abode at Magnesia. The corpse of Alexander was removed (transferre, perf.) from Babylon, the chief city of Assyria, to Alexandria, a city of Egypt. Dionysius, the tyrant, fled (perf.) from Syracuse, the most powerful city of Sicily, to Corinth, a very renowned (celeber) city of Greece. Cato took away (perf.) his life at Utica, a city of Africa. Hannibal was recalled from Italy to Carthage. Scipio often hurried away (evolare) from the city into the country, [and] then returned to business from the country into the city. Alexander died (perf.) at Babylon, the chief city of Assyria. The soldiers returned (perf.) home joyful at the victory. The soul in the body is, as it were, in a foreign house. In the time of Pyrrhus, the first elephants came to Rome. Nowhere does one live (vivitur) so conveniently (commode) as at home. Archimedes was killed (perf.)

at Syracuse, a city of Sicily, by a Roman soldier. Marius died at his house an old man. Laelius hastened forth (evolare) into the country from the city, as if (tanquam) from chains. The superiority (virtus) of Caesar had been acknowledged at home and abroad. Socrates brought back to the house the very same expression which he had carried forth from it. Cicero often lived in the country. The poet Ovid lived a long time (aliquamdiu) at Tomi, a city of Moesia, in exile.

§ 93. Remarks on the use of the Prepositions.

1. Ab and de (from, by, of) differ thus: a) of place, ab means, away from a place, de, down from, or away from.— b) ab is used with an active object, and hence stands with the agent or doer after passive verbs, de on the contrary, is used with a passive object.

Milites ab urbe profecti sunt. Lucretius de muro se dejecit. De foro cives discesserunt (away from the forum). Multae fabulae de Hercule a poetis fictae sunt (many fables have been invented concerning Hercules by the poets). Multa de te a fratre tuo audivi (I have heard much of thee from thy brother).

2. Circum is used only of place (not of time), as: terra se circum axem convertit.

3. The verbs: pono, loco, collōco, constituo, defigo and some others take in with the ablative where the accusative seems to be required, since they express motion.—Super and subter are very rarely used with the ablative.

CXXV. Exercises for translation. (§ 93.)

I. The Gauls were conquered (perf.) by Caesar. Caesar has related much of the Gauls. Cornelius Nepos wrote (perf.) a book concerning the life and customs of Cato. The life and customs of Cato were written by Cornelius Nepos. The citizens, besieged by the enemies, placed all hope in the wisdom and firmness of the general. From whom hast thou heard this news concerning the arrival of my father? from thy brother. We would place the highest good in virtue! The wise man fixes (defigere) his thoughts not upon pleasure, but upon virtue.

II. Cicero wrote (perf.) three books concerning duties. Three books concerning duties were written by Cicero. Excellent precepts have been left (tradere) us by Plutarch concerning the instruction of children (puer). Plato placed the reason in the head, anger in the breast. Cicero, in the first book of the Tusculan Disputations, speaks (disputa- re) of the immortality of the soul. Much has been related to us by our teacher of the bravery of the Romans. Cicero fixed (defigere) all his cares and thoughts upon the welfare of his country. Let us place a peaceful life in virtue!

§ 94. Of the use of the Pronouns.

1. The personal pronouns in the Nom. : ego, tu, nos, vos are expressed with the verb, only when a particular stress rest upon them, hence, especially in contrasts. The possessive pronouns also : meus, tuus, etc. are used only in this case, or for the sake of perspicuity.

Ego fleo, tu rides. Meus frater diligens est, tuus piger. But : Frater me amat (not : frater meus me amat).

2. The genitives nostri and vestri, like mei, tui, sui are objective (not possessive), but nostrum and vestrum are used partitively.

Memoria nostri (of us). Memor sum vestri. Memini vestri. Quis nostrum haec dixit? Nemo vestrum, sua officia explevit. Besides, we should distinguish : pars nostri, vestri (a part of us, you, = of our, your being), e. g. animus est pars nostri, from : pars nostrum, vestrum, a part or some of us.

3. The pronouns : sui, sibi, se; suus, a, um, are used when an object (person or thing), is opposed to itself.

Omnia animalia se diligunt. Haec oratio sibi repugnat. Alexander, quum interemisset Clitum, familiarem suum, vix a se manus abstinuit. Hannibalem sui cives e civitate ejecerunt. Dux cum militibus suis fugit. Oravi amicum, ut sibi consulëret.

4. When these reflexive pronouns stand as the subject of an Infin., or with a Part., or in dependent clauses and refer to the subject of the leading clause, they may generally be translated into English by, he, she, it, to him, to her, to it, him, her, it, they, them, to them.

Animus sentit, se sua vi moveri (the soul is conscious, that it is moved by its own power). Caesar exercitu per se comparato rempublicam liberavit (with an army collected by him). Caesar milites adhortatus est, ut se sequerentur (that they should follow him).

5. The oblique cases of is, ea, id, on the contrary, are used, when an object is not opposed to itself, but to another object; ejus, eorum, and earum in this case, are translated into English by his, her, their.

Pater ei ignovit (him, e. g. his son, or her, e. g. his daughter; but: pater sibi ignovit, himself). Pater semper ejus memor erit (his, e. g. friends). Pater eum valde diligit. Mater eam valde amat. Dux et milites ejus fugerunt (and his soldiers; but: dux cum militibus suis fugit). Caesar fortissimus fuit: ejus facta admiramur (his deeds). Hostes multas urbes exciderunt, earumque incólas in servitutem abduxerunt (and their inhabitants).

6. The pronoun ipse, a, um often stands with the personal pronouns, either in the same case with the subject, when the subject is contrasted with other subjects, or in the same as the object, when the object is contrasted with other objects.

Ego me ipse vitupéro (I and not another). Ego me ipsum vitupero (myself and not another). Saepe ii homines, qui sibi ipsis maxime placent, aliis maxime displicent. De me ipse loquor. De me ipso loquor.

7. The genitives: ipsius, ipsorum and ipsarum, which often stand in connection with the possessive pronouns, are to be translated into English by, own.

Meus ipsius pater (my own father). Mea ipsius mater (my own mother). Meum ipsius consilium (my own counsel). Tuus ipsius frater. Dux sua ipsius culpá victus est. Noster ipsorum pater. Vestra ipsorum mater. Duces sua ipsorum culpá victi sunt. Sorores mea sua ipsarum voluntate domi manent.

8. Besides what was said of the difference in usage between the interrogatives quis? quid? and qui? quae? quod? in Rem. 3. § 30; it should be here stated, that, when quis has a noun with it, the noun is to be regarded as in apposition with it; that quis inquires barely after the name of the person or thing (what), qui after its nature (what sort of), as: quis philosophus? (what philosopher?), qui philosophus? (what sort of a philosopher?).

REM. 1. For the distinction between the double forms of the indefinite pronouns quis, qua, quid, qui, quae quod, etc. See § 31.

9. The indefinite pronoun quis (qui), qua (quae), quid (quod), some one, one, is less emphatic than aliquis, etc., and stands most commonly after si, nisi, ne, num, quum, qui, quae, quod, quo or quanto (the, with the comparative).

Si quis de immortalitate animorum dubitat, insanus est. Vide, ne quem laedas. Num quis dubitat hac de re? Quo (quanto) quis sapientior est, eo (tanta) modestior est.

10. When quisque is connected with the pronouns sui, sibi, se, suus, it stands immediately after them.

Trahit sua quemque voluptas. Minime sibi quisque notus est.

11. When quisque stands after superlatives, it may be translated by precisely the, the very, and when it stands after ordinal numbers by each, every.

Sapientissimus quisque virtutem maxime amat (precisely the wisest). Quarto quoque anno (every fourth year).

12. Uterque (each of two, both) in connection with a noun takes the same gender, number and case as the noun; but when uterque is connected with a pronoun, this pronoun stands in the genitive. In both cases the predicate is in the singular.

Uterque dux clarus fuit (both leaders were renowned). Uterque eorum clarus fuit (both these were renowned). Uterque nostrum, vestrum (we both, you both). Quorum uterque (both of whom).

REM. 2. The plural of uterque is used when two parties are spoken of, to both or at least, one of which, several belong, or when it stands in connection with nouns used only in the plural, as: utrique duces (the generals, of which there are several on both sides). Utrique, Caesar et hostes. Utraque castra (both camps).

13. Uter, alter, neuter are used when the discourse is of only two; quis, alius, nullus, on the contrary, when the discourse is of several.

Uter fratrum ad te venit (which of the two brothers)? Uter vestrum hoc dixit (which of you two)? Duo sunt fratres: alter (the one) litteris operam dat; alter (the other) miles est. Neuter nostrum (neither of us two). When a comparison occurs with uter, alter, neuter, the comparative is used where we sometimes use the superlative, as: uter fortior est? which of the two is the bravest?

14. The phrases, alius aliud, alius aliter, etc., are translated: the one this, the other that; the one in this way, the other in that.

Alii aliud probant. Alii aliter vivunt.

REM. 3. The indefinite pronouns, one, they, we are expressed in Latin:

- a) By the third Pers. Plur. Act. as: dicunt, ferunt, tradunt;
- b) By the third Pers. Sing. Pass., as: narratur; bene vivitur;
- c) By the personal Pass., as: amor, one loves me, amaris, one loves thee, sapientes beati existimantur, we account the wise happy;
- d) By the first Pers. Plur. Act. (in this case the speaker must be included under the one), as: viro sapienti libenter paremus;
- e) By the second Pers. Sing. Act., particularly of the Subj., as: credas (one may believe).

CXXVI. Exercises for translation. (§ 94.)

I. a. Parents love their children. Manlius punished (multare) the bravery of his son with death. The remembrance of you will always be agreeable to us. To each of us the love of life is inborn. The soul is the governor of us. The hand is a part of us. A part of us, to-morrow, will betake ourselves into the country. Pity thou me, wretched. Few of us have fulfilled their duties. A good king cares less for himself than for the welfare of the citizens. The wise man zealously corrects the faults inborn in him. So long as Hannibal was in Italy, nobody resisted him in battle (acies). After the general had fallen (perf.) in battle, the soldiers fled. My friend and his son have set out for Rome. The Allobroges entreated (orare) Umbrenus, that (ut with Subj.) he would pity them. Cicero had effected by Fulvia, that (ut with Subj.) Curius might disclose (aperire) to him the plans of Catiline. The Germans occupied themselves (studere) with agriculture, and the greatest part of their food (victus, us) consisted of (consistere with abl.) milk, cheese and flesh. I have often reflected (cogitare) with myself concerning the immortality of the soul (plur.). We see (cernere) faults (delictum) in others more than in ourselves. The soul itself moves itself. Our soldiers have conquered the enemies, not by the wisdom (consilium) of their general, but by their own bravery. We ought to care (inservire, c. dat.) not only for our own advantage, but also for [that] of others.

I. b. Children love their parents. It is the duty of the king to look out for the welfare of his subjects. Lysander, king of the Lacedæmonians, left behind (perf.) a great report of himself. With delight we pity thee. Each of us will always recollect thee and thine. I shall always preserve a recollection of you. The best part of us is immortal. A part of us had remained at home. Many of us have deserved [well] of (de) our country. The general and his soldiers have distinguished themselves in battle by bravery. Men use beasts for their advantage. [His] friends exhorted Darius, that (ut with Subj.) he should subject Greece to himself. The king Eurystheus commanded (imperare) Hercules, that (ut with Subj.) he should bring (afferre) to him the arms of the queen of the Amazons. Cleopatra admitted (admittere) a viper (aspis, idia) to herself and was killed (extinguere, perf.) by its poison. After the encounter at Issus, the mother of Darius, his wife and his daughter, were taken captives. We ourselves ought to govern (imperare) ourselves. Virtue itself protects itself. Many are wise for themselves indeed, but not for others. The (is) general cannot restrain (continere) [his] army, who does not restrain himself (se ipsum). The companions of Ulysses perished (perf.) by their own folly. Many evils happen to us by our own fault (culpa).

II. a. Each one is the architect (faber) of his fortune. Assign to each his own. With the greatest difficulty (= most difficulty) does each one judge correctly of himself. Each one ought to protect his own. Precisely the best [man] undertakes most easily dangers and labors for his country. Money has always been despised by the very best [men]. Every fifth year, all Sicily was rated (perf.) Demosthenes and Cicero were the most renowned orators of antiquity; to which dost thou give the preëminence (palma)? Virgil, Ovid and Horace were very distinguished poets of Rome; which dost thou consider the best? Each is a fault, both to believe each and [to believe] neither. I believe neither, neither thee nor thy brother. Both, Homer and Virgil, were distinguished poets; the one of them was a Greek and the other a Roman. Both, the Romans and the enemies, fought bravely. One excels in this, another in that. One occupies himself with this, another with that.

II. b. Each virtue deserves (deberi) its particular (proprius) praise. Each has (by esse) his way. Each is accustomed to measure dangers according to his fear. Fortune will form each one by his character. The very best, we ought always to place before (propônere) others for imitation. The olive (olêa) does not bear every year, but generally every two (alter) years. Who of you has heard this news? Who is the greatest orator of antiquity? Scipio and Hannibal were very renowned generals, the one was the general of the Romans, the other of the Carthaginians; which dost thou prefer? The very most learned men are the most modest. Both, Caesar and Pompey were great men; which dost thou consider the greatest? Both the Romans and the Germans were very brave; which considerest thou the bravest? Neither of us all is free from faults. Neither, neither the wicked [man] nor the flatterer, ought we to praise. Dangers threaten one from here (= hence), another from there (= thence). This pleases one, that another.

III. a. Justly one censures those who act rightly from (prae) fear. All is uncertain, when one departs (discedere) from right. One laughs. They praise me. One has praised me. The earth is surrounded (circumfundi) by that sea which we (= one) call ocean. We prepare the mind for (ad) all. He who fears what one can avoid, can in no manner live with a quiet mind. In prosperity, let us flee pride and arrogance. Without virtue we cannot be happy. What is sweeter, than to have [a friend] with whom one may dare to speak as with himself? It is becoming, to do religiously what one does.

III. b. They called those philosophers sophists, who pursued philosophy for gain or ostentation. They run. Honorable conduct (= the honorable) excites (movere) the approbation of those with whom one lives. They will censure me. We deride fools. The perversities (pravitas) of the soul, one properly (= correctly) calls faults. The means of living (victus) and care of the body, we refer to health and strength, not to property. How short is the longest life of man, when one compares (subj.) it to eternity! What one has promised, he must make good. By entreaties, one often effects (perficere) more than by force. It is becoming, not to censure that which one does not understand (intelligere, Subj.).

§ 95. Of the Numerals.

1. Concerning mille and mitia, see § 33. Rem. 4.

2. The distributives, which answer the question, how many each? or how many at a time? are used when one wishes to express, that a number is divided equally among several objects, or a certain number of times.

Pater filiis senos libros dat (six books a piece, i. e. the father gives each of his sons six books; hence, if we suppose three sons, the father divides eighteen books into three equal parts). Sex fossae, quinos pedes altae, ducebantur (each six feet deep).

3. Besides, the distributives are used for the cardinal numbers with nouns which have only the plural, as: bina castra, two camps. For singuli, ae, a, in this case, uni, ae, a is used, as: una castra, one camp, unae nuptiae, one wedding, unae litterae, one letter, trina castra, three camps (but: terna castra, three camps a-piece).

CXXVII. Exercises for translation. (§ 95.)

I. A thousand soldiers have defended the city spiritedly against 3000 enemies which assaulted it. All (omnis) Gaul which is embraced (continere) by the Pyrenees mountains, the Alps and the Sevens (mons Gebenna) is 3,200,000 paces. The leader of our army has pursued the enemy with 1000 soldiers. As at Rome two consuls, so at Carthage two kings, were annually elected. The Roman legions consisted (esse) at certain times of 5000 footmen and 300 horsemen. The army of the enemies had pitched 2 camps, ours 3. The father wrote a letter to each of his 4 sons. Very often by a truce, have the already enfeebled powers of an army been restored (reparare). Two acres of land a-piece were divided (perf.) to the people. The mother gave to each child 1 apple, 6 pears, 7 plums, 8 cherries. The enemies pitched (perf.) 3 camps, each of which 3 trenches surrounded.

II. The army of the enemies consisted (esse) of 28,000 footmen and 13,500 horsemen. According to (ex) the opinion of Posidonius, there are 20,000,000 stadia from the earth to the moon [and] 5,000,000 stadia thence to the sun. The citizens with 1000 soldiers have defended the city against the enemy. The mother gave (perf.) to each boy 2 apples, 3 pears, 4 plums and 12 cherries. Caesar divided (perf.) among (dat.) the people, man for man, 10 bushels of grain and just so many pounds of oil and 300 sesterces (nummus). The enemies drew (perf.) around the camp 3 trenches, 11 feet deep and 6 feet broad. Two walls surround the city, 18 feet high and 8 feet broad. The towers upon the walls of Babylon, were about 10 feet higher than the walls. In each camp of the enemies, there were 7000 footmen and 4000 horsemen. Cicero received (perf.) in one day, 3 letters from (ex) each of three different places. How many scholars are in a class in (gen.) your school? about 30. The fingers of men have 3 joints, the thumb 2. A father divided (perf.) equally among (dat.) his 4 sons 4444 dollars, how many dollars did each receive (perf.)? 1111. My brother has 3 writing-tablets. Yesterday I received (perf.) 2 letters. The city has 6 towers, each of which is 268 feet high. After a long time, at length (tandem) a letter came, and this whole letter consisted (esse) of these 22 letters: Si vales, bene est; ego valeo.

§ 96. Infinitive.

The Infinitive is used:

- a) As subject, as: dulce et decōrum est pro patria mori;
- b) As object; this is especially the case with verbs signifying to will, to be able, ought, should, as: volo (cupio, studeo, possum, debeo) discere.

REM. 1. In animated description, the Latins often used the Infin. Pres. for the finite verb (historical infinitive), as: multum ipse pugnare, saepe hostem ferire.

REM. 2. For the Acc. with the Infin., see § 105.

§ 97. Supine.

1. The Supine in um stands with verbs of going, coming, sending, calling, in order to express the end of these verbs. It takes the same case as its verb.

In urbem migravi habitatum. Ingens hominum multitudo in urbem convēnit ludos publicos spectatum.

2. The Supine in u stands: a) with many adjectives as a nearer definition of them, as: dulcis, jucundus, molestus, dignus, indignus, facilis, difficilis; b) with fas est (it is lawful), nefas est (it is not lawful) and opus est.

Pira dulcia sunt gustatu. Fas est dictu. Nefas est dictu. Deliberatu opus est.

CXXVIII. Exercises for translation. (§§ 96, 97.)

I. To a cultivated and learned man, to think is to live. They, whose fathers or ancestors have distinguished (praestare) themselves by some renown, seek to excel in the very same kind of praise. Practice teaches to bear (ferre) labor. Without virtue nobody can be happy. The army hastens, in order to deliver the city from the siege. The Romans sent (perf.) ambassadors to Delphi, in order to consult the oracle. What is so pleasant (jucundus) to perceive and to hear, as a discourse adorned with wise thoughts and weighty (gravis) words? An unripe grape is bitter to taste. The fish is easy to catch in disturbed water.

II. To prefer money to friendship is base. Poets wish both to delight and to profit. The soul cannot decay. It is easier to see errors than to correct [them]. All that comes to pass by our fault (culpa), we ought to bear patiently. A great multitude of men assembled (perf.) in (in with acc.) the city, in order to see (spectare) the public games. The shorter a narrative is, the plainer (dilucidus) and easier it is to understand (cognoscere). The orators pass over all which is base to speak.

§ 98. Gerund.

1. The gerund in the Nom. in connection with est, as: scribendum est, is translated into English: it is to be (written) or: one must, one should (write). The person which must or should do something is put in the dative. Hence we may translate it into English by: I, thou, he, she, it must, should (write), we must, should (write), etc.

2. The gerund, like the infinitive, takes the same case as its verb. But instead of the gerund with an object in the accusative, the gerundive is used. See § 99. 1.

Obtemperandum est virtutis praeceptis. Suo cuique iudicio utendum est (each one must use his own judgment).

3. The remaining cases of the gerund supply the cases of the Infin. Still the Acc. of the gerund is used only in connection with a preposition. The use of the cases of the gerund is the same as the use of the cases of substantives.

Nom. Natare est utile (swimming is useful).

Gen. Natandi ars utilis est (the art of swimming is useful). Natandi sum peritus (I am skilled in swimming).

Dat. Natando homo aptus est (man is fitted for swimming).

Acc. Natare disco (I learn to swim, or swimming); but: ad natandum homo aptus est (is fitted for swimming, or: to swim). Inter natandum (while swimming); ob natandum (on account of swimming).

Abl. Natando corporis vires exercentur (by swimming). In natando (in swimming), a natando (by swimming), ex natando, de natando.

REMARK. The Gerund being of the nature of a noun, is governed in its different cases in the same manner as a noun.

4. The gerund in the oblique cases also, like the Infin., takes the same case as its verb. Still, instead of the gerund in the Dat. and Acc. with an object in the accusative, the gerundive is used. See § 99. 1.

Ara pueros bene educandi difficilis est. Pauci idonei sunt ad aliis imperandum.

CXXIX. Exercises for translation. (§ 98.)

I. Man should always think that life is short. The laws of Lycurgus formed (erudire) the youth by labor, by hunting, running, hungering, thirsting, freezing, sweating. The effort to relieve the misery of others, is very agreeable to good men. Avoid thou all enticements to (gen.) sinning (peccare). Not for (dat.) the school, but for life we should learn. A good scholar is desirous of learning much. During (inter) the deliberation (consultare) one ought not to contend (decertare) with arms. One must not spare an enemy. Boys and youths should use exercise of body and mind. Who has not learned to obey, is not fit (idoneus) to command. Caesar and Pompey were inclined (propensus ad) to spare the enemies. By nothing do men approach (accedere) nearer to God, than by giving safety to men. By teaching we learn.

II. It is sufficiently known, that good men must contend with the bad. Socrates was accustomed, by inquiry (percontari) and questioning (= asking) to elicit the sentiments (opinio) of those with whom he discoursed (disserere). One must come for aid, not merely to the body, but much (multo) more to the understanding and the mind. We should forget injuries. Who does not know, that the hope of impunity is a very great enticement to (gen.) sin (peccare). All the citizens burned (exardescere, perf.) with desire to fight for the safety of their country. One must use the occasion. Learn, O boys, early the art of using time wisely! Few men are fitted (idoneus with dat.) to speak. Man is born to act. The Persians were very skilful in (gen.) riding. The character (mos, plur.) is discovered (= uncovered) in (inter) playing freely. From delaying (cunctari) Fabius was called the delayer. One must abstain from ignoble pleasures.

§ 99. Gerundive.

1. When the gerund would take an object in the accusative, the gerundive is commonly used instead of the gerund in the Gen. and Abl. and always instead of the gerund in the Nom., Dat. and Acc. The agent or doer, as with the gerund, stands in the dative.

2. The change of the construction of the gerund into that of the gerundive takes place in the following manner :

- a) The noun standing in the Acc. with the gerund, is put in the same case in which the gerund stands ;
- b) The gerund is changed into the gerundive.
- c) But the gerundive is put in the same case, number and gender as the noun.

E. g. If in the phrase : ars pueros educandi one would use the gerundive instead of the gerund, he must : a) put the Acc. pueros in the case of the gerund educandi, hence in the Gen. : puerorum (ars puerorum) ; b) he must then change the gerund educandi into the gerundive educandus, a, um ; c) finally, must put this gerundive in the same gender, number and case as puerorum, hence educandarum.

Nom.	Nobis bene educandum est pueros , must be changed into :	Pueri nobis bene educandi sunt.
Gen.	Ars civitatem gubernandi est difficillima ; for which commonly :	Ars civitatis gubernandae est difficillima.
Dat.	Asinus idoneus est onera portando , must be changed into :	Asinus idoneus est oneribus portandis .
Acc.	Puer aptus est ad litteras tractandum , must be changed into :	Puer aptus est ad litteras tractandas .
Abl.	Litteras tractando ingenium acuitur, for which commonly :	Litteris tractandis ingenium acuitur.

REMARK. But the gerund in the Gen., Dat. and Abl. is not changed into the Gerundive when the object in the Acc. is the neuter of an adjective or pronoun, as : studium vera cognoscendi (not verorum cognoscendorum), cupidus sum hoc audiendi (not hujus audiendi).

3. The gerundive stands also with verbs signifying to take, to give, care, attend to, give up, cause and the like, in order to express an intention or end.

Urbs a duce militibus diripienda data est (for plundering). Urbem dux militibus diripiendam dedit. Perfugam Fabricius reducendum curavit (caused to be led back).

CXXX. Exercises for translation. (‡ 99.)

I. When wrath moves thee very much (maxime), thou must curb thy tongue very carefully. The art of governing (gubernare) a state well and wisely, is very difficult. Many are more desirous of increasing [their] riches than of exercising [their] virtue. One must account wisdom the art of living well and peacefully. The camel is fitted (aptus, a, um, with dat.) for bearing great loads. Water is very useful for preserving our health. Gymnastic exercises avail very much (plurimum) for (ad) confirming the health. The Phenicians were very skillful in the art of governing ships. No possession is to be esteemed higher than virtue. The soldiers tried (experiri) all [things] in order to (ad) capture the city. The first book of Cicero's Tusculan Disputations treats (est) of the contempt of death; the second of the enduring of pain; the third of the relieving of sorrow. Socrates passed (perf.) [his] whole life in improving the morals of others. To be drawn (abducī) from active duties (res gerere) by the effort to investigate truth, is inconsistent with duty (contra officium). The life of the wise man consists in the exercise of virtue. Good parents bestow (collocare in with abl.) all care upon the proper (= good) bringing up of their children. Some (nonnulli) sports are not unprofitable for (dat.) sharpening (acuere) the wits (ingenium) of boys. The contempt of death avails very much in delivering the soul from fear. Nature has given (tradere) to woman, the attending to (procurare) and managing (administrare) the domestic affairs (res). Caesar gave up (concedere) the taken city to the soldiers, for plundering (diripere). Good parents take care (curare) to instruct their children well.

II. He (is) is to be accounted (existimare) free, who serves no vice (turpitudō). The desire (cura) to preserve itself, is inborn by nature in every living being. In joking (jocari), we must preserve (adhibere) temperance. The faculty of curbing the tongue is very useful. Many, on account of a desire for fame, are desirous to carry on war. We should pronounce nobody happy before death. Virtue has the greatest power of freeing minds from the passions. Soldiers should know how (= be acquainted with) to endure hunger and thirst. Innumerable things have been created by God in order (dat.) to delight men. Many plants are useful for (dat.) healing wounds. How many things are necessary for the preservation of life! Thou must try all [things] in order to obtain the praise of the good. The winds are very useful for (ad) dispersing the injurious dust. By the pursuit (tractare) of literature, we should become (evadere) not merely more learned, but better also. The book of Plutarch concerning the bringing up of children (puer) contains many useful precepts. In the performance (persēqui) of all duties, one must bestow an effort (contentio) of the soul. Be unwilling to receive an office to the management (administrare) of which thou art not competent (= hast not grown). In the selection (eligere) of friends, we should bestow the greatest foresight. Conon caused (curare) the walls of Athens, destroyed by Lysander, to be repaired (reficere). We give the boys good books to read. Mithridates took means (curare) to kill all Roman citizens in (abl.) the whole of Asia in one day.

1. The participle, like the Infin., governs the same case as its verb, as : epistolam scribens, hostibus parceris, and like an adjective, agrees in gender, number and case with its noun, as : puer laudatus, puella laudata.

2. The participle is used as follows :

- a) Wholly as an adjective, as : rosa florens pulchra est (the blooming rose). Rosa est florens (the rose is blooming) ;
- b) Instead of the relative who, which with some form of the finite verb, as : cives acriter cum hostibus dimicabant urbem oppugnantibus (who were assaulting the city) ;
- c) Instead of the conjunctions, while, as, after, when, if, because, since, although with the finite verb, as : cogitantes coelestia, haec nostra ut exigua et minima contemnimus (when we think upon heavenly things). Hostes, amnem transgressi, castra muniverunt (after they had passed over the river).

3. The Part. Fut. Act. is often used in order to express a design or purpose, and in this case is to be rendered by that, in order that with the finite verb, or by in order to with the Infin.

Ingens hominum multitudo in urbem convēnit ludos publicos spectatura.

4. There are two kinds of participial construction in Latin: the one is called the conjunctive participial construction, the other the ablative absolute. Since we generally translate the participle into English by a subordinate clause, the difference between these two constructions may be explained as follows:

- a) The conjunctive participial construction is used, when the subordinate clause has no subject of its own, but has for its subject either the subject or object of the principal clause. In this case, the participle agrees in gender, number and case with this subject or object.

Sol oriens pellit noctem (when the sun rises, it (i. e. the sun) chases away the night). Aristides, patriā pulsus, Lacedaemōnem fugit (as Aristides had been expelled from his country, he (Aristides) fled to Lacedaemon). Hostes, victoriam adepti, in castra se receperunt (after the enemy had obtained the victory, they (the enemy) returned to the camp). Caesar hostes fugatos persecutus est, after the enemy had been put to flight, Caesar pursued them (the enemy).

- b) The ablative absolute is used, when the subordinate clause has its own subject, which is neither the subject nor the object of the principal clause. In this case the subject of the subordinate clause stands in the ablative and the participle is added in the same case.

Sole oriente, nox fugit (when the sun rises, the night flees). Recuperatā pace, artes efflorescunt (as soon as peace is regained, the arts flourish).

REM. Very often both the conjunctive participle and the ablative absolute may be translated by a substantive with or without a preposition, as: the rising of the sun dispels the night; after obtaining the victory, the enemy returned to the camp; with the setting of the sun night flees.

REM. 2. Substantives and adjectives also, are often used in the same way as participles, as: bellum Gallicum, Caesare imperatore, gestum est (under the conduct of Caesar). Naturā duce, errare nullo pacto potest (under the guidance of nature). Natus est Augustus, Cicerone et Antonio consulibus (in the consulship of Cicero and Anthony).

CXXXI. Exercises for translation. (§ 100.)

I. a. What is so inhuman, as to convert (convertère) eloquence, which is given by nature for the safety and preservation of men, to the destruction of the good? Change of country does not always change the morals. The enemies pitched a camp in a place which was surrounded by marshes (palus) and woods. When we wish to begin (exordior) a work, we must (gerundive) bestow a careful preparation. Tarquinius Superbus was deprived of [his] dominion, as he was besieging Ardea. Since the Romans feared the snares of the Germans, they returned over the Rhine. After Dionysius the tyrant had been expelled from Syracuse, he instructed (docère) boys at Corinth. A laugh sometimes breaks forth so violently, that we cannot, even when we desire, restrain (tenerè) [it]. Hephaestion, of all the friends of Alexander, was the most dear, because he had been brought up in like manner with himself. When the storks wish to migrate (abire) they assemble at (in with acc.) one place. In the third Punic war, Scipio passed over to Africa in order to destroy Chathage.

I. b. What do eighty years, which are spent (exigère) in (per) inactivity (inertia), profit (juvare) a man? Two friends are like one soul which dwells in two bodies, When Alexander had possessed himself of Egypt, he built Alexandria. Hipparchus, a son of Pisistratus, fell in the battle of Marathon (Marathonius, a, um), while he was bearing arms against his country. Sulla was sent to Asia, in order to carry on war with the king Mithridates. After the enemies had possessed themselves of the city, they plundered it. By day (interdiu) we do not see the stars, because they are obscured by the light of the sun. We have confidence in upright men, even if they are not sworn. The enemies dispersed (dilâbi, perf.) into the city, in order to protect themselves, by (abl.) the walls (moenia). We cannot live happily (beate), if we fear death.

II. a. When we strive against nature, the labor is vain. Men have invented innumerable arts, while nature taught [them]. What solicitude would torment the wicked, if the fear of capital punishment were taken away? Since God guides human affairs, we should be destitute of all fear. When humanity is extirpated from the soul, the man ceases to be man. When Cato had read through (passive) the Phædo of Plato, he took his life. Under the reign of Augustus, the Roman empire was rated (perf.). After the troops were drawn together, the general determined (perf.) to attack the camp of the enemies. After taking away piety and religion, disturbance of life and a great confusion follow. At the instigation (by auctor) of the magians, Xerxes was to have burned (inflamare) the temples of Greece. The wise man remains rich even after the loss (amittere) of all the goods of fortune. We hope, that our army, which has distinguished itself under the conduct (regere) of a bad general, will acquire for itself still (etiam) greater glory under the conduct of a good general.

II. b. When pleasure (voluptas) reigns (dominari), all great virtues are in a low condition. The wise man will not be unhappy, after the loss of all his goods. After the rising of the sun, the mists were scattered (discuti, perf.). After a knowledge (cognoscere) of the nature of all things, we are freed (levare) from (abl.) superstition. Caesar, after the line-of-battle of the enemies was broken through and scattered, led back his soldiers into the camp. The sedition of the soldiers, which had been quieted by the wisdom (consilium) of the general, broke out again (recrudescere, perf.) in his absence. After the expulsion of the kings, Junius Brutus and Tarquinius Collatinus were made consuls. Under the reign of Augustus, Christ was born; under the reign of Tiberius, he died. The Greeks took possession of Thermopylae as the Persians approached. Caesar, although he had conquered (passive) the Gauls, did not dismiss the army. The Greeks, under the conduct of Cimon, fought against the Persians at Marathon. Because the night came on (ingruere), Caesar led back his soldiers into the camp.

COMPOUND SENTENCES.

§ 101. A. Coördinate Sentences.

1. Coördinate sentences are those which have a common reference to each other, but otherwise are independent of each other, as: Demosthenes was a great orator, Cicero also was a great orator.

2. The relation of coördinate sentences is:

- 1) Copulative, which is expressed: a) by: et, atque, ac (never before a vowel or h), que, and; b) by: etiam, quoque, also; c) neque or nec (and not, also not); d) et—et, both—and, as well—as also; e) non modo (solum, tantum)—sed etiam, not only (merely)—but also; f) quum—tum, so well—as especially; g) modo—modo, or nunc—nunc, or tum—tum, now—now, then—then; h) neque (nec) —neque (nec), neither—nor;
- 2) Adversative, which is expressed by: sed, but, but rather; autem, at, vero, verum, but; tamen, yet; attāmen, veruntāmen, but yet;

- 3) Disjunctive, which is expressed by: a) aut, vel, ve, sive (seu), or; b) aut—aut, vel—vel, either—or; sive—sive, whether—or, either—or;
- 4) Causal, which is expressed by nam and enim (for);
- 5) Deductive, which is expressed by: igitur, itaque, ergo, hence, therefore; ideo, on this account, and the like.

REM. 1. Que and ve always stand attached to the word to which they belong, as: pater materque, pater materve; autem, vero, enim, quoque, igitur do not stand at the beginning of the sentence, but after the first word.

REM. 2. Sive—sive are used with the indicative, as: sive id verum est, sive falsum (whether it be true or false). Aut—aut and vel—vel differ from each other in this, that in aut—aut the one clause really and necessarily excludes the other, so that one can be conceived of as holding good only when the idea of the other is excluded; but in vel—vel the exclusion is only allowable or optional.

§ 102. B. Subordinate Sentences.

1. Subordinate sentences are those which complete or define other sentences and hence are dependent.

2. The sentence to which another belongs as a dependent part, is called the principal sentence, the dependent sentences or clause, on the contrary, is called the subordinate sentence. E. g. in the compound sentence: "when the spring comes, the trees bloom," the last clause: "the trees bloom," is the principal sentence, and the first "when the spring comes," the subordinate sentence.

3. Subordinate sentences are:

- a) Substantive sentences, i. e. such as are but the expanded idea of some case of a substantive, as: I rejoice, that thou art in health (= I rejoice at thy health);
- b) Adjective sentences, i. e. such as are but the expanded idea of an adjective (or participle), as: the rose, which blooms, is beautiful (= the blooming rose);

- c) Adverbial sentences, i. e. such as are only an expansion of an adverb or an expression of the nature of an adverb, as: after the enemy was conquered, our soldiers returned (= after the conquering of the enemy).

§ 103. Of the use of the Modes in Subordinate Sentences.

1. In the subordinate sentences which are introduced by the indefinite relative pronouns: quisquis, quicumque, qualiscunque, quotcunque, ubicunque, quocunque, quotiescunque, utcunque, quotquot, etc. the indicative is used in Latin, while we, in English, generally use the pronoun whoever, etc. with the subjunctive.

Sapiens, ubicunque est, beatus est (wherever he may be). Quoquo modo res sese habet, in sententia mea permanebo (however the thing may be). Quicquid est, ego te non deseram (whatever it may be).

2. The use of the Subj. in subordinate sentences will be more fully explained in treating of particular subordinate sentences. For the present the following may suffice:

- a) Ut, that, in order that, ne, in order that not, that not, quin (after the phrases: it is not doubtful, I do not doubt), that, always take the Subj.;
- b) In questions depending upon another sentence (indirect questions) the Subj. is always used, as: dic mihi, cur rideas (tell me, why you laugh). Nescio, ubi fueris (I do not know, where you have been).

§ 104. Succession of the Tenses in Subjunctive Subordinate Sentences.

The following rules may be given for the succession of the tenses in subjunctive subordinate sentences:

- a) Upon a principal tense: Pres. Perfect-present and Fut., there follows again a principal Tense: Pres. Perfect-present and the Future Periphrastic Present, according as the discourse in the subordinate sentence is of a like timed, completed or future action;

b) Upon an historical tense: Imperf. Perfect-historical and Plupf., there follows again an historical tense: Imperf. Plupf. and Future Periphrastic Imperf., according as the discourse in the subordinate sentence is of a like timed, completed or future action.

Non dubitavi (I have not doubted), quin rem tuam bene geras. Non dubitabo, quin rem tuam bene gesturus sis. Non dubitabam (dubitavi, I doubted, dubitaveram), quin rem tuam bene gereres (gestisses, gesturus esses).

CXXXII Exercises for translation. (§ 103, 104.)

I. In whatever way the thing has itself, it is not permitted to thee to desert (deserere) the post committed to thee. Whoever that wretched [man] may be, we would lend aid to him! The goods of the body and of fortune, however great they may be, are uncertain and frail. Wherever thou mayest be, thou shouldst live uprightly. Who is so powerful, that he can dispense with (carere) the aid of others. Tell me, what thou doest now, did yesterday, and wilt do to-morrow. The friend related to me, where he had been, where he was, and where he would be. Who doubts, that Hannibal fought very bravely against the Romans? Nobody doubted, that Hannibal fought very bravely against the Romans. I do not doubt, that our soldiers will bear off the victory over the enemy. Nobody doubted, that we should bear off the victory over the enemy.

II. Whatever the opinion of the philosophers may be concerning the highest good, virtue has in itself sufficient protection for a peaceful life. Whatever we may do, we should do it deliberately. I do not doubt, that you have benefited your country. However great thy wisdom may be, thou shouldst still always be modest. Whithersoever thou mayest turn thy eyes, thou seest the traces of the divine wisdom. What man is so wise, that he can never be deceived? I do not doubt that thou art now contented with thy lot. I did not doubt, that thou wast contented with thy lot. Tell me where thou hast journeyed and whither thou art about to [journey]. It is not doubtful, that, when (ubi) [their] country may be in danger, the citizens will fight bravely. It was not doubtful, that, when [their] country was in danger, the citizens would fight bravely.

I. SUBSTANTIVE SENTENCES.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. In the English language, substantive sentences are introduced by the conjunctions: that, that not, in order that, in order that not. In Latin they are expressed by: a) the accusative with the Infin.; b) by substantive sentences with ut, ne, quo, quominus, quin, quod.

§ 105. A. Accusative with Infinitive.

1. When a sentence, as: rosa floret, is the object of one of the verbs mentioned below (No. 2.), in Latin, the subject (rosa) is changed into the Acc. (rosam) and the finite verb into the Infin., as: vidco rosam florere (I see, that the rose blooms). When the predicate is expressed by an adjective or substantive with the verb sum, fio, etc. (§§ 84.), the adjective or substantive is also put in the Acc., as: aqua frigida est; sentio aquam frigidam esse (I perceive, that the water is cold). Audimus, Cyrum regem Persarum fuisse (we hear, that Cyrus was king of the Persians). This construction is called the Acc. with the Infinitive.

REM. 1. In English, this construction is generally expressed by that with a finite verb and a noun, adjective or participle in the nominative.

2. The Acc. with the Infin. is used in the following cases:

- a) After verbs of believing, thinking, feeling and perceiving; of saying and relating;

- b) After verbs of willing, desiring, letting, bidding and forbidding; volo, nolo, malo, cupio, studeo; sino and patior; jubeo and veto;
- c) After the expressions: apparet, (it is evident), constat, (it is known), and the like; opus est, (it is necessary), licet, justum est, aequum est, mos est, and the like.

Sentimus calere ignem, nivem esse albam, dulce mel. Historia narrat, Romam a Romulo conditam esse. Volo te ex itinere mox redire. Virtus non patitur nos luxuria indulgere. Caesar milites castra munire jussit. Caesar milites pontem rescindere vetuit. Constat inter omnes, Romanos fuisse fortissimos.

REM. 2. When no agent is expressed after jubere, vetare, sinere and pati in the Infin., the Infin. Pass. is used in Latin. Caesar castra muniri jussit. Caesar pontem rescindi vetuit. Caesar urbem diripi passus est.

REM. 3. With licet (it is permitted) there is commonly found the Dat. (of the person) with the Infin., instead of the Acc. with the Infin. as: quiescere tibi licet.

REM. 4. Oportet and necesse est are connected either with the Acc. with the Infin. or with the Subjunctive without ut, as: oportet nos virtuti studere, or, virtuti studeamus oportet. Necesse est sapientem semper beatum esse, or: sapiens semper beatus sit necesse est.

3. The Nom. with the Infin. stands with the passives: dicor, trador, feror (they say that I, or I am said); putor, credor, existimor (they believe that I), videor (it seems that I), jubeor, vetor (they bid me, forbid me).

(Ego) bonus esse dicor (they say, that I am good, or: I am said, etc.)

(Tu) bonus esse diceris (they say, that thou art good, or: thou art said, etc.)

Romulus fortissimus fuisse dicitur (traditur, fertur).

(Nos) boni esse putamur (they believe, that we are good).

(Vos) boni esse putamini (credimini, existimamini, judicamini).

Romani fortissimi fuisse dicuntur (traduntur, putantur).

Romulus ad deos transisse creditus est.

(Ego) rem intelligere videor (I seem to understand the thing, or: it seems that I understand). (Tu) laetus esse videris. Ille laetus esse videtur. (Nos) laeti esse videmur. (Vos) laeti esse videmini. Illi laeti esse videntur. (Ego) laetus esse videbar, etc.

(Ego) jubeor scribere (they bid me write). (Tu) vetaris scribere (they forbid thee to write). Milites pontem facere jussi sunt (they commanded the soldiers to build a bridge).

CXXXIII. Exercises for translation. (§ 105.)

I. I know that my body is mortal, [but] that my soul is immortal. Aristotle shows, that the poet Orpheus never existed. It is known, that the Romans destroyed Carthage. Some philosophers believed, that the world came into existence (nasci) by chance. Titus was unwilling, that any one (quisquam) should go away from him sad. We hope, that thou wilt soon return from (ex) the journey. Who can deny, that God governs the whole world? It is known, that Hannibal fought very bravely against the Romans. History relates, that, in the Persian wars (bella Persica), innumerable troops of the Persians were routed by the Greeks. Darius promised, that he would give 1000 talents to the murderer of Alexander. It is not permitted to many men, to be idle. The Germans suffered no (non) wine to be imported (importare, see Rem. 2.) to them. We should be willing (velle) to live with an inferior (inferior), as we wish a superior (superior) to live with us. There is no one, who should not wish, that his children should be happy. Demosthenes did not permit, that the Athenians should make peace with Philip, king of Macedon. It is related (tradi) that Aristides, was the most just of all the Athenians. They relate that the Milesian Thales first (primus) predicted an eclipse of the sun (defectio solis). Who reigns well, must (necesse est) sometime (aliquando) have obeyed. We should (oportet) serve philosophy, in order that true freedom may fall to our lot. A good citizen should (oportet) prefer the dignity of the state to all his own advantages. Caesar bade (perf.) his soldiers to assault the city. Caesar caused (jubere) the city to be assaulted. The general forbade his soldiers, to plunder the taken city. The general forbade, to plunder the taken city. They say, that Ceres first (prima) taught the use of grain to men. Alexander allowed the grave of Cyrus to be opened. It seems, as though the sun were smaller than the earth. It is said, that the war is finished.

II. Who does not know, that the wise man is peaceful in every (omnis) condition of life? Who can deny, that he has ever done wrong? It is known of all, that Athens was the inventress of most arts and literature. It is better (satius) that we benefit even the bad on account of the good, than that we be wanting (desse) to the good on account of the bad. The wise man frankly (ingenue) acknowledges, that he does not know much. Thales said, that water is the beginning of all things. We know, that the course of life is short, [but] that [the course] of fame will be eternal. It is known, that the conspiracy of Catiline was detected by Cicero. Who does not know, that the health is strengthened by the exercise of the body? The laws do not permit, that an injury should be done to the citizens. I would rather, that the enemies should hate me, than that I them. Hadrian wished, that the Euphrates (Euphrâtes, is) might be the border of his kingdom. I hope, that by length of time, thy sorrow will be abated. Alcibiades could not endure (pati), that Athens should serve the Lacedemonians. Men are not willing, that the very same [man] should be distinguished in very many things. It was not permitted to the Romans, to depart uninjured from the country of the enemy. It is related (tradi), that Romulus and Remus, the founders of Rome, were brought up by Faustulus, a royal shepherd. They relate (ferri), that the giants made war upon the gods. It is believed, that letters were invented by the Phenicians. It is necessary (necesse est), that the world be ruled by God. It is needful (oportet), both that thou shouldst learn, and that thou shouldst establish (confirmare) what thou hast learned by deed (agere, gerund). Whom you (second pers. subj.) would make learned, you must (oportet) at the same time make attentive. It is necessary (oportet), that virtue should despise (aspernari) and hate what is opposed (= opposite) to it. Marcellus first bade (perf.) the footmen, then the horsemen to break forth against the enemies. Reason forbids us, to obey (obtemperare) the passions. The general caused (jubere) three camps to be fortified. Caesar forbade the soldiers, to desert the camp. It appears, as if thou hast not understood the thing. It appears, that you have read this book carefully. It is said, that the enemy have broken into our camp.

§ 106. B. Ut, ne, ut ne, ut non with the Subjunctive.

1. Ut, that (ne, ut ne, that not, neve (neu), and that not, nor), in the first place, is used to express the end or object (ut final), and stands after expressions of making and effecting; caring and striving; asking, demanding, exhorting, persuading, advising, exciting, urging, commanding (impĕro), ordering; of wishing, allowing or permitting (concedo, permitto); finally, after every sentence, in order to express an end or object (ut = in order that, ne = in order that not).

Sol efficit, ut omnia floreat. Ante senectutem curavi, ut bene viverem; in senectute, ut bene moriar. Oro te, ut mihi succurras. Te rogo, ne defatigare, neu diffidas. Caesar milites hortatus est, ut acriter dimicaret. Dux imperavit, ut milites stationes suas servarent. Edimus, ut vivamus; non vivimus, ut edamus.

REM. The verbs: volo, nolo, malo, cupio are more frequently used with the Acc. with the Infin., than with ut and the Subj. Comp. §§ 105, 2. b). Impero is used with the Acc. with the Infin. only when the Infin. is in the passive, as: dux imperavit urbem diripi. Concerning jubeo and velo see § 105, 2. b.) and Rem. 2.

2. In the second place, ut (that), ut non, that not, is used in order to express a result (ut consecutive), and stands especially after: est, fit, accidit, evenit, contingit; reliquum est, restat and the like; after ita, sic, adeo, tam, tantus, talis, etc.; finally, after any sentence, in order to express a result (ut = so that).

Persæpe evenit, ut utilitas cum honestate certet. Restat, ut de litterarum utilitate loquar. Ita vivere debemus, ut in omni re recti conscientiam servemus.

3. After expressions of fear and solicitude, ne is to be translated by that and ut and ne non by that not.

Ombes cives metuebant, ne urbs ab hostibus expugnaretur. Timeo, ut hos labores sustineas. Vereor, ne non perficiam, quod suscepi.

CXXXIV. Exercises for translation. (§ 106.)

I. Cicero, informed (edocere) of all [things] by the ambassadors, commanded the pretors, that they should seize the Allobroges at the bridge. The laws of the Lacedemonians looked (spectare) to this (id), that the youth should be formed by labors. Virtue alone effects, that we may please God and man. It often happens, that advantage contends with uprightness. The teacher exhorted the scholars, that they should not devote themselves to indolence. Reason demands, that we should restrain the desires. The citizens of the captured city entreated Caesar, that he would spare their children. Love virtue, in order that thou mayest live happily (beate). Themistocles sought a narrow pass, in order that he might not be surrounded by the multitude of the enemies. At Athens it was accustomed to happen to the very best, that he was banished (in exilium pelli). The wise man is excited (movere) to act rightly by virtue itself, not by advantage. The power of uprightness is so great, that we esteem it, whether (vel) in those whom we have never seen, or (vel) even in an enemy. Aristides died in so great poverty, that he scarcely left behind wherewith (qui) he might be buried (efferre). It is possible, that one (quis) may think (sentire) correctly, and [yet] that which he thinks may not be expressed (eloqui) elegantly (polite). I fear (vereor), that I may have renewed (refricare) thy pain by my letter. A great (ingens) fear had seized the Roman senate, that a tribune of the people would be chosen from the plebeians (plebs). We feared, that our measures had displeased you. The enemies apprehended, that their allies could not bear the attack of the Romans.

II. Before old age, we should look out, that we live well, in old age, that we die well. If all [things] happen (feri) by fate, nothing can admonish us, that we should be more cautious. Nature incites us, to strive to obtain the agreeable, to flee the disagreeable. The sun effects, that all trees, plants and herbs bloom and reach maturity. It comes to pass by (abl.) nature, that children are loved by [their] parents. Parents look out, that [their] children are not surrounded by bad men. Themistocles advised, that the Athenians should desert the walls and defend themselves with ships. The soldiers demanded, that the citizens should deliver up their arms. Many praise others, in order that they may be praised [in turn] by them. The Gauls, after they had received the gold of the Romans (abl. abs.), returned, in order to besiege the capitol. Caesar commanded the soldiers, not to go out from the camp. He is happy (beatus), to whom it happens, to obtain (assèqui) wisdom. The composing of the book concerning old age, was so delightful to Cicero, that it took from (abstergere) him all the burdens (onus) of age. In a short time, the minds coalesced into (abl.) so great friendship, that every distinction of rank (ordo et locus) was forgotten. So great is the multitude of stars, that they cannot be counted. It happened, that the very same night in which Alexander the great was born, the temple of the Ephesian Diana was burned (conflagrâre). There was very great fear at Rome, that the Gauls would return the second time (itêrum) to Rome. The Romans feared, that the victory would cost them much blood. All the citizens feared, that the peace would not be of longer continuance.

§ 107. C. Quo, quominus and quin with the Subjunctive.

1. Quo is used for ut eo, and indeed: a) in the meaning, in order that thereby; b) in the meaning, that (in order that, so that) so much the, when a comparative follows.

Haec lex data est, quo malefici deterrentur. Caesar milites cohortatus est, quo animo fortiore essent.

2. Quominus stands after expressions of hindering, preventing, resisting, refusing and is to be translated into English by that.

Aetas non impedit, quominus litteras tractemus. Quid sapienti potest obstare, quominus beatus sit? Non repugnabo, quominus hunc librum legas.

3. Quin is used:

a) In the meaning that not, instead of ut non after a negative principal clause.

Facere non possum, quin quotidie ad te mittam litteras (I cannot forbear to write to you daily). Fieri non potuit, quin urbs ab hostibus caperetur. Nihil abest, quin sim miserimus. Non multum abfuit, quin hostes vincerentur. Homines barbari sibi non temperabant, quin in Italiam contenderent.

b) In the meaning that, after non dubito, nemo dubitat, quis dubitat? dubium non est.

Non dubito, quin verum dixeris. Quis dubitat, quin in virtute divitiae sint positae? Dubium non erat, quin victoriam de hostibus reportaturi essemus.

REM. Besides, quin is used after a principal negative clause instead of qui non, quae non, quod non, as: nemo est, quin optet, ut liberi sui virtutem ament.

CXXXV. Exercises for translation. (‡ 107.)

I. Good scholars bestow all toil and care, that they may make the better progress in literature. Pride did not stand in the way to our ancestors, to imitate foreign institutions. Indolence prevents, that scholars should make progress in literature. Not even faults of nature could deter Demosthenes from studying eloquence. By the swiftness of our horsemen it was prevented, that the enemies should attack our troops. Caesar could not forbear, to reprove the seditious soldiers. It is not possible, that we should not consider (judicare) him foolish, who is (subj.) not master of himself. Nothing is so sacred, that rashness may not violate it. It cannot be doubted, that already before Homer, poets lived (esse). Who can doubt, that the whole world is ruled by God? It is not doubtful, that all which is considered evil, seems severer (gravior, us) [when] unforeseen. There is nobody who may not wish, that his children may love virtue. Nothing is found in nature, which is not very wisely constituted by God.

II. Good parents do not cease (intermittunt) to exhort [their] children to virtue, in order that they may grow better daily (in dies). All the soldiers believed, that nothing would stand in the way of their gaining (adipisci) the victory. Superstition prevents attaining (= reaching) much true knowledge of things. No hindrance deterred Alexander from penetrating (penetrare) to the Ocean. Nothing keeps a wise man from pursuing (studere) virtue. Avarice prevents men from enjoying the good [things] which they possess. Who [ever] contemplates (fut.) the heavens, the earth and the order of the whole world, will not doubt, that there is a God. We do not doubt, that our souls are immortal. The soldiers did not doubt, that they should bear off a victory over the enemies. It is not possible, that they who are contented with their lot do not live happy. We cannot forbear despising those who prefer money to virtue. Nothing was so sacred to the enemies who had captured the city, that they might not violate it. There was then no one in the city, who did not desire peace. There is almost nothing so difficult, that man, by the exertion of his powers, cannot do it.

§ 108. D. Quod (that) with the Indicative.

1. Quod (that) introduces a substantive sentence, which gives the explanation or ground of the predicate or some other word of the principal clause. The subjunctive stands with quod, only when the sentence is expressed as the sentiment of another. The cases in which quod is used are the following:

- a) After certain expressions, as: bene, male, prudenter facio; bene, male evēnit, accidit and the like;
- b) In order to introduce the explanation of a substantive or pronoun in the principal sentence;
- c) After verbs signifying an affection of the mind, as: laetor, gaudeo, doleo, indignor, aegre fero, moleste fero, queror, miror, glorior; also after verbs of praising, censuring, accusing, thanking.

Bene facis, quod me adjuvas. Magnum beneficium est naturae, quod necessè est mori. Gaudeo, quod vales. Laudo te, quod rem tuam bene gessisti. Laudat Africanum Panaetius, quod fuërit abstînens.

REMARK. Verbs signifying an affection of the mind are more frequently connected with an Acc. with the Infin., as: te valere, gaudeo.

CXXXVI. Exercises for translation. (§ 108.)

I. Thou hast done me a great favor, that thou hast sent me (ad me) this book. The generals of the king of Persia sent ambassadors to Athens, in order (sup.) to complain (queri), that Chabrias was carrying on war against the king of Egypt. The Lacedemonians sent ambassadors to Athens, who should accuse Alcibiades, that he had made a league with the king of the Persians, for subjecting (opprimere) Greece. I rejoice, that thou and thy brother are well. We wonder, that Greece, which excelled in fame, glory, learning (doctrina), the greatest number of arts, in dominion and warlike (bellicus) praise (laus), occupied (tenere) so small a place in Europe. Nobody will censure thee, that thou hast aided thy friend.

II. It is very agreeable to me, that thou hast already returned from (ex) the journey. Thou doest well, that thou wishest to live in the country for the strengthening (gerundive) of thy health. We rejoice, that thou and thy brother are returned safe. It is a great kindness to boys, that they are instructed in literature in school. We grieve very much, that you are not able to come. Unjustly was Socrates accused by the Athenians, that he corrupted (corrumpere) the youth. Caesar praised the soldiers, that they had fought so spiritedly against the enemies. All citizens rejoiced, that the city was delivered from the siege. That Caesar was killed by Brutus, we complain (= censure). How great is the goodness of nature, that she produces so many, so various and so agreeable [things]!

§ 109. II. Adjective Sentences.

1. The relative qui, quae, quod agrees in gender and number with the word to which it refers; the case of the relative, on the contrary, depends upon the construction of the clause to which it belongs.

Beati sunt ii homines, quorum vita virtutis praeceptis regitur. Deus est, qui omnem hunc mundum regit.

2. The person of the verb in adjective sentences, is determined by the person of the substantive or pronoun, to which the relative refers.

Ego, qui scribo ; tu, qui scribis ; pater, qui scribit ; nos, qui scribimus ; vos, qui scribitis ; fratres, qui scribunt.

3. The subjunctive stands in adjective sentences in the following cases :

- a) When the adjective sentence expresses an aim or result, and qui seems to stand for ut ego, ut tu, ut is ; especially after dignus, indignus, aptus, idoneus ; after is (such), talis, ejusmodi, tam, tantus ;
- b) With the indefinite expressions : est, sunt, qui ; reperiuntur, inveniuntur, qui ; nemo est, nullus est, qui ; nemo est, nullus est, qui ; nihil est, quod ;
- c) With the expressions, est, quod ; non est, quod ; nihil est (quid est ?), quod ; habeo, non habeo, nihil habeo, quod, there is reason (no reason), I have reason (no reason), that (with the finite verb) or to (with the Infin.), etc.
- d) When the adjective sentence gives a reason, where qui can be translated by since I, since you, since he.

Hostes ad Caesarem legatos miserunt, qui pacem ab eo *petere*nt (who were to ask). Vir probus dignus est, cui fidem habeamus (deserves, that we give him our confidence). Sunt, qui censeant, una animum et corpus occidere. Nullum est animal praeter hominem, quod habeat notitiam aliquam dei. Non is eram, qui aliorum miseriam ad me non pertinere *censere*m. O fortunate adolescens, qui tuae virtutis Homerum praekonem *invenere*s !

CXXXVII. Exercises for translation. (§ 109.)

I. Thou art worthy (dignus es) on account of thy uprightness, that we should have confidence in thee (= to whom). Who does not love his parents, is unworthy, that he should be loved by any one (ullus). God has given us reason, in order that by it we may govern the appetites (appetitus, us) of the soul. There is no duty so sacred, that avarice is not accustomed to infringe (comminuere) and violate it. There are men, who think (censere), that the soul is mortal. There is nothing so difficult, that it cannot be traced out (investigare) by searching (=seeking). Who does not honor virtue, is not fit, that we should receive him into our friendship. The Romans sent ambassadors to Antiochus, who might remind him of the Roman alliance. Many have been found, who were ready to devote (profundere) not only money but life even to their country. What is sweeter, than to have [a friend] with whom thou canst share every thing (= all) as with thyself? There is no living being, except man, which has any knowledge (notitia) of God. There is no reason, that one should envy those, whom the people (populus) call great and good. Innocence is such a state of the soul, as injures nobody. You have always been such, that you considered life without the pursuits of literature disagreeable (insuavis). You are worthy, that we should obey your will in all things. O fortunate (fortunatus) youth, since you are eminent among all by so many noble deeds!

II. Who obeys modestly, seems worthy sometime (aliquando) to command. Every upright man is undeserving (non dignus est), that the ungrateful citizens should deride him. Fabricius was such, that he could not be corrupted by the money of Pyrrhus. The husbandmen cultivate the earth, in order that it may bear fruit. Caesar sent horsemen, who might pursue the fleeing enemy. History is of that nature (idoneus), that by it the mind of the boy may be cultivated. There are and have been philosophers, who think (censere), that God has no concern (procuratio) at all (omnino) about human affairs. Thou art worthy, that we should have confidence in thee in all things. There is no grief of the soul, which may not be abated by length of time. There were philosophers, who said, that property is the highest good. Nero was not worthy, to reign over the Romans. What (quis) so great advantage was there in prosperity, when thou hadst not a friend who would rejoice at it in like manner (aeque) as (ac) thyself? There was nothing so sacred, that it was not violated by the insolence of the enemy. You are not such (ii), that we should obey you. There is nothing by which a boy can please others more, than by modesty. I pronounce myself happy, that I have [a friend], who rejoices at my prosperity even as (aeque atque) I myself. There is no reason, that we should fear death.

III. ADVERBIAL SENTENCES.

§ 110. a. Adverbial Sentences of Time.

1. Adverbial sentences of time are introduced by the conjunctions : quum, postquam, ut, ubi, simulatque, ex quo (since), priusquam and antēquam, dum, quoad, donec. These conjunctions generally take the Indic. but sometimes the Subj.

1) Quum is used either of time or cause. The temporal quum (when, while, as) is used with the indicative of all the tenses, yet almost invariably with the subjunctive of the imperfect and pluperfect, when a perfect stands in the principal clause. The causal quum (since), is always connected with the subjunctive.

a) Quum coelum contemplamur, dei magnitudinem admiramur (when). Ager, quum multos annos quievit, uberiores fructus efferre solet (when, after). Sapiens non ejulabit, quum doloribus torquebitur (when). Quum ad me litteras dedēris, ad te proficiscar (when).

b) Quum milites de hostium adventu edocerentur, continuo summo pugnandi ardore flagraverunt (as). Alexander, quum interemisset Clitum, familiarem suum, vix a se manus abstinuit (as).

c) Quum philosophia animis medeatur, totos nos penitusque ei tradere debemus (since). Quum milites pericula vererentur, non audebant cum hostibus confingere (since).

2) Postquam (after that), ut (just as = as soon as), ubi (as), simulatque (simulac never before a vowel or h), as soon as, are connected with the indicative, and indeed, most frequently with the perfect which we commonly translate into English by the Plupf.

Postquam Caesar aciem instruxit, omnes hostes in unum locum convolaverunt. Ut dies illuxit, profectus sum. Hostes, ubi nostros equites conspexerunt, fugerunt. Simulatque aliquid audiēro, ad te scribam.

3) Priusquam and antēquam (before that, ere, before), are connected :

- a) With the Subj. Pres., more rarely with the Indic. Pres.;
- b) With the Indicative Perfect;
- c) With the Indicative Fut. Perf.;
- d) With the Subj. Imperf. and Pluperf.

a) Tempestas minatur, antequam surgat.

b) Antequam bellum urbis nostrae opes absumpsit, potentissima fuit.

c) Non dives eris, priusquam divitias contempseris.

d) Hostes propulsati sunt, antequam urbem obsidione cingerent. Dies obrepit hostibus, priusquam aggèrem extruxissent.

4) Dum in the meaning while, at the same time, as long as, and quoad in the meaning as long as are connected with the indicative.

Dum haec geruntur, hostium copiae conveniunt. Lacedaemoniorum gens fortis fuit, dum Lycurgi leges vigeant. Cato, quoad vixit, virtutum laude crevit.

REMARK. Dum in the meaning at the same time that is commonly used with the Indic. Pres., whatever tense stands in the principal sentence, as: dum dux aciem instruit, hostis totam urbem cinxerat.

5) Dum, quoad and donec in the meaning till, until, till that are generally connected with the subjunctive of the Pres., Imperf. and Pluperf., or with the indicative of the Perf. and Fut. Perf.

Milites exspectant, dum dux se e castris contra hostes educat. Milites exspectabant, dum dux se e castris contra hostes educeret. Cicero omni quiete abstinuit, donec Catilinae conjurationem detexisset. Milites tamdiu restiterunt, quoad hostes fugam cupessiverunt. Tamdiu manebo, dum omnem rem cognovero.

CXXXVIII. Exercises for translation. (§ 110.)

I. a. When we contemplate the lives of abandoned men (maleficus) we are deterred from vices. When a wise man is derided (fut.) by the foolish people, he will not be indignant. As Caesar entered (ingredi) the captured city, the inhabitants extended [their] hands to (ad) him, and intreated (orare) him, that he would spare them. Health we are then at length (tum demum) accustomed to estimate high (multum), when we have recovered from a severe sickness. As Tullus Hostilius had reigned 32 years, he was struck (icere, perf.) by lightning. As (ubi) Caesar had ascertained (perf.) by spies, that the enemies approached, he led (perf.) forth his soldiers out of the camp. As (quum) the enemies could not rout the army of the Romans, they betook (perf.) themselves back to the fortified camp. As soon as the enemies were discovered (perf.), the soldiers seized (capessère, perf.) their arms. Why should we fear death, since our souls will not decay at the same time with our bodies? After Caesar had seen (perf.) that the troops of the enemies approached, he hastened (maturare, perf.) to conduct (transducere) his army over (acc.) the river.

I. b. We shall be happy, when we shall be free from passion (plur.). He, who does not prevent (defendère) injustice nor repel (propulsäre) it when he can, acts (facere) unjustly. A virtuous man will be happy (beatus), even when he shall have lost all the gifts of fortune. Since the weather is clear, we will take a walk. As Caesar came out of the wood, he was surrounded (perf.) by the enemies. As Alexander had taken Thebes, he spared (perf.) the family of the poet Pindar. As soon as Verres had reached (perf.) the province, he gave (tradere) himself wholly (totus) to avarice. After the general had fallen, the soldiers fled (perf.). As (ubi) the Romans heard, that the enemies approached, they went (perf.) spiritedly against them.

II. a. The enemies did not cease (desistere) to flee, before they came (perf.) to the Rhine. When Epaminondas went to a [social] circle, in which a conversation was (subj.) held (habere) either concerning the state or concerning philosophy, he never went away from there before the conversation had been brought to an end. Before thou reapest, thou must (oportet) sow. Mithridates thrust through (transfigere) Datamas with a sword, and before any one (quisquam) could come to his assistance (succurrere), killed [him]. As long as (quoad) the city was guarded by the citizens, the enemies did not dare (perf.) to assault it. I shall wait until thou returnest. Epaminondas held back the iron in [his] body, until (quoad) it was announced (renuntiare, perf.) that the Boeotians had conquered. The Romans waited, until the enemies had approached the camp. The soldiers remained in the camp, until the day dawned (illucescere).

II. b. The storm threatens before it arises; buildings creak before they fall (corruere). In all business (plur.), before thou enterest upon [it], thou shouldst make (adhibere) careful preparation. The Gauls came into (transcendere) Italy 200 years before they took (imperf.) Rome. Ere Ariovistus had arranged the line of battle, Caesar attacked (perf.) the Germans. The Romans pursued the enemies until it was evening (advesperascere). Wait thou, till I come. As long as Hannibal lived, he burned (flagrare) with anger against the Romans. As long as (quoad) Epaminondas and Pelopidas presided (perf.) over the Thebans, their power increased (perf.) in a wonderful (unicus) manner. I remained at home yesterday, till my brother had returned. Until the citadel was surrendered (dedere perf.), slaughters took place (caedes fit) every where (passim) through (abl.) the whole city. We should (gerundive) remove (subtrahere) from the enraged, those whom they are offended at, till [their] anger burns out (defervescere).

§ 111. b. Causal Adverbial Sentences.

Adverbial sentences expressing the cause or ground, are introduced by the conjunctions: quod, quia, quoniam. These conjunctions are properly used with the indicative; the subjunctive is used with them, only when the cause is given as the sentiment or from the view of another. (Concerning the causal quum see § 110, 1).

Cicero pater patriae appellatus est, quod ejus consilio et vigilantia Catilinae conjuratio detecta est. Quia natura mutari non potest, idcirco verae amicitiae sempiternae sunt. Quoniam jam nox est, in vestra tecta discedite.

1. Conditional adverbial sentences are introduced by: si (if), nisi and si non (if not, unless).

2. The indicative is used in sentences of this kind, when the condition is expressed as real and certain. In this case the Indic. is generally used in the principal sentence also.

Si hoc dicis, erras. Si hoc dicebas, errabas.

3. The subjunctive is used, when the condition is spoken of as something barely imagined; and in the principal sentence, in this case, the subjunctive is used also.

a) The Subj. Pres. and Perf. is used, when the condition is represented as a mere supposition;

b) The Subj. Imperf. and Pluperf., when the condition is represented as a supposition the contrary of what actually is or is not.

Si hoc dicas, erres (if thou shouldst say this, thou wouldst err). Si hoc diceres, errares (if thou saidst this, thou erredst; but I know thou didst not say it; hence thou didst not err). Si hoc dixisses, errasses (if thou hadst said this, thou wouldst have erred; but I know thou hast not said it; hence thou hast not erred).

REMARK. Nisi makes a supposition negatively but leaves the thing supposed affirmative: "if it be not supposed, that something is;" but si non makes a supposition affirmatively while the thing supposed is negative: "if it be supposed, that something is not." Non potes jucunde vivere, nisi cum virtute vivis. Homo beatus est, si cupidatibus non succumbit.

4. Dum, dummodo, modo in the meaning provided that, if only; dum ne, dummodo ne, modo ne (provided that not, if only not) always take the subjunctive.

Multi omnia recta et honesta negligunt, dummodo potentiam consequantur.

§ 113. d. Concessive Adverbial Sentences.

Concessive sentences are introduced by :

- a) etsi, tametsi (even if, although), quamquam (although), commonly with the indicative;
- b) etiamsi (even if, although), more frequently with the subjunctive than with the Indic.;
- c) quamvis (although, however), and licet (although) are always connected with the subjunctive of one of the principal tenses.

Viri boni recte agunt, etsi nullum consecuturum emolumentum vident. Etiamsi secundissimis rebus utäre, tamen beatus non eris, si virtute cares. Sapiens dolorem patienter tolerat, quamvis acerbus sit.

CXXXIX. Exercises for translation. (§§ 111, 112, 113.)

I. Themistocles said, that he walked (ambuläre) by night, because he could not sleep (somnum capere). If we shall always follow the way of virtue, the entrance to heaven will sometime stand open to us. If our friend had obeyed (obsequi) the prescriptions (praeceptum) of the physician, he surely would not have died. If we shall not have removed (resicare) the passions, we shall strive in vain to be happy. Men desirous of fame endure all hardships, if they may only obtain what they wish (subj.). Although (etsi) the place was unfavorable, nevertheless Caesar determined to attack the enemy. However thou mayest have suffered under misfortune (incommōdum, plur.), thou shouldst not be offended at fortune. Even if the body is bound, yet no chains are placed (injicere) upon the soul. Who is not offended (offendēre) by a foul deed itself, even if it does not hurt him?

II. The laws we obey, not from (propter) fear, but we follow them, because we judge, that this is most salutary. As Xenocrates was asked, why he was almost always silent (silēre), he answered: Because it has often (aliquando) repented me to have spoken (dicere), but never to have been silent (tacere). If you hate those whom you should love, you act wickedly. If we discharge our office religiously, we shall enjoy the good opinion (bona existimatio) of men. If we do not follow virtue, we cannot live peacefully (beate). If all [things] happened by fate, all (omnis) foresight would be useless. Fire becomes extinct, if it is not nourished. We are ready to endure toils and burdens, if we may only obtain (adipisci) the victory. Folly thinks (credere), that it has never obtained (consequi) enough, although (etsi) it has obtained (adipisci) what it desires (concupiscere). Nobody, however wealthy he may be, can be without the aid of others. We should cultivate virtue (honestas), even if no advantage may follow it. The good [man] does not avēge himself on his enemies, even if he has obtained (nancisci) an opportunity. It is a terrible (dirus) and abominable (abominandus) saying (= word): They may hate, if only they fear.

§ 114. e. Adverbial Sentences of Comparison.

1. The comparing of the subject of the principal sentence in respect to manner, or greatness and degree is expressed:

- a) By: ut (uti, sicut, quemadmōdum) with the indicative —ita (sic), as, even as—so; tam (tantopēre, tantum) —quam (quantopēre, quantum), so great—as; non tam —quam, not so much—as.

REM. 1. In a barely imaginary comparison, the subordinate sentence is introduced by: quasi, tanquam and the like, with the subjunctive. The succession of the tenses in this case is according to the principles already stated (§ 104.).

- b) By the comparative with quam (than).

Melior tutiorque est certa pax, quam sperata victoria.

REM. 2. Instead of quam with the Nom. or Acc., the ablative without quam may be used with the comparative of the first member. See 101, 7. The English even, still with the comparative, is expressed by etiam, as: etiam major or major etiam.

2. When two qualities or actions of one object are compared with each other, both adjectives or adverbs are put in the comparative and the last is connected to the other by quam.

Pestilentia minacior quam perniciosior, cogitationes hominum a certaminibus publicis avertit (a more threatening than destructive pestilence). Bellum a civibus nostris fortius, quam felicius gestum est (with more bravery than success).

REM. 3. The comparative is very often used without the second member of the comparison, and may then be translated by too, too much, very, somewhat with the positive, as: senectus est loquacior (somewhat loquacious; properly: more loquacior i. e. more loquacious than is proper).

REM. 4. When the comparison is limited definitely to two objects, in Latin, the comparative and not the superlative is used, as: uter vestrum est major natu? (which of you two is the older?)

3. Quo—eo, or quanto—tanto (the—so much the) in connection with two comparatives, express a uniform proportion between two qualities or actions.

Quo plura habent homines, eo ampliora expetere solent.

4. When the discourse is of an indefinite subject, instead of the last mentioned mode of expressions we commonly find: ut quisque—ita with two superlatives.

Ut quisque est sapientissimus ita est modestissimus (the wiser a man is, the more modest he is).

CXL. Exercises for translation. (§ 114.)

I. Many men, forgetting (perf. part.) the precepts of virtue, complain of their lot, as if it had not been permitted (perf.) them to enter (ingredi) the way of virtue. Many men live, as though they had been born to pleasures. One should so think, as if (tanquam) some one (aliquis) could look into his inmost breast. A more threatening than destructive disease turned the minds of men from public duties (munus, eris). Alexander pursued the enemies more cautiously (prudenter) than eagerly. When pleasure is too great and too long, it extinguishes all (omnis) the light of the soul. Old men are too loquacious. The air (aër) is so much the thicker, the nearer it is to the earth (plur.). The better any thing is, so much the rarer it is. We are all influenced (trahere) by the struggle (= effort) after praise; and the better one is, so much the more is he governed by fame. The more prudent one is, the more cautious he is. The more one refers whatever (quaecunque) he does (agere) to (ad) his own advantage, so much the less is he a good man.

II. Most men strive eagerly to obtain riches and power, [and] neglect virtue, as if true prosperity rested not upon virtue, but upon riches. Always act thus (sic), as though thou wast seen and heard by others. The words of the orator were more acute than true. It did not escape Hannibal (fallo, perf.), that the enemies would dispatch (gerere) affairs, with more spirit (ferociter) than deliberation (consulto). The wise man abstains from too violent emotions of the soul. This book is somewhat difficult to understand. The greater and more divine the excellence in minds, so much the greater care they need (indigere). The more eminent (= higher) men are, so much the more condescending they should be to the more humble. The better one is, so much the more he serves his descendants. The better one is, so much the more his mind strives to obtain immortal fame. The better one is, with so much the more difficulty (difficile) he considers others bad.

§ 115. Of Interrogative Sentences.

1. Questions are either independent (direct), as: Wast thou at school yesterday? or dependent upon another sentence going before (indirect questions), as: I do not know, whether thou wast at school yesterday.

2. In the direct question the indicative is used, when it is asked positively, the subjunctive when it is asked doubtfully. In the indirect question the subjunctive is always used.

Quid agis? Quid agamus? (what can we do?). Dic, quid agas.

3. Both direct and indirect questions are introduced:

- a. By interrogative and relative pronouns, as: quis, uter, qualis, quantus, ubi, unde, quo, quando, quomodo, cur, etc.

Quis hunc librum legit? Uter vestrum major natu est? Cur ad me non venisti? Dic, quis hunc librum legerit. Nescio, uter vestrum major natu sit. Narra, cur ad me non veneris.

- b. By the interrogative words ne, nonne, num, utrum.
- a) Ne, which is always attached to the accented word, leaves it undecided whether the interrogator expects an affirmative or negative answer;
 - b) Nonne (not?) always implies that the interrogator expects an affirmative answer;
 - c) Num (is it possible that?) always implies that the interrogator expects a negative answer;
 - d) Utrum is used only in double questions.

REM. 1. Ne and utrum, in direct questions, can be translated into English by no particular word. In indirect questions, ne, utrum, num, may be translated by whether, and nonne by whether not.

Fuistne heri in schola? Dic, fuistine heri in schola? Nonne sapiens beatus est? Quæris ex me, nonne putem sapientem beatum esse? Num vita beata in divitiis posita est? Dubito, num vita beata in divitiis posita sit.

4. In disjunctive questions, in which one member excludes the other, the first member is introduced by utrum or the enclitic ne, and the second by an (or), both in direct and indirect questions.

Utrum unus, an plures sunt mundi? Quæritur, utrum unus, an plures sint mundi. Mortalisne, an immortalis est animus humanus? Quæritur, mortalisne, an immortalis sit animus humanus.

REM. 2. Or not is expressed in Latin, by annon in direct, by necne in indirect questions.

5. The answer yes or no is expressed:
- a) Yes: by a repetition of the word upon which the stress of the question lies; and no in the same way, but with non placed before it;
 - b) Yes: by, ita, ita est, sane, vero and the like; no: by, non, non ita, minime and the like; Yes (no) rather, by, immo with the addition of a word expressing the opposite of what is implied in the question.

Fuistine heri in schola? Fui. Fuistine heri domi? Vero. Estne frater domi? Non est. Venitne pater tuus? Minime. Egebat amicus tuus? Immo locuples erat.

CXLI. Exercises for translation. (§ 116.)

I. What each night and each day may bring [with itself], is uncertain. On account of fear, I know not who I am. Who has said this? I know not, who has said this. When (quum) we behold (cernere) the whole earth, we cannot doubt, that a governor presides over it. Is the sun greater, or smaller, than the earth? Is it possible that thou believest, that our souls decay after death? I doubt, whether the news is true. Ere thou beginnest a thing, deliberate, whether it be good or bad. Has not God filled the earth with all good things? Was the world made (efficere) by chance, or by a divine power? Is thy brother at home? Yes. Is it possible that the three-headed Cerberus in the lower regions frightens thee? Wast thou yesterday at my house, or not? Tell me, whether thou hast been at my house or not? I know not, whether I can come to thee to-morrow. Wilt thou go to walk to-day, or not? Tell me, whether thou wilt go to walk to-day, or not? Who knows, whether fortune will always smile upon him. There were philosophers, who doubted, whether the world was made by chance, or by the divine reason. Hast thou read the book, which I lately sent thee? No. It is a question, whether wisdom makes men happy, or not. Will thy father return to-morrow from (ex) [his] journey? Yes. Is the wise man alone to be accounted happy? Yes. Wast thou at home yesterday? no rather I was far from home.

II. What will be to-morrow, we know not. Is lead, or gold the heavier? Did (perf.) Philip, or his son accomplish (efficere) the greatest deeds? Is not virtue to be preferred to the greatest riches? Is it possible that thou doubtest concerning the immortality of the soul? Who wrote (perf.) this letter? Tell me, who wrote this letter. Is it possible that thou believest, that I do not know where thou wast yesterday? We would first see, whether the world is governed by the providence of God; then, whether he [also] cares (consulere) for human affairs. Among the generals of the Athenians there was a great strife, whether they should defend themselves by (abl.) the walls, or should go against the enemies. Hast thou read Cicero's book concerning friendship? Yes. It is a question, whether wisdom alone makes us happy (beatus), or not. Hast thou read this book, or not? I do not know, whether I shall approve thy view or reject it. Dost thou approve my view, or not? I do not know, whether I shall approve thy view, or not. It was uncertain, whether the Romans had conquered, or been conquered. Anciently many doubted, whether the earth was round. Wast thou in school yesterday? Yes. Canst thou tell me, what the soul is? No. Hast thou received joyful news concerning the health of thy brother? No rather, very sad [news].

§ 116. Of the Form of direct and Indirect Discourse.

1. Oratio recta (direct discourse), is that kind of discourse, in which the words of a person are repeated precisely as they were pronounced by him, as : The messenger announced : peace is concluded.

2. Oratio obliqua (indirect discourse), is that kind of discourse, in which the words of a person are made dependent upon some verb of perceiving or communicating, as : The messenger announced : that peace was concluded.

REMARK. Of the two verbs : inquam and ait, the first is used in direct and the second in indirect discourse. Inquam is never placed before the words quoted, but is introduced among them.

3. Principal sentences in indirect discourse, are expressed :

- a) By the Acc. with Infinitive, when they express a simple statement, as : nuntius allatus est, pacem esse compositam (direct discourse : pax est composita) ;
- b) By the subjunctive, when they express a command or wish, as : dux dixit, omnia esse perditam ; milites suae salutis consulere (direct discourse : omnia sunt perditam ; consulite, milites, vestrae salutis).

4. Subordinate sentences in indirect discourse are expressed by the subjunctive.

Caesar dixit, se, postquam hostes fusi essent, castra muniturum esse. Apud Hypänim fluvium Aristotèles ait bestiolas quasdam nasci, quae unum diem vivant.

CXLII. Exercises for translation. (§ 116.)

We should be sufficiently convinced, that, [even] if we could conceal [it] from God and men, still nothing should be done unjustly (injuste). I can never be persuaded, that the soul (plur.), while it is in the mortal body, lives, [but] when it has departed from it, dies. The Lacedemonians wrote to Pausanias, that, if he did not return home, they would condemn him to death. Tanaquil said, The king still lives; let the Romans be quiet and obey Servius Tullius.

II. Nobly Socrates said, that the nearest way to renown is, when one exerts himself (id agere) that he may be such as (qualis) he wishes to be considered. When ambassadors had come from king Mithridates requesting peace, Sulla answered, that he would not give it unless (nisi) he, after deserting the fields which he had taken, should return into his own kingdom (regnum). The ambassadors announced to the senate, That the Aeduans had pitched their tent in their territory and were laying waste the country; that the Romans should come and bring aid to them.

FIRST APPENDIX.

OF PROSODY.

§ 117. Quantity of Syllables.

PRELIMINARY REMARK. The general rules of quantity have already been given (§ 3.) and should be reviewed before proceeding to the following special rules.

1. The derived word generally follows the quantity of its primitive, as: amor, amabilis, amicus, amator, redamo.

REM. 1. In declension are excepted; lar, par, sal, Gen. laris, paris, salis;—In the verb it is a general principal, that, the forms of the different tenses, have the same quantity as the tense-forms from which they are derived, i. e. either as the Pres. Perf. Sup. or Infin. according as they are derived from the one or the other; e. g. (divido), dividam; (divisi), diviseram; (divisum), divisurus; (dividere), dividerem.

REM. 2. Concerning the quantity of the Perf. and Sup. the following should be observed:

1) All dissyllabic perfects and supines lengthen the short syllable of the stem, as: video, vidi visum; moveo, movi motum, etc. (but, hii, rii, siii according to § 3, 3).

Ten dissyllabic supines have the stem-syllable short: datum, statum, ratum, satum, itum, quitum, citum, litum, situm, rutum, from: do, sisto, reor, sero, eo, queo, cieo, lino, sino, ruo. The compounds of sto have together with stātum, stūtum also; two compounds of nesco, nōtum also: cognosco and agnosco, have in the supine: cognitum, agnitum.

2) Reduplicated perfects, besides the short syllable of reduplication, have also the stem-syllable following its short, as: cado, cēcidi, disco, didici, etc. (but mōmōrdi, cūcūrrī from: mordeo, curro are long according to § 3, 4).

To reduplicated perfects belong also: dēdi, stēti, sēti; tūli is contracted from tētūli; bibi comes, apparently, from an obsolete stem bo; finally, fidi and scidi have rejected their syllable of reduplication.

REM. 3. In derivation and composition also, there are some departures from the general rule (rule 1), as: sōpor and sōpire, dūc (in dux dūcis) and dūco, rēg (in rex, rēgis) and rēgo, etc.

2. For the quantity of the penult we have the following alphabetical list. (The quantity of the penult in declension and conjugation is best learned from the paradigms).

-ācus, -ūcus, -ūca, as: merācus, cadūcus, lactūca; Exc.: -ācus in: Aegyptiācus, Corinthiācus and others of the kind;

-ādes, and -ides in Patronymics, as: Priamīdes, Atlantiādes; but ides in Patronymics from primitives in eus and des, as: Pelides, Atrides, Heraclides, and in Belides, Lycurgides, Amphiarides, Coronides;

-āgo, -ēgo, -īgo, -ūgo in nouns, as: vorāgo, vertūgo, lanūgo (but the Greek harpāgo has a short);

-āis, -ēis, -īis, -ōtis, -ōis, -īne, -ōne in Patronymics, as: Ptolemāis, Chryseis, Memphitis, Icariōtis, Minōis, Nerine, Acrisiōne; Exc.: Danāis, Thebāis, Phocāis, Nerēis;

-ālis, -ēlis, -ēla, -ūlis, -īra, as: canālis, conjugālis, fidēlis, querēla, edūlis, pictūra;

-āmen, as: exāmen, flāmen;

-ānus, -āna, -ēnus, -ēna, -īnus, -īna, -ōnus, -ōna, -ūnus, -ūna, as: montānus, membrāna, egēnus, habēna, peregrīnus, canīnus, Gabīnus, sagīna, piscīna (except pagīna), patrōnus, annōna, tribūnus, lacūna; but īnus is short in adjectives which express time or material, as: crastīnus, diutīnus, cedrīnus, elephantūnus, except in: vesperīnus, matutīnus, repentīnus;

-ārus, -āris, -ōrus, -ōsus, as: avārus, singulāris, canōrus, pilōsus; Exc.: barbārus, opipārus, hilāris;

-ātim, -ītim, -ūtīm, as: privātīm, virītīm, tribūtīm (in affūtīm, stātīm the a belongs to the stem);

-āvus, -īvus, -īva, as: octāvus, aestivus, salīva;

-ēdo, -īdo, -ūdo in substantives, as: albēdo, cupīdo, consuetūdo;

-ēgo, see āgo;

-ēis, see āis;

-ēlis, -ēla, see ālis;

-ēmus, as: extrēmus;

- eni* and -ini in distributive adjectives, as : bini, vicēni ;
- enus*, -ena, see ānus ;
- ero*, -ico (icor), -igo, -ino (inor, cīnor), -ilo, -ילו (īlor), -ito, verbal endings, as : vitupēro, claudīco, rustīcor, levīgo, fulmīno, destīno, crimīnor, patrocīnor, mutīlo, pullūlo, gratūlor, ventūto ; but the i is long when it belongs to the stem and is long there, as : cornīcor (from cornīx, icis), festīno, sagīno, opinor, propīno, inclīno, from : festīnus, sagīna, opīnio, πίνω, κλίνω ;—besides, i in the ending ito is long when the stem has an i immediately before it, as : dormīto (for dormi-ito) ;
- etus*, as : fīetus ;
- erus*, as : infēri, postēri ; but erus in : austērus, sincērus, sevērus, procērus ;
- etum*, -eta, as : dumētum, monēta ;
- ico*, see ero ;
- icus*, -ica, as : modīcus, famelīcus, so also adverbs in icus, as : modīcus ; Exc. : amicus, pudīcus, apricus, anticus, posticus, mendīcus, umbilīcus ; formīca, lectīca, lorīca, urtīca, vesīca ;
- ides*, see ādes ;
- ido*, see ēdo ;
- idus*, as : cupīdus ;
- igo*, see āgo ;
- igo*, see ero ;
- ilis*, -ilus (a, um), -olus (a, um), -ulus (a, um), as : humīlis, parīlis, simīlis, utīlis, and all in ilis which come from verbs, as : facīlis, ferūlis, sterīlis ; rutīlus, filiūlus, filiōla, catūlus, canīcula, bactūlum ; adjectives derived from personal appellations have the i long, as : servīlis, puerīlis ; also, exīlis, subtīlis, and the names of the months, as : Aprīlis ;
- ilo*, see ero ;
- imen*, as : specīmen, regīmen ; Exc. : those derived from verbs of the fourth Conj. have imen, as : lenīmen, farcīmen ;
- imus* in : hīmus, trīmus, quadrimus, of two, three, four years, and in : opīmus, matrīmus, patrīmus, prīmus, imū (lowest) ; but -imus in superlative-endings, as : probīssīmus, and in finīmus and intīmus ;
- ine*, see āis ;
- ini*, see ēni ;
- ino* (inor), see ero ;
- inus*, ina, see ānus ;
- itim*, see ātim ;
- itis*, see āis ;
- ito*, see ero ;
- itor* and itus retain the quantity of the supine from which they are derived, as : monītor (from monītum) audītor (from audītum), exītus (from exītum) ;
- itus*, -iter, adverbial endings, as : divīnītus, acrīter ;
- ivus*, -iva, see āvus ;
- ois*, see āis ;
- one*, see āis ;
- onus*, -ona, see ānus ;

-orus, -orus, see arus;

-osis, see ais;

-ucus, -uca, see acus;

-udo, see edo;

-igo, see age;

-alis, see alis;

-ulo (ulor), see ero;

-umen in tegumen (for tegimen), but -umen in: acumen, cacumen, flumen (contracted from fluvimen);

-inus, -ina, see anus;

-ira, see alis;

-itim, see atim;

3. For the quantity of final syllables ending in a vowel, we have the following general rule: a, e, y, are short; i, o, u are long. To this rule there are the following exceptions:

a is long: 1) the Abl. of the first Dec., as: mensā; 2) in the Voc. of Greek proper names in as, as: Aeneā (from Aenēas, ae), Pallā (from Pallas, antis); the Voc. of those in es has partly ā and partly ā, as: Anchisā, Atridā; 3) in the Imper. of the first Conj., as: amā, except putā in the meaning namely, to wit;—4) in adverbs, prepositions and conjunctions of two or more syllables, as: circā, juxtā, intrā, infra, suprā, anteā, posteā, praetereā, frustrā; Exc.: itā, quā and the interjection eiā; 5) in the indeclinable numerals, as: trigintā;

e is long: 1) in the Abl. of the fifth Dec. as: rē, speciē, diē (hence also, hodiē, postridiē, priidiē, quarē; also famē);—2) in all Greek words of the first Dec., as: crambē, epitomē, and those used in the plural only, as: Tempē, melē, cetē;—3) in the Imper. of the second Conj., as: docē; but e is double-timed in: cavē, habē, tacē, manē, valē, jubē, vidē (hence vidēsis for: vide, si vis);—4) in adverbs derived from adjectives of the second Dec., pulchrē, longē, acerbē, valdē (from validus); so also: ferē, fermē and the interjection ohē; but e is short in: benē, malē, temerē, as well as in all adverbs derived from adjectives of the third Dec., as: facilē, impunē;

i is short: 1) in: mihī, tibī, sibī (in the arsis sometimes long), and cui when it is two syllables; but it is commonly one syllable and is long, so also its compounds: cuidam, cuilibet;—2) in the Voc. of Greek words, as: Alexī, and in the Dat. of Greek imparisyllabic words, as: Paridī (from Paris, idis);—3) in: nisi and quasi (although si is long), sicubī, necubī; but ubi and ibi are double-timed, in: ubinam, ubivis, ubicunque i is generally short, while in: ubique, ibique it is always long, generally also in ibidem;—4) in: utique, utnam the i is short, although they come from uti;

o is short: 1) in the adverbs: citō, immō, illicō, cedō (give here, say), modō with its compounds, as: dummodō, postmodō, quomodō (but separated, quo modō);—2) in: egō, duō, octō; but commonly ambō;—3) in verbal endings and in the Nom. and Vocative-endings of Latin words of the third Dec. the poets of the golden age generally made o long, as: amō, amaverō, amatō, scribō, scribitō, scripserō; origō, consuetudō; in Greek words o is always long, as: echō, Argō; u is always long and y always short according to the rule, except in the contracted Dat., as: Coty for Cotyi.

4. For the quantity of final syllables in words of two or more syllables ending in a consonant, we have the following general rules:

I. c final makes the preceding vowel long, as: alēc, illūc;

Exc.: donēc:

II. ās, ēs, ōs are long; īs, ūs, ŷs are short; to this general rule, there are the following exceptions:

a) as is short: 1) in the Nom. of Greek words of the third Dec. which have ādīs in the Gen., as: lampās, ādis, Pallās, ādis; so anās, ātis;—2) in the Acc. Plur. of Greek words of the third Dec. as: heroās, Arcadās from heros, Arcas;

b) es is short: 1) in the Nom. and Voc. Sing. of imparisyllabic words of the third Dec. whose genitive has the penult short, as: milēs, itis, segēs, ētis, praesēs, idis, hebēs, ētis; Exc.: Cerēs, abiēs, ariēs, pariēs and the compounds of pēs, as: tripēs, except praepēs, ētis;—2) in the Voc. Sing. of Greek words in es, where in Greek the termination is es, as: Demosthenēs (but Demosthenēs in the Nom. = ης);—3) in the Nom. and Voc. Plur. of Greek words, as: Arcadēs, Troadēs; but in Latin words, or such as were naturalized in the language, es is long, as: patrēs, matrēs;—4) in the compounds of ēs (thou art), as: adēs, abēs, potēs;—5) in the preposition penēs;

c) os is short: 1) in: compōs, impōs (ōtis), exōs (from os, ossis);—2) in Greek words, when os corresponds to os in Greek, as: Delōs, chaōs, melōs; Palladōs, Gen. of Pallas (but: herōs = ἥρωας, Minōs = Μίνωας, Nicocleōs = Νικόκλεως);

d) is is long: 1) in the Dat. and Abl. Plur., as: mensis, pueris, nobis, vobis; hence also, in the adverbs: gratiā, foris;—2) in the Acc. of the third Dec. (for es), as: omnis;—3) in the Nom. Sing. of proper names of the third Dec. which have the penult of the Gen. long, as: Samnis, itis, Salamis, inis, Simois, entis;—4) in the second person Sing. Pres. of those verbs which have itis in the second person Plur., as: audis, possis (as well as: sis from sum), velis, nolis, malis; also in: mavis, quivis, quamvis, utervis, since vis (from volo) is long; in the second person Sing. of the Fut. Perf. is of itself is short, but by the necessity of the verse is often made long, as: dixeris; so also is the i in the plural-endings imus, itis of the Fut. Perf. often made long by the poets for the same reason, as: scripserimus, scripseritis;

e) us is long: 1) in the Nom. Sing. of words of the second Dec.

which have u long in the penult of the Gen., as: virtūs, ūtia, palūs, ūdis, tellūs, ūris, (but: corpūs, ōris, vetūs, ēris, etc.);—2) in the Gen. Sing. and in the Nom. Acc. Voc. Plur. of the fourth Dec., as: fructūs (contracted from fructūs and fructus);—3) in Greek words, when us corresponds to ους in Greek, as: tripūs, ōdis (τριπους), Panthūs; in the Gen.: Sapphūs from Sappho (Σαπφούς), Cliūs from Celio. etc.; but in: Oedipūs, i, polypūs, i, the Greek ους becomes ūs, in Latin;

f) ys is long: 1) in words which have an associate form in yn, as: Phorcys and Phorcyn;—2) when ys stands by contraction for yes and yas, as: Erinnyś.

III. l, m, n, r, d, t final, make the vowel of the final syllable short, as: animāl, tectūm, circūm-ago, carmēn, carcēr, amōr, apūd, vidēn (for videsne), nostīn (for nostine), Theŭn, Pylōn, Iliōn, illūd, capūt, amāt, monēt, regīt, audīt. To this general rule there are the following exceptions, in which the vowel before these consonants is long:

- a) l: in Hebrew proper names in el, as: Daniēl;
- b) n: 1) in the Greek Acc. of words in as, es, e, as: Aeneān, Anchisēn, Calliopēn, epitomēn;—2) in the Nom. of masculine and feminine nouns which come from the Greek, as: titān, hymēn, Salamin, Pandiōn (except Lacedaemōn and some others), and in the Latin liēn;
- c) r: in the compounds of pār, as: dispār, and in Greek imparisyllables in er, as: aēr, aethēr, cratēr, Ibēr.

5. Monosyllabic words are long, as: sāl, sōl, mōs, spēs, pār, hōc, etc.

EXCEPTIONS: 1) the substantives: mēl, fēl, ōs (ossis), a bone, (but: ōs, ōris, the face), cōr (rarely cōr);—2) the pronouns: quis, quid, quōd; is, id; quōt, tōt; hic, this, is generally, and hic, here, always long;—3) the adverbs: bīs, tēr, sāt;—4) the verbal forms in t: fīt, sīt, scīt, dāt, dēt, stāt, stēt, it; the imperatives fēr, fāc and ēs thou art (but ēs, thou eatest);—5) the particles: āb, ād, ān, āt, cis, ēt, in, nēc, ōb, pēr, pōl, sēd, sūb, ūt, vēl, and the suffixes (enclitics): quē, vē, cē, nē (but: nē, that not, in order that not), tētutē), ptē (suoptē).

§ 118. Hexameter Verse.

1. A verse is a series of poetic feet forming, in general, a line of poetry. The particular feet or members of which it is composed are called metres.

2. When the last foot of a verse is complete, the verse is called acatalectic; but when incomplete, catalectic.

3. Every foot or metre consists of an arsis and a thesis. The arsis is that part of the foot (in hexameter verse, the first syllable of the foot), on which the stress or elevation of the voice is placed in pronouncing it. The rest of the foot (whether one syllable or more) is called thesis, and is to be pronounced in a falling tone of voice. The stress of voice laid on the arsis is called the ictus (beat) and may be regarded as the poetic accent; hence it is often marked as such by the sign (´). A succession of feet pronounced with due regard to arsis and thesis constitutes rhythm.

4. Hence it will be apparent, that a line of poetry, in a given kind of measure, consists of a fixed number of feet and a variable number of words, which, of course, must occasion a disagreement between the terminations of the feet and words. Besides, as rhythm was the leading element in ancient poetry, it was not, except for a given purpose, attempted to produce a coincidence between the feet and words, that it might be apparent that the rhythm was independent of the words as such. This division of the feet by the terminations of the words is called caesura, as :

Infandúm | regina | jubés | renováre | dolórem.

In feet of three syllables, as: - ∪ ∪, the word may end either after the arsis (´ | ∪ ∪) or in the middle of the thesis (´ ∪ | ∪). In the first case it is called the masculine, in the second the feminine caesura. The coincidence of the termination of a word with the termination of a foot is called diaerësis, as :

Persequar | ét raris habitáta, mapália, téctis.

In certain kinds of verse, certain caesuras and diaereses are necessary, and are to be especially observed in reading the verse; these are called principal caesuras and diaereses.

5. Hexameter verse is measured by six feet which may be either spondees or dactyles, except the last foot, which is a dissyllabic catalectus (No. 2). A spondee consists of two long syllables, designated thus: --; a dactyle of one long and two short, designated thus: - ∪ ∪. Hence we have:

/ ∪	/ ∪	/ ∪	/ ∪	/ ∪	/ ∪
Sed fugit	intere	a fugit	irrepa	rabile	tempus.
Adspici	unt ocu	lis Supe	ri mor	talia	justis.

REM. 1. The fifth foot is generally a dactyle, rarely a spondee, and only when the poet wishes to give the line a character of slowness, seriousness and solemnity; such a verse is called a spondaic verse, a dactyle usually precedes the spondee and the verse generally closes with a word of three or four syllables, as:

Cara deum suboles, magnum Jovis | incrè | mentum.

REM. 2. Dactyles often express a rapid and brisk, as spondees do a slow and heavy motion, as:

Quadrupedante putrem sonitu quatit ungulo campum
Illi inter sese magna vi brachia tollunt.

REM. 3. The principal caesura in Hexameter verse, generally occurs after the arsis of the third foot and sometimes in the thesis of the same foot; but occasionally also, after the arsis in the fourth foot, in which case another caesura generally precedes, after the arsis of the second foot. Sometimes, also, several caesuras of this kind are found in the same verse; in which case the sense must determine which is to be observed as the principal one. Besides the principal caesura, there may be other subordinate caesuras, e. g.

Sed | fugit interea, || fugit irrepabile tempus.
Dum vires | annique | sinunt, || tolerate labores.
Oderunt | peccare | boni, || virtutis | amore.
Nudus | ara, | sere | nudus; || hiems | ignava | colono.
Infandum | regina | jubes || renovare | dolorem.

REM. 4. The commonest and most graceful close of an hexameter verse is made by a word of two or three syllables.

§ 119. Scansion.

Scansion is the division of a verse into the feet or members of which it is made up. In doing this, however, the proper terminations of the words must not be wholly overlooked, but should be observed by making a slight pause at each of the caesuras and a marked pause at the principal; caesura, as far as this can be done without obscuring the proper division into feet. In scanning, the following things are to be observed:

a) A vowel at the end of a word before another vowel or an h in the following word is absorbed (elision), as :

Núlla n(e) habés vit(a)? imm(o) ali(a), haúd fortásse minóra.

REM. 1. Elision rarely takes place at the end of a line, as :

O'mnia Mércurió similis vocémque colóremque
E't crinés flavós et mémbra decóra juvéntae.

In this case, the last syllable is to be joined to the first of the following line. Such a line is called versus hyperméter.

REM. 2. When elision is neglected in the beginning or middle of a verse, there arises what is called the hiatus (gaping, difficulty of pronunciation). This the poets endeavor if possible to avoid; yet it is allowable before monosyllables, before one of the stronger punctuation marks, and in a long vowel followed by a short one; also in the arsis, the hiatus occasions less difficulty of pronunciation, as :

O' et dé Latiá, O ét de génte Sabína.
E't succús pecorí et lác subdúcutur ágris.
Pósthabitá coluisse Samó : hic illius árma.
Núbibus ésse solét aut púrpureáé Aurórae.

REM. 3. Occasionally a long vowel in the thesis before another vowel is short, as :

Ínsulae Íonió in mágno.

b) An m at the end of a word with a vowel before it and before a vowel in the following word long by nature or position, is, together with the vowel before it, omitted in reading (ecthlipsis), as :

Quód latet, ignót (um) ést; ignóti núlla cupído.

REM. 4. In monosyllabic words which stand in the arsis, principally before a strong punctuation mark or in the caesura, the ecthlipsis is sometimes omitted. Before a short syllable the ecthlipsis is difficult.

c) When the last syllable of a word ends with a consonant and the following word in the same line begins with a consonant, that final syllable is uniformly long, as :

Némo adeó ferus ést, ut nón mitéscere póssit.

d) The ictus often makes a short syllable long; still this is generally the case only : a) when the short syllable ends in a consonant, especially r, s or t;—b) when the caesura follows it;—c) when upon a vowel in the close of a word, a word follows beginning with two consonants; e. g.

O'mnia vincit Amór, et nós cedámus Amóri.
Té canit ágricolá, | magná quum vénerit úrbe.
Nil opus ést morté pro mé, sed amóre fidéque.

e) Two vowels in two successive syllables are often contracted into one (Synacrēsis or Symizēsis), as: Phaëthon, Thesēi, deērunt, vehemens (two syllables), particularly, huic, cui, ii, iidem; so also, dein, dehinc, deinceps, deinde, proinde, prout; so also those vowels which are pronounced with more difficulty in one sound, as: quoad, postea, alveo pueri.

f) A short u or i is often rejected before l and m, as: pericūlum for periculūm, tegmen for tegiūmen. or tegiūmen.

g) The letters i and u, having been originally both consonants and vowels, when they follow another consonant and are followed by a vowel, make the preceding vowel long by position, as: flūviorum (= fluvjorum); gēnua (= genva), etc.

h) From the necessity of the verē, a long syllable is sometimes used as short (Systōle), and, on the contrary, a short syllable as long (Diastōle). The systōle is very common in the third person Plur. Indic. Perf. Act., and in alterius and in names, as: Aenēades;—the diastōle is used especially in the Subj. Perf. Act. and Fut. Perf. Act., (audiveritis), also in names, in which three short syllables follow one another, of which the first is then made long by the ictus, as:

O'bstupui, steteruntque comae, vox faucibus haesit.

THIRD APPENDIX.

1 Kalendae means the first day of each month; Nonae the seventh day of March, May, July and October, but the fifth of the remaining eight months; Idus was the fifteenth of the four months named above, and the thirteenth of the other eight.

2. Since the names of the months are properly adjectives, they generally agree with Kalendae, Nonae and Idus in gender, number and case, and are rarely governed by them in the Gen. as: Calendis Juniis, on the first day of June; Nonis Octobribus, on the seventh of October; Idibus Septembribus, on the thirteenth of September.

3. The days lying between the three fixed days just mentioned, were reckoned backwards from each of these fixed days, as, the 1st, 2d, 3d etc., day before the Kalends, Nones, or Ides as the case might be, and dies and ante were generally omitted. The day from which one began to reckon was always included in the number mentioned, as: Claudius excessit III. Idus Octobres, i. e. tertio die ante Idus Octobres, on the thirteenth of October. Hence, in order to get the true day before one of the divisions, we must subtract one from the number mentioned.

4. In determining what day of the previous month any day before the Calends of a given month is, we must know how many days the month has (see table) and reckon back from the Calends of the month mentioned (i. e. the month following), as: tertio Calendas Apriles, on the 30th of March; tertio Calendas Maias, on the 29th of April; tertio Calendas Martias, on the 27th (28th) of February; since March has 31, April 30 and February 28 (in leap year 29) days.

The days of our months.	March, May, July, and October (have 31 days).	January, August, and December (have also 31 days.)	April, June, September, and November (have 30 days).	February (has 28, and in Leap Years 29 days).

COLLECTION OF LATIN READING LESSONS.

I. FABLES.

1. Lupus et capra.

Lupus, capram conspicatus, quae in rupe pascebatur, quum ad eam accedere non posset, eam, ut de rupe descenderet, hortabatur, apud se mollia prata ac varias herbas esse praedicans. Ei vero capra respondit: Mi amice, non me ad pascua vocas, sed ipse cibi indiges!

2. Lupus et opiliones.

Opiliones aliquot, caesa atque assata ove, convivium agebant. Quod quum lupus, qui praedandi caussa forte stabula circumibat, videret, ad opiliones conversus: Quos clamores, inquit, et quantos tumultus vos contra me excitaretis, si ego facerem, quod vos facitis? Tum unus ex iis: Hoc interest, inquit: nos, quae nostra sunt, comedimus; tu vero aliena furaris.

3. Vulpes et uva.

Vulpes, extrema fame coacta, uvam appetebat ex alta vite dependentem. Quam quum, summis viribus saliens, attingere non posset, tandem discédens: Nondum matura est, inquit; nolo acerbam sumere. Sic saepe homines, quae facere non possunt, verbis elévant.

2. Opilio, ōnis, m. shepherd. asso 1. to roast. convivium, i, n. feast; conv. agere, to have a feast. stabulum, i, n. stable. tumultus, as, m. ado. furor 1. steal.

3. Vitis, is, f. vine. dependeo, di, 2. to hang down from. elévo 1. to raise up; 2) to disparage.

4. Rusticus et canis fidelis.

Rusticus in agros exiit ad opus suum. Filiolum, qui in cunis jacebat, reliquit custodiendum cani fideli atque valido. Arrepsit anguis immanis, qui puerulum exstincturus erat. Sed custos fidelis corripit eum dentibus acutis, et, dum necare studet, cunas simul evertit super exstinctum anguem. Mox ex arvo rediit agricola; ut videt cunas ever-sas cruentumque canis rictum, irā accenditur. Temēre igitur custo-dem filioli interficit ligone, quem manibus tenebat. Sed ubi cunas restituit, supra anguem occisum reperit puerum vivum et incolūmem. Sera tum poenitentia fuit facinoris temere patrati.

5. Leo, asinus et vulpes.

Vulpes, asinus et leo venatum iverant. Amplā praedā factā, leo asi-num illam partiri jubet. Qui quum singulis singulas partes poneret aequales, leo eum correptum dilaniavit et vulpi negotium partiendi tribuit. Illa astutior leoni maximam partem apposuit, sibi vix minimam reservans particulam. Tum leo subridens ejus prudentiam laudare, et, unde hoc didicerit, interrogare coepit. Et vulpes: Hujus me, inquit, calamitas docuit, quid minores potentioribus debeant.

6. Asinus pelle leonina indutus.

Asinus fugitivus reperit forte in silva pellem leoninam, eaque indutus territare coepit homines et bestias. Venit is, qui asinum perdiderat, eumque quaerit. Asinus, quum herum vidisset, horrendum in modum rugire coepit, ut illum quoque falleret. At herus, comprehensis auriculis, quae exstabant: Etiam si alios, inquit, fallas, me tamen non falles. Ita probe verberat domumque abigit.

7. Rusticus et filii.

Inter filios rustici cujusdam grave dissidium ortum erat. Diu frustra operam impenderat pater, hortans, ut pacem atque concordiam cole-rent. Tandem filiis: Virgulas, inquit, mihi afferte quinquaginta et con-

Illi autem quanquam vim omnem adhibebant, frustra laborarunt, nec quicquam profecerunt. Tum pater nodum discidit singulasque illis virgulas dedit, quas sine ullo labore confregerunt. Quo facto, rusticus filios ita allocutus est: Haec res vobis exemplo sit. Tuti eritis ab inimicorum injuriis, quamdiu vos amabitis et concordēs eritis; at, simulac facta erit dissensio atque discordia, inimici securi in vos irrumpent.

8. Luscinia et cuculus.

Luscinia verno quodam die dulcissime canere coepit. Pueri aliquot haud procul ab̄erant in valle ludentes. Hi quum lusu essent intenti, lusciniæ cantu nihil movebantur. Non multo post cuculus coepit cuculare. Continuo pueri, lusu neglecto, ei acclamabant vocemque cuculi identidem imitabantur. Audisne, luscinia, inquit cuculus, quanto me isti plausu excipiant et quantopere cantu meo delectentur? Luscinia, quae nollet cum eo altercori, nihil impediēbat, quom̄nus ille suam vocem miraretur. Interēa pastor fistula canens cum puella lento gradu praeteriit Cuculus iterum vociferatur, novas laudes captans. At puella pastorem allocuta: Male sit, inquit, huic cuculo, qui cantui tuo odiosam vocem intermiscet. Quo audito, quum cuculus in pudorem conjectus conticuisset, luscinia tam suaviter canere coepit, ut se ipsam superare velle videretur. Pastor, fistulā depositā: Consideramus hic, inquit, sub arbore et lusciniam audiamus. Tum pastor et puella cantum lusciniæ certatim laudare coeperunt, et diu taciti intentis auribus sedent. Ad postremum adeo capta est puella sonorum dulcedine, ut etiam lacrimae erumperent. Tum luscinia ad cuculum conversa: Videsne, inquit, quantum ab imperitorum opinionibus prudentiorum iudicia distent? Una sane ex istis lacrimis, quamvis muta sit, locupletior tamen est artis meae testis, quam inconditus iste puerorum clamor, quem tantopere jactabas. Monet fabula, magnorum artificum opera non vulgi opinione, sed prudentium existimatione esse censenda.

Cuculus, i, m. cuckoo. vallis, is, f. valley. cuculo 1. to coo. acelamo 1. to cry out to. altercor 1. to quarrel. fistula, ae, f. pipe. lentus, a, um, slow. gradus, us, m. step. vociferor 1. to screech. intermiscuo, miscui mixtum or mistum 2. to intermingle. certatim, adv. emulously. disto 1 without Perf. and Sup. to differ.

9. Auceps et vipera.

Auceps ibat venatum et mox vidit in altissima arbore palumbem; appropërat eum capturus, sed inter eundem premit forte pedem altero viperam in herba latentem, quae illum mordet. Me miserum, inquit, dum alteri insidior, ipse dispereo.

10. Mendax.

Puer in prato oves pascibat atque per jocum clamitabat, ut sibi auxilium ferretur, quasi lupus gregem esset adortus. Agricolae undique succurrebant, neque lupum inveniebant. Ita ter quaterque se elusus a puero viderunt. Deinde, quum ipse lupus aggredereetur, et puer revera imploraret auxilium; nemo gregi subvenit, et oves lupi praeda sunt facta. Mendaci homini non credimus, etiam vera quum dicit.

11. Formica et columba.

Formica sitiens descenderat ad fontem; sed undae eam abriperunt, nec multum abërat, quin misera periret. Quum vero columba sortem ejus videret, misericordiã tacta ramulum in aquam injecit. Hunc assecuta est formica in eoque natans effugit mortem. Paulo post venator, arcu instructus, illuc venit, columbamque telo suo transfixurus fuit. Periculum sentit formica, et, ut piae columbae opem ferret, accurrit atque venatoris talum momordit. Dolore impeditus ille telum non recte misit, et columba incolumis avolavit. Juva et juvabere; raro beneficium perit.

12. Vulpes et corvus.

Corvus, quum frustum carnis rapuisset, in arbore quadam consedit. Quo conspecto, vulpes, carnem cupiens, accurrit eumque callidis verbis adortur. O corve, inquit, quam pulchra es avis, quam speciosa! Te decuit esse avium regem. Sane omnes aves regis virtutibus antecederes, si vocem haberes. His corvus laudibus inflatus, ne mutus haberetur, clamorem edidit, sed simul, aperto rostro, carnem amisit; quum vulpes statim rapuit, atque irridens dixit: Heus, corve! Nihil tibi deest praeter mentem.

II. DIALOGUES.

1. Excusatio.

Geta. Quid causae est, quod tam diu nos non invisēris? Quid impedimento fuit, quominus jam diu feceris nobis tui videndi copiam?
Syrus. Volui quidem saepe te convenire, sed non licuit mihi per mea negotia; non licuit per valetudinem; laboravi enim aliquamdiu feбри; non licuit denique per tempestatem, quae saepe fuit pluviosa. G. Equidem accipio tuam excusationem, sed hac lege, ne saepius utare. Excusatio tua justior est, quam vellem, siquidem valetudo fuit in causa. Haec lege mihi purgatus eris, si, quod cessatum est, me saepe invisendo compenses. S. Tu nihil moraris istius modi officia nimium vulgaria. Amicitia nostra firmior est, quam ut sit officiis istis vulgaribus alenda. Satis crebro invisit, qui constanter amat. G. Male sit istis curis, quae te nobis adimunt. Quid imprēcor istis negotiis, quae talem amicum nobis invident? Pessime sit isti feбри, quae nos tam gravi desiderio torsit tui. Male pereat ista febris, te quidem incolumi.

2. Colloquium jocosum.

Andreas. Salve, mi Mauriti. Mauritius. Gratias ago, mi Andrēa. Quid affers? A. Me ipsum. M. Sic rem haud magni pretii huc attulisti. A. At magno constiti patri meo. M. Credo pluris, quam quisquam te aestimet. A. Sed Rudolphus estne domi? M. Nescio. Pulsa fores ejus et videbis. A. Heus, Rudolphe! domine es? R. Non sum. A. Impudens! Non ego audio te loquentem? R. Immo tu es impudens. Nuper ancillae vestrae credidi, te non esse domi, quum tamen esses, et tu non credis mihi ipsi? A. Aequum dicis; par pari retulisti. R. Equidem ut non omnibus dormio, ita non omnibus sum domi. Nunc vero adsum. A. Sed tu mihi videris cochlae vitam agere. R. Quid ita? A. Quia perpetuo domi latitas, nec unquam prorēpis. R. Foris nihil est negotii. A. At serenum coelum nunc invitat ad deambulandum. R. Ita est. Si igitur deambulare libet, te comitabor; nam per totum hunc mensem pedem portā non extuli. Vocabo Mauritium, ut una nobiscum eat. A. Placet. Sic enim jucundior erit ambulatio.

1. Cesso 1. to omit. compenso 1. to make up. imprēcor 1. to imprecate.

2. Aestimo 1. to estimate. pulso 1. to beat. latito 1. to keep one's self concealed.

3. Colloquium ejusdem generis.

Syrus. Opto tibi multam felicitatem. Geta. Et ego tibi duplicatum opto, quicquid optas mihi. S. Quid agis rei? G. Confabulor. S. Quid? confabularis solus? G. Ut vides. S. Fortasse tecum. Proinde tibi videndum est, ut cum homine probo confabulêre. G. Immo cum lepidissimo congerrone confabulor; lego enim librum joci plenum. S. Tu perpetuo littêris studes. G. Non est ulla studiorum satiëtas. S. Verum; sed est tamen modus quidam. Non omittenda quidem sunt studia, sed tamen intermittenda nonnunquam. Nihil suave, quod perpetuum. Voluptates commendat rarior usus. Tu littêris studes noctes ac dies. G. Age, tuo more facis. Rides me, ut soles. Non me fallit tuus jocus. Ipsî codices pulvere situque obducti loquuntur, quam sim immodicus in studio. S. Emoriar, ni loquor ex animo.

4. Ludus.

Carôlus. Veni, mi Ludovice! Ludovicus. Quo tandem? C. In hortum; satis jam legimus et scripsimus; ludamus quoque. L. Ego pensum meum ante absolvam. C. Nondum absolvisti? L. Nondum omnia. Tunc jam omnia didicisti et scripsisti, quae praeceptor nos discere et scribere jussit? C. Non omnia. L. Ergo nondum licet ludere. C. Cur non liceat? Reliqua discam et scribam post ludum. L. Sed praestat, primum discere, deinde ludere. C. Quam morosum sodalem habeo! L. Non sum morosus, sed facere volo, quae jussa sunt. C. Ergo una ediscamus. Ego tibi recitabo, tu mihi. Deinde, quum omnia didicerimus, statim ad ludum properabimus. L. Placet; nam peracti labores jucundi sunt.

5. De surgendo.

Fridericus. Heus, heus, Carole! expergiscêre! Tempus est surgere. Audisne? C. Non audio. F. Ubi ergo habes aures? C. In lecto. F. Hoc video. Sed quid faeis adhuc in lecto? C. Quid faciam? Dormio. F. Dormis? et loquêris tamen mecum? C. Saltem volo dormire. F. Nunc autem non est tempus dormiendi, sed surgendi. C. Quota est hora? F. Septima. C. Quando tu surrexisti e lecto? F. Jam ante duas horas. C. Num sorores meae jam surrexerunt? F. Iam pridem. C. Sed frater meus certe adhuc jacet in lecto. F. Erras. Quum expergefacerem eum, statim reliquit nidum suum. C. Mox igitur surgam.

3. Duplîco 1. to double. confabulor 1. to chat. congerro, ðnis, m. comrade, play-fellow. satiëtas, atis, f. satiety. intermitto 3. to intermit.

6. Ambulatio.

Fridericus. Age, mi frater, ambulemus; tempestas serena est. Augustus. Placet; sed ubi ambulabimus? Num in pratis? F. Minime; prata enim pluvia inundavit, et viae lutulentae sunt. Placetne adscendere in montem, quem e fenestra prospicimus? A. Placet; jam pridem enim in monte non fuimus. F. Hiems nos prohibuit; hieme enim mons glacie et nive tectus erat. Quid stas autem? A. Duae viae ducunt ad montem: altera recta, altera flexuosa. Utram eligemus? F. Flexuosam censeo; est enim umbrosior, et sol fervet. Descendentes alterā ibimus et ambulationem variabimus. Vesperi enim sol minus fervet. A. Eamus igitur!

7. Naufragium.

Mauritius. Redisti nobis obesior ac procerior. Cyprianus. At equidem malle prudentior, aut doctior. M. Imberbis abiēras, redisti barbatulus. At quid sibi vult hic pallor? quid frons corrugata? C. Ut est fortuna, sic est corporis habitus. M. Num adversa? C. Nunquam mihi quidem alias secunda; sed nunquam, quam nunc, reflavit odiosius. M. Dolet mihi tua calamitas. Sed quid hoc mali est? C. Universae pecuniae naufragium feci. M. In mari? C. Non, sed in litore, nondum navem ingressus. M. Ubinam? C. In litore Britannico. M. Bene habet, quod ipse nobis vivus enatasti. Praestat pecuniae jacturam facere, quam vitae. Levius est pecuniae damnum, quam famae. C. Vitā famāque incolumi, periit pecunia. M. Vita sarciri nullo pacto potest, fama aegre potest, pecunia facile alicunde sarcietur. Qui malum hoc accidit? C. Nescio, nisi quod sic erat in fatiis meis. Sic visum est supēris. M. Vides igitur, doctrinam ac virtutem tutissimas esse divitias, quae nec eripi possunt, nec onerant circumferentem. C. Pulchre tu quidem philosopharis; sed interim ego ringor.

9. Monita paedagogi.

Paedagogus. Tu mihi videris non in aula natus, sed in caula: adeo moribus es agrestibus. Puerum ingenuum decent ingenui mores. Quoties alloquitur te quispiam, cui debes honorem, compone te in rectum corporis statum, aperi caput. Vultus sit nec tristis, nec torvus, nec impudens, nec protervus, nec instabilis, sed hilari modestia temperatus: oculi verecundi, semper intenti in eum, quocum loqueris: juncti pedes, quietae manus. Nec vacilles alternis tibiis, nec manus agant gestus, nec mordeto labrum, nec scabito caput, nec fodito aures. Vestis item ad decorum componatur, ut totus cultus, vultus, gestus et habitus corporis ingenuam modestiam et verecundam indolem prae se ferat. Puer. Quid, si mediter? Pae. Fac. Pu. Siccine satis? Pae. Nondum. Pu. Quid, si sic? Pae. Propemodum. Pu. Quid, si sic? Pae. Hem satis est; hoc tene, ne sis inepte loquax, aut praeceps. IV. NARRATIVES.

1. Xerxes. Leonidas. Themistocles. (Cf. Justin. 2, 10. 11.)

Xerxes bellum a patre coeptum adversus Graeciam per quinquennium instruxit. Septingenta milia de regno armaverat et trecenta milia de auxiliis, ut non immerito proditum sit, flumina ab exercitu ejus siccata, Graeciamque omnem vix capere exercitum ejus potuisse. Naves quoque milia ducentas numero habuisse dicitur.

Ut introitus Xerxis in Graeciam terribilis fuit, ita turpis ac foedus discessus. Nam quum Leonidas, rex Lacedaemoniorum, cum quatuor milibus militum angustias Thermopylarum occupasset, Xerxes contemptu paucitatis eos pugnam capessere jubet, quorum cognati Marathoniâ pugnâ interfecti fuerant: qui, dum ulcisci suos cupiunt, principium cladis fuere: succedente deinde inutili turba, major caedes editur. Triduum ibi cum dolore et indignatione Persarum dimicatum: quarto die, quum nuntiatum esset Leonidae, a viginti milibus hostium summum cacumen teneri, tunc hortatur socios, recedant, et se ad meliora patriae tempora reservent: sibi cum Lacedaemoniis fortunam experiendam: plura se patriae, quam vitae, debere: ceteros ad praesidia Graeciae servandos. Audito regis imperio, discessere ceteri, soli Lacedaemonii remanserunt. Initio hujus belli sciscitantibus Delphis oracula responsum fuerat, aut regi Lacedaemoniorum, aut urbi cadendum esse.

Et idcirco rex Leonidas, quum in bellum proficisceretur, ita suos firmaverat, ut ire se parato ad moriendam animo scirent. Angustias propterea occupaverat, ut cum paucis aut majore gloria vinceret, aut minore damno reipublicae caderet. Dimissis igitur sociis, hortatur Lacedaemonios, meminerint, quocunque modo proeliaturi sint, cadendum esse: caverent, ne fortius mansisse, quam dimicasse viderentur; nec exspectandum, donec ab hoste circumvenirentur, sed, dum nox occasionem daret, securis et laetis superveniendum; nusquam victores honestius, quam in castris hostium perituros. Nihil erat difficile persuadere paratis mori: statim arma capiunt, et sexcenti viri castra quingentorum milium irrumpunt; statimque regis praetorium petunt, aut cum illo, aut, si ipsi oppressi essent, in ipsius potissimum sede morituri. Tumultus totis castris oritur. Lacedaemonii posteaquam regem non inveniunt, per omnia castra victores vagantur, caedunt sternuntque omnia, ut qui sciant se pugnare non spe victoriae, sed in mortis poenam. Proelium a principio noctis in majorem partem diei tractum. Ad postremum non victi, sed vincendo fatigati, inter ingentes stratorum hostium catervas occiderunt.

Xerxes, duobus vulneribus terrestri proelio acceptis, experiri maris fortunam statuit. Ante navalis proelii congressionem miserat Xerxes quattuor milia armatorum Delphos ad templum Apollinis diripiendum: prorsus, quasi non cum Graecis tantum, sed etiam cum diis immortalibus bellum gereret: quae manus tota imbribus et fulminibus deleta est, ut intelligeret, quam nullae essent hominum adversus deos vires. Post haec Thespias, et Plataeas, et Athenas vacuas hominibus incendit: et quoniam ferro in homines non poterat, in aedificia igne grassatur. Namque Athenienses post pugnam Marathoniam, praemonente Themistocle, victoriam illam de Persis reportatam, non finem, sed causam majoris belli fore, ducentas naves fabricati erant. Adventante igitur Xerxe, consulentibus Delphis oraculum responsum fuerat: Salutem muris ligneis tuerentur.

Themistocles, navium praesidium demonstratum ratus, persuadet omnibus, patriam municipes esse, non moenia; civitatemque non in aedificiis, sed in civibus positam. Itaque melius salutem navibus, quam urbi commissuros. Hujus sententiae etiam Deum auctorem esse. Probato consilio, conjuges liberosque cum pretiosissimis rebus abditis insulis, relicta urbe, demandant; ipsi naves armati conscendunt. Exemplum Atheniensium etiam aliae urbes imitatae sunt. Itaque quum conjuncta omnis sociorum classis, et intenta in bellum navale esset, angustiasque Salaminii freti, ne circumveniri a multitudine posset, occupasset; dissensio inter civitatum principes oritur. Qui quum, deserto bello, ad sua tuenda dilabi vellent, timens Themistocles, ne discessu sociorum vires minuerentur, per servum fidelem Xerxi nuntiat, uno in loco eum contractam Graeciam capere facillime posse. Quodsi civitates, quae jam abire vellent, dissiparentur, majore labore ei singulas consecandas. Hoc dolo impellit regem, ut signum pugnae daret.

Graeci quoque, adventu hostium occupati, proelium collatis viribus capessunt.

Interea rex, velut spectator pugnae, cum parte navium in littore remānet; Artemisia autem, regina Halicarnassi, quae in auxilium Xerxi venerat, inter primos duces bellum acerrime ciebat: quippe ut in viro muliēbrem timorem, ita in muliere virilem audaciam cerneret. Quum anceps proelium esset, Iōnes ex praecepto Themistoclis pugnae se paulatim subtrahere coeperunt: quorum defectio animos ceterorum fregit. Itaque circumspicientes fugam pelluntur Persae et mox, proelio victi, in fugam vertuntur. In qua trepidatione multae captae sunt naues, multae mersae; plures tamen, non minus saevitiam regis, quam hostem, timentes, domum dilabuntur.

2. Piso orator et servus.

Marcus Piso, orator Romanus, servis praeceperat, ut tantum ad interrogata responderent, neve quicquam praeterea dicerent. Evēnit, ut Clodium ad coenam invitari juberet. Hora coenae instabat; adērant ceteri convivae omnes, solus Clodius exspectabatur. Piso servum, qui solebat convivas vocare, aliquoties emisit, ut videret, veniretne. Quum tandem jam desperaretur ejus adventus, Piso servo: Dic, inquit, num forte non invitasti Clodium? Invitavi, respondit ille. Cur ergo non venit? Quia venturum se negavit. Tum Piso: Cur id non statim dixisti? Respondit servus: Quia non sum a te interrogatus.

3. Canis fidelis.

Pyrrhus rex in itinere incidit in canem, qui interfecti hominis corpus custodiebat. Quum audisset, eum jam tres dies cibi expertem assidēre, nec a cadavere discedere, mortuum jussit humari, canem vero deduci et curari diligenter. Paucis post diebus militum lustratio habetur. Transeunt singuli, sedente rege. Aderat canis. Is quum

Ergo comprehensi et examinati, levibus quibusdam signis aliunde accedentibus, fassi caedem poenas dederunt.

4. Archimedis mors.

Captis Syracusis, quas Archimedes machinationibus suis mirificis diu defenderat, Marcellus, imperator Romanus, gravissime edixit, ne quis Archimedi vim faceret. At is, dum animo et oculis in terra defixis, formas in pulvere describit, militi Romano, qui praedandi causa in domum irruperat strictoque gladio, quisnam esset, interrogabat, propter nimium ardorem studii nihil respondet, nisi hoc: Noli tubare circulos meos! A milite igitur, ignaro, quis esset, interficitur.

5. Amicus infidelis.

Duo amici una iter faciunt atque, solitudinem peragrantes, ursum ingentem vident advenientem. Alter celeriter in arborem adscendit; alter recordatus, illam bestiam cadavera non attingere, nisi fame effertam, humi se prosternit animamque continet, simulans se esse mortuum. Accedit ursus, contrectat jacentem, os suum ad hominis os et aures admovet et cadaver esse ratus discedit. Tunc ambo metu liberati inceptum iter persequuntur. Inter eundem interrogat is, qui in arborem adscenderat, alterum, quidnam ursus ei in aurem insurrasset. Multa, inquit ille, quae non recordor; sed imprimis hoc praeceptum dedit, ne quem pro amico haberem, cujus fidem adverso tempore non essem expertus.

6. Demosthènes.

Demosthenes caussam orans quum iudices parum attentos videret: Paullisper, inquit, aures mihi praebete: rem vobis novam et jucundam narrabo. asino consédit, cujus umbrâ tegetur. Id vero agâso vetabat, clamans, asinum locatum esse, non umbram asini. Alter quum eontra contenderet, tandem in jus ambulat. Haec locutus Demosthenes, ubi homines diligenter auscultantes vidit, abiit. Tum revocatus a iudicibus rogatusque, ut reliquam fabulam enarraret: Quid? inquit. De asini umbra licet audire? caussam hominis de vita periclitantis non audietis?

7. Cyri mors.

Postquam Asiam Cyrus subegit, Scythias bellum infert, quibus eo tempe Tomÿris regina praecerat. Rex aliquantum in Scythia progressus, quasi refugiens, castra deseruit atque in iis vini affatim et quae epulis erant necessaria reliquit. Tum regina filium adolescentem tertia parte copiarum ad hostes insequendos misit; is vero, rei militaris ignarus, omisit hostes et milites in castris Cyri vino se onerare patitur. Cyrus autem noctu redit omnesque Scythas cum ipso reginae filio in castris interficit. Sed Tomÿris, poenam meditata, hostes, recenti victoria exsultantes, pari fraude decipit. Quippe simulato timore refugiens Cyrum ad angustias pertraxit ibique in insidiis regem cum innumerabilibus Persarum copiis occidit. Tum caput Cyri amputatum in utrem, sanguine humano repletum, conjecit, crudelitatem his verbis expröbrans: Satia te sanguine, quem sitisti, et quo nunquam satiari potuisti!

8. Andröchl leo. (Cf. Gell. N. A. 5, 14, 5—30.)

Romae in circo maximo venationis amplissimae pugna populo dabatur. Multae ibi saevientes ferae erant; sed praeter alia omnia leonum immanitas admirationi fuit, praeterque ceteros omnes eminebat unus. Is leo corporis impetu et ingenti magnitudine terribilique fremitu, toris comisque cervicum fluctuantibus, animos oculosque omnium in sese converterat. Introductus erat inter complures ceteros ad pugnam bestiarum servus viri consularis. Ei servo Andröclus nomen fuit. Hunc ille leo ubi vidit procul, repente, quasi admirans, stetit; ac deinde sensim atque placide tanquam exploraturus ad hominem accedit; tum caudam more adulantium canum clementer et blande movet hominisque fere corpori adjungit cruraque ejus et manus prope jam exanimati metu linguâ leniter demulcet. Homo Androclus inter illa tam atrocis ferae blandimenta amissum animum receperat; paulatim oculos ad contuendum leonem refert. Tum, quasi mutua recognitione factâ, lætos et gratulabundos videres hominem et leonem. Eâ re prorsus admirabili maximi a populo clamores excitantur, arcessiturque a Caesare Androclus, quaeriturque ex eo, cur ille atrocissimus leonum uni pepercisset.

Hic Androclus rem mirificam narrat atque admirandam. Quum provinciam, inquit, Africam proconsulari imperio meus dominus obtineret, ego ibi iniquis ejus et quotidianis verberibus ad fugam sum coactus; et, ut mihi a domino terrae illius praeside tutiores latêbrae essent, in camporum et arenarum solitudines concessi: ac, si defuisset cibus, consilium fuit mortem aliquo pacto quaerere. Tum, sole flagrante, specum quendam nactus remotum latebrosumque, in eum me recondo. Neque multo post ad eundem specum venit hic leo, debili uno et cruento pede, gemitus edens et murmura, dolorem cruciatumque vulneris indicantia. Ac primum quidem conspectu advenientis leonis animus meus summo terrore impletur; sed postquam leo, introgressus in latibulum illud suum, vidit me procul delitescentem, mitis et mansuëtus accessit: ac sublatum pedem ostendere et porrigere, quasi opis petendae gratia, visus est. Ibi, ego stirpem ingentem vestigio pedis ejus haerentem revelli conceptamque saniem vulnere intimo expressi accuratiusque sine magna jam formidine siccavi pemitus atque deteresi cruorem. Ille tunc meâ operâ et medicinâ levatus, pede in manibus meis posito, recubuit et quievit. Atque ex eo die triennium totum ego et leo in eodem specu eodemque victu viximus. Nam, quas venabatur feras, membra opimiora ad specum mihi suggerebat: quae ego,

Is me statim rei capitalis damnandum dandumque ad bestias curavit. Intellico autem hunc quoque leonem, me tunc separato, captum gratiam mihi nunc etiam beneficii et medicinae referre. Itaque, cunctis petentibus, dimissus est Androclus et poenā solutus, leoque et suffragiis populi donatus.

9. Somnium mirum.

Quum duo quidam Arcādes familiares iter unā facerent et Megāram venissent, alter ad caupōnem devertit; ad hospitem alter. Qui ut coenati quieverunt, concubiā nocte visus est in somnis ei, qui erat in hospitio, ille alter orare, ut subveniret, quod sibi a caupone interitus pararetur: is primus perterritus somnio surrexit; dein, quum se collegisset idque visum pro nihilo habendum esse duxisset, recubuit; tum ei dormienti idem ille visus est rogare, ut, quoniam sibi vivo non subvenisset, mortem suam ne inultam esse pateretur; se interfectum in plaustrum a caupone esse conjectum, et supra stercus injectum: petere, ut mane ad portam adesset, priusquam plāstrum ex oppido exiret. Hoc vero somnio is commotus mane bubulco praesto ad portam fuit; quaesivit ex eo, quid esset in plastro: ille perterritus fugit; mortuus erūtus est: caupo, re patefacta, poenas dedit.—C. Quod quum percrebuisset, Pythius ei quidam, qui argentariam faceret Syracusis, dixit venales quidem se hortos non habere, sed licere uti Canio, si vellet, ut suis: et simul ad coenam hominem in hortos invitavit in posterum diem. Quum ille promississet, tum Pythius, qui esset ut argentarius apud omnes ordines gratiōsus, piscatores ad se convocavit et ab iis petivit, ut ante suos hortulos postridie piscarentur: dixitque, quid eos facere vellet. Ad coenam tempore venit Canius: opipäre a Pythio apparatus convivium: cymbarum ante oculos multitudo: pro se quisque quod ceperat, afferebat: ante pedes Pythii pisces abiciebantur. Hoc loco est, Syracusis quicquid est piscium: hic aquatio: hac villa isti carere non possunt. Incensus Canius cupiditate contendit a Pythio, ut venderet. Gravate ille primo. Quid multa? impetrat. 12. Arātus.

Aratus Sicyonius jure laudatur, qui, quum ejus civitas quinquaginta annos a tyrannis teneretur, profectus Argis Sicyōnem, clandestino introitu urbe est potitus, quumque tyrannum Nicōclem improvise oppressisset, sexcentos exsūles, qui fuerant ejus civitatis locupletissimi, restituit, remque publicam adventu suo liberavit. Sed quum magnam animadverteret in bonis et possessionibus difficultatem, quod et eos, quos ipse restituerat, quorum bona alii possederant, egere iniquissimum arbitrabatur, et quinquaginta annorum possessiones moveri non nimis aequum putabat, propterea quod tam longo spatio multa hereditatibus, multa emptionibus, multa dotibus tenebantur sine injuria: judicavit, neque illis admi, nec iis non satisfieri, quorum illa fuerant, oportere. Quum igātur statuisset, opus esse ad eam rem constituendam pecuniā, Alexandriam se proficisci velle dixit, remque intēgram ad reditum suum jussit esse: isque celeriter ad Ptolemaeum, suum hospitem, venit, qui tum regnabat alter post Alexandriam conditam. Cui quum exposuisset, patriam se liberare velle, caussamque docuisset; a rege opulento vir summus facile impetravit, ut grandi pecunia adjuvaretur. Quam quum Sicyōnem attulisset, adhibuit sibi in consilium quindecim principes, cum quibus caussas cognovit et eorum, qui aliena tenebant, et eorum, qui sua amiserant: perfecitque aestimandis possessionibus, ut persuaderet aliis, ut pecuniam accipere mallent, possessionibus cederent; aliis, ut commodius putarent, numerari sibi, quod tanti esset, quam suum recuperare. Ita perfectum est, ut omnes, concordia constituta, sine querela discederent. O virum magnum dignumque, qui in nostra republica natus esset!—C. Off. 2. 23, 81, 82.
